U.S.-Backed Allies Go Into High Gear

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S.-backed South Vietnamese drive into Laos went into high gear Saturday.

South Vietnamese forces reported wrecking North Vietnamese base camps and supply depots on segments of the Ho Chi Minh trail and seizing vast amounts of arms, foodstuffs and other stores.

One South Vietnamese field officer reported the North Vietnamese in retreat on his unit's sector 12 miles inside Laos south of Highway 9, the east-west road that cuts across the Ho Chi Minh trail.

South Vietnamese troops were reported consolidating their positions at Sepone on Highway 9, and rebuilding the abandoned dirt airstrip.

Sepone was a major transshipment point for the North Vietnamese. The presence there of Saigon forces marked their farthest penetration westward —25 miles—in the six-day-old offensive.

The next possible objective was the crossroads town of Muong Phine, 15 miles farther west on Highway 9. Reports from Laos said the North Vietnamese consider the town important, indicating they would put up a stiff fight there. The North Vietnamese are said to be in control of that stretch of the highway.

Maj. Nguyen Huu Ba, executive officer of a South Vietnamese battalion operating off Highway 9, claimed his unit has killed about 80 North Vietnamese in the last three days and took only two wounded.

"The reason our men killed so many of the enemy with so few losses to us is that the enemy is running away," Ba said. "He is easy to follow and kill."

Ba estimated that two service companies of North Vietnamese of about 75 men each were deployed in his operation area before his unit moved in to uncover one of the big enemy caches.

This cache contained four antiaircraft guns, 82 drums of gasoline, 66 assault rifles and submachine guns, 500 boxes of clothing, 1,000 picks and 250 other weapons.

The largest booty was found in three caches 10 miles northwest of Lang Vei where South Vietnamese forces found the bodies of 20 North Vietnamese guards killed by U.S. air strikes.

These caches yielded between 70 and 100 tons of rice, more than 500 rifles, 60 antiaircraft machine guns and 600 uniforms. In another area, nine miles southwest of Lang Vei, Saigon troops seized 20 Soviet-made trucks.

At another point 12 miles southwest of Lang Vei, South Vietnamese units fought their way to several warehouses, killing 28 North Vietnamese guards.

The warehouses were stocked with three tons of tinned pork, 35,000 gallons of gasoline and large quantities of canvas shoes and gloves.

Since the incursion of Laos began last Monday, the South Vietnamese claimed they killed 269 North Vietnamese, nearly half of them in 24 hours of Friday night and Saturday morning. The South Vietnamese listed their own casualties for the first six days at 36 killed and 139 wounded.

Reflecting the quickened pace of the offensive, U.S. helicopters flew 1,100 sorties into Laos in support of the South Vietnamese ground troops Friday.

This was more than double the number of the previous day's missions by American helicopters and included gunship strikes, supply flights and medical evacuation.

More than 300 miles to the south, a 20,000-man South Vietnamese drive into eastern Cambodian encountered only light resistance.

While the South Vietnamese were reporting successes in southern Laos, Communist-led forces increased pressure in the northern part of the kingdom.

North Vietnamese troops fired five rockets into Long Cheng, headquarters of the U.S.-financed guerrilla army of Meo tribesmen 78 miles north of Vientiane, the capital. Ground fighting and shelling was reported throughout Saturday around Long Cheng.

Several buildings were damaged at the base and one Lao was killed. The stream of Lao refugees fleeing from Long Cheng was a sure sign North Vietnamese pressure was increasing. Refugees also were reported leaving at least four other towns in the area southwest of the Plain of Jars.

Several Air America planes received ground fire at Long Cheng and the civilian pilots called for air support from the U.S. Air Force. Some Air America pilots refused to fly into the area without protection from fighter-bombers.

Nixon's Fogbound Plan Surrounded By Politics

WASHINGTON AP — The fogbound outline of President Nixon's revenue-sharing plan is coming clear : an irregular issue surrounded by politics.

Whether or not it is passed by an increasingly skeptical Democratic Congress, the plan is likely to be an issue in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Nixon already has borrowed a possible campaign slogan from the Black Panther Party, "Power to the people."

But what powers? And which people?

The broad idea of revenue sharing has been embraced at different times and for different reasons by Democrats, Republicans, liberals, conservatives and , a recent poll indicates, 77 per cent of the American people.

It is a seductively simple idea. The tax-rich federal government automatically would share some of its money with tax-poor states and localities, with relatively few strings attached.

This, Nixon says, would relieve pressing financial problems of many states and localities and put more of Washington's power in the hands of governments closer to the people.

Critics, chiefly Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee, say the idea is as wasteful as a shotgun on a rifle range and likely to force a general federal tax increase, which Nixon denies.

Nixon's plan has two quite different aspects. "General" revenue sharing would apportion an extra $5 billion a year to state-local governments to use as they wish. "Special" revenue sharing would melt down $10 billion worth of present federal aid programs, plus and extra $1 billion new money, into bloc grants to be used only for specified purposes.

Nixon's general revenue sharing bill, introduced last week by Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., would provide a permanent appropriation of 1.3 per cent of the nation's taxable personal income, providing an estimated $5 billion in the first full year and growing to about $10 billion in 1980.

The money would be divided among the states and the District of Columbia according to population, with a small bonus for places with higher than average taxes.

State-local governments could use the money for anything they wish, increasing services or reducing their own taxes, provided they account for it and don't use it to discriminate against racial or national minorities.

The bill would require states to hand over an average of 48 per cent of the money directly to cities, counties and towns. Each state would receive a 10 per cent incentive bonus once it worked out its own pass-through formula with its localities to replace the federal 48-52 formula.

Administration drafters cleared the plan in advance

Settle Major Points

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Lord Strathalmond, leader of a team of world oil company negotiators, reported Saturday night he is hopeful that an agreement will be reached Sunday with six Persian Gulf oil producing countries on a new price deal.

He said there were "one or two itsy bitsy items still outstanding," but that the main points of agreement had been reached.

He hinted that the question of guarantees against "leapfrogging" price demands—this country boosts the price above that country's price every time there is a boost—had been settled, except for one legal point to be cleared up. He declined to elaborate.

The Gulf producers—Iraq, Iran, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Abu Dhabi and Qatar—have warned they will legislate to raise prices unilaterally unless the companies accept their demands by Monday.

If the companies refuse to pay up in accordance with the proposed new laws, nine oil exporting countries have threatened to cut off their oil supply.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Zaki Yamani, told newsmen after a two-hour negotiating session Saturday morning that the financial aspects of a new deal have been agreed upon.

Yamani gave no details of the cash terms but a Tehran newspaper carried an unattributed report that the new agreement provides for an increase in the posted price of oil of 32 to 38 cents a barrel.

The Shah of Iran has demanded that the companies pay enough to give the producer countries $1.25 per barrel. From the current posted price of $1.79 they now receive slightly less than $1.

Companies spokesman John Collins refused to confirm the price figures printed by the Tehran newspaper Ettelaat or comment on the claim by Yamani that the financial aspects of an agreement had been settled.

Resume Calley Trial

FT. BENNING Ga. (AP) — Lt. William L. Calley Jr.'s court-martial is due to resume Tuesday, with the defendant expected to take the stand shortly thereafter and testify that he was only following orders, as he construed them, during the so-called My Lai massacre.

The recent focus of the defense case includes the argument that the 27-year-old Calley's role in the alleged mass execution of Vietnamese villagers was the result of a compulsion—that, in the words of a psychiatrist: "He could not challenge the legality or illegality of an order he believed was given him."

The interjection of this "robot" theory to explain Calley's actions at May Lai led to a month's recess in his court-martial, to give the government an *opportunity to explore his mental state through its own psy*chiatrists.

George Latimer, chief defense lawyer for the boyish, 5-feet-3 Vietnam veteran, said by telephone from his Salt Lake City office last week that only a single day may be needed for psychiatric testimony by his experts.

The attorney added that he might call Calley to the stand as early as Wednesday for a relatively brief direct recital of events of March 16, 1968. On that date the defendant is accused of conducting the premeditated murder of 102 unarmed and unresisting My Lai villagers. The maximum penalty upon conviction is death.

"I wouldn't think he would be on the stand too long on direct examination," Latimer said, estimating the duration at no more than a day. The length of the government's cross-exami-

Ackley Claims Plan Is Still Inadequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic National Committee's chief economist, Gardner Ackley, said Saturday President Nixon's revised "economic game plan" is an improvement over the old one but is still inadequate.

He said the proposed budget and other Nixon policies clearly cannot achieve the administration's targets for Gross National Product and employment.

Ackley, head of the presidential Council of Economic Advisers under President Lyndon B. Johnson, gave his views as chairman of the Democratic Policy Council Committee on Economic Affairs. He now is professor of economics at the University of Michigan.

Saying he believes his views represent those of many of his committee members, Ackley said Nixon's plan could bring "the disappointment of extravagant expectations" and react unfavorably on future economic decisions.

Ackley described as bold targets the Nixon goal of a $1.065-trillion Gross National product in 1971, an unemployment rate down to 4.5 by mid-1972 and an inflation rate down to 3 per cent by the same date.

"There is little doubt," Ackley said in a statement, "that the economy is now expanding again. But there seems little or no chance that the policies now proposed will move the economy even closer to the administration's targets."

The Republican national chairman, Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, accused Ackley of second-guessing and described him as "one of the chief architects of the raging inflation that President Nixon has slowly but surely been bringing to an end."

In a statement issued by the

Hereford Association Sponsors Show, Sale

The Mid-West Missouri Polled Hereford Association sponsored a show and sale Saturday at the Missouri State Fairgrounds with the top animal selling for $1,300.

The president of the Mid-West Missouri Polled Hereford Association, J. D. Gregory, presented the awards and trophies. Judge for the show was Joe Purdy, Butler, Mo., and auctioneer for the sale was Wes Hays, Smithton.

Roster Growing For Music Show

Two more performers have been added to the growing roster of country and western music artists who will entertain at the "Nashville Sound" benefit show Feb. 28 at the Agriculture Building on the State Fairgrounds.

Johnny Paycheck and former Sedalian Johnny Closser announced Saturday they will perform at the benefit, which is designed to raise funds for William Fry, the 10-year-old Tipton boy awaiting a kidney transplant.

The Country Squires, whose record "Shackles and Chains" was a hit last year, Shoji Tabuchi, "the fiddling Japanese Cowboy," and Radio station KBIL, (Liberty), personalities are already scheduled to entertain.

The Fry boy, must be taken twice weekly to Kansas City for treatment on a kidney machine to stay alive. He and his family plan to attend the benefit.

In other activities, the Tipton Lions Club reported it will hold a benefit pancake and sausage day from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Feb. 27 in the Tipton High School cafeteria.

Tipton and Sedalia merchants have donated all food and supplies for the event and the price for the meal will be strictly on donation basis with all proceeds going to the Fry fund.

Mrs. Toni Siegel, 1803 West Fourth, reported the "William

Bright Economic Future Indicated For Sedalia

Sedalia's economic future — at least during 1971—is seen as a bright one by the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development.

The January issue of the division's "Economic Review" said that total bank deposits, postal receipts, residential and commercial construction and other economic factors here were all on the plus side last year and promised another good year ahead.

The only exception was noticed in real estate sales, which dropped 2.1 per cent last year from 1969.

Bank deposits in Sedalia last year showed an 8.1 per cent jump over the previous year, and the number of water and gas meters in service showed a combined increase of 1.5 per cent.

The "Review" said of Sedalia:

"Construction of commercial properties is continuing at a steady pace. Residential construction, although spurred in the first part of 1970 with the start of construction of public housing units, continued at a lessening pace during the third quarter. Residential construction picked up again during the last quarter of the year.

"The economic outlook for 1971 is extremely bright for Sedalia and Pettis County. Reasons for optimism: increased industrial activity which is expected to begin during March, a hoped-for decrease in the rate of unemployment and the economic impact of the Safeguard ABM System which is expected to be under construction in mid to late 1971."

Sedalia area communities such as Clinton also received a good prognosis from the division.

In Clinton, the report said, "all indicators of economic activity reported for the third quarter of 1970 have shown an increase over the same period of 1969. Major gains came in the area of construction activity. Building permits for more than $2.5 million in construction projects were issued during the first 11 months of 1970."

Clinton's real estate sales, for example, leaped 11.9 per cent in 1970 over the previous year. Although total bank deposit figures were not available, the community showed gains in every other area listed — ranging from the number of water meters in use to kilowatt hours of electricity used.

The same was true for Marshall and Warsaw , which showed similar gains in the various catagories.

On the state level, the economic report said that construction contracts awarded in September last year for future building amounted to $65.6 million, a decrease of 39 per cent from an earlier total of $107.5 million.

The total personal income for Missourians the first nine months of 1970 was estimated at $12.6 billion, compared to $11.8

Brother's Failure Has Sis Concerned

Dear Ann Landers: The problem isn't mine — it's the whole family's. My mother thinks my brother Bob (age 12) needs a psychiatrist because he failed in every subject. Only last week the teacher told Mom that Bob is one of the smartest kids she has seen in all her years of teaching, but he is "unmotivated." On top of failing everything, Bob wrote a note to the teacher the day after he got his report card. He told her he hates his whole family including me. I'm 14 years old and I always thought Bob was my friend. Do you think my brother needs a psychiatrist? He seems normal to me, although he is quite lazy. Thank you. — Big Sis

Dear Sis: A kid who fails every subject and writes his teacher a note saying he hates his family needs outside help. His problem goes deeper than laziness. He has a desire to fail which is probably related to his parents' eagerness for him to succeed.

Bob's letter to the teacher was a cry for help. He was unleashing pent-up hostility. I hope your parents see to it that he gets counseling. He needs it.

Dear Ann Landers: A man with whom I have been very friendly (we work in the same office) invited me to his daughter's wedding. Mr. R. told me I could bring my boyfriend, but if we had other plans it would be O. K. and to let him know.

As it turned out, we did have other plans. I sent a gift and thought no more about it. The wedding was yesterday. This morning when Mr. R. saw me in the office he gave me a very cold hello. After three hours of sub-zero treatment, he really let me have it. He said my not showing up for his daughter's wedding proved that I was a phony friend.

Did I do something horrible, or is HE the phony friend for not being understanding? — Philadelphia Inquirer

Dear Philly: The quality of our relationships is shaped by the choices we make. The fact that you did not state in your letter what your boyfriend had planned instead, leads me to believe that you could have attended the wedding had you wanted to. Your co-worker obviously had this feeling, also. In my opinion you made a poor choice and it has cost you a friend.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has been seeing a married woman with three children for two years. I had no idea what was going on. Ed told me, out of a clear blue sky, that he needed to live away from home for a while because the kids made him nervous. The following week I caught Ed with this woman. He confessed everything, begged me to forgive him and moved back home.

A few days later Ed became despondent and told me the whole sordid story. He asked me to give up my job and stay home with him because he was afraid of what he might do to himself if he were left alone. (Ed works the night shift and I work days.) I stayed home for three weeks and listened to him repeat every detail of his love affair over and over until I thought I'd lose my mind. Yesterday the woman telephoned to say she has confessed everything to her husband and he has forgiven her. She ended by saying, "Now, please let me alone."

Ed is very depressed. He has threatened to shoot her and himself. I'm afraid to leave him alone. What should I do? — M. M. M.

Dear M. M. M. : Talk to your doctor and take his advice. If your husband needs to be committed, sign the papers for your sake as well as for his. And I hope both you and Ed go back to work at once — on the same shift if possible.

Give in or lose him ... when a guy gives you this line, look out!

Sedalia has more phones than Monaco, a principality on the Mediterranean. The source of the information is an annual booklet entitled "The World's Telephones," just issued by the AT&T Company.

With 15,835 telephones at the end of 1969, Sedalia outstripped Monaco by about 1,027 phones. The figures are based on 1969 statistics which are the most recent available from countries outside North America. It takes about a year to collect the information from the rest of the world.

Missouri's 2.3 million phones outnumbered those of East Germany which was short of the 2 million mark.

Finds Success in Police Ranks

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — There is a certain cool defiance about Boston Daniels despite his mild demeanor. It surfaced in 1949.

At the age of 40 he married and became a police rookie. A native of Foreman, Ark., he previously had worked as a pullman porter, ditch digger and service station attendant.

The police rookie made detective in 1951, then became the first black policeman promoted to lieutenant in Kansas in 1957, captain in 1961, and major in 1967.

Eight months ago at the age of 65, Daniels was named chief of the city's 275-man force and Kansas City, Kan., became the largest city in the nation with a Negro leading its police department.

Mayor Joseph H. McDowell says Daniels demonstrates "the enthusiasm of a new recruit. He constantly surprises me with his interest in innovative ideas."

Thursday, the city's Exchange Club named Daniels "policeman of the year" in Kansas City, Kan. Vincent Sauceda, president of the club, said the award was for effective leadership in reducing the crime rate in the city while most other cities nationally showed an increase in 1970.

Only the state line separates the city from a much larger and better known Kansas City, Mo.

"There's no question Boston's good for the department," said a white officer. "We've been getting a lot of new equipment —this car, for example, and a helicopter—and the chances for advancement are much better."

A youthful white cab driver, who admitted to a few brushes with police, said, "Daniels doesn't discriminate: anybody's liable to get busted (arrested)."

A middle-aged black resident said Daniels has had his "ups-and-downs with some of the kids" in the Negro community, "but generally he's seen as a good chief."

Daniels' appointment by Mayor McDowell brought little reaction community-wide "except for a few nuts—whites as a matter of fact—who made a little noise, but it passed pretty quick," one city official said.

In selecting Daniels, to succeed the retiring Frank Steach, McDowell turned to the most senior officer in a command position. He also had taken notice of Daniels' excellent ratings for diplomacy, quality of work, initiative and emotional stability.

Changes introduced under Daniels' direction in the past eight months include:

A Crime Alert Program in which the citizenry is encouraged to telephone police of crimes or suspicious activity. The callers may remain anonymous.

—The first two police substations in outlying districts since the city began answering several incorporated towns 84 years ago.

Unique first as a 40-year-old rookie, Daniels eventually became familiar to merchants in the main shopping district as he tracked shoplifters.

Al Brown, manager of a jewelry store, recalled often seeing him disguised as a railroad worker, "complete with red handkerchief hanging out of the back pocket."

His extensive disguise, so the story goes, included that of a pregnant woman.

The chief laughed:

Daniels' continuing residency in the black community has provided the city administration with a strong link to the ghetto.

In 1964 following a series of confrontations between blacks and police he was named to head all police operations in the predominantly black northeast section. Daniels eliminated the department's canine unit.

His reason became obvious as his theories of law enforcement slowly surfaced.

"An arrest is a time of considerable pressure, especially for the citizen. I tell my men, 'never be offended by a person. If you became disturbed, then you have two disturbed persons.'"

Daniels gives no indication when he might retire. He talks in terms of the present and future of the department, which he hopes to imbue with his philosophy.

"It's a theory of catching more flies with honey than with a club," one of the downtown merchants said.

One policeman said Daniels' philosophy — "you don't push anybody anymore" — "you don't come down the pipe in an edict, but everyone in the department knows of it well.

Cattle Rustlers Put on Probation

NORTON, Kan. (AP) — Two women have been placed on probation for three years after pleading guilty to cattle rustling and stealing hay.

Mrs. Doris Henry, 45, and Miss Fanny Post, 58, were sentenced to 1-to-10 years at the women's state prison for stealing cattle and were paroled. They were fined $100 each for the hay theft.

The women said they formerly worked together in a restaurant at Logan, Kan., and recently had been living on a farm.

Sheriff Max Archer of Norton said 30 bales of hay were stolen from the Dale Morris farm five miles east of Densmore Dec. 18. Then a cow was shot and butchered on the Lew Ninemire farm southwest of Norton on New Year's Eve. Finally, two calves were stolen from the Joe Lohrmeyer farm five miles west of Logan Jan. 9.

The women were arrested Jan. 12.

Midwest Soil Blowing Again Serious Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — While conditions aren't as serious as in the dust bowl days of the 1930's, soil blowing in the midwestern plains has become more widespread than in recent years and a matter of some concern to officials.

The Agriculture Department reports that during the last two months of 1970 wind erosion damaged 1,781,675 acres in ten states, compared with just 250,589 acres a year ago, an increase of 611 percent.

Furthermore, topsoil in condition to blow when the spring winds hit now totals 6,612,280 acres, compared with 3,855,068 acres a year ago.

An Agriculture Department expert, watching the situation, said although the situation is potentially serious it is much too early "to predict the beginnings of another dust bowl."

It was in the mid and late 1930's that drought and wind, combined with overtillage of the land, brought on the dust bowl conditions to the plains of Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and West Texas.

Much of the increase in damaged lands last year was in Texas where 1,175,225 acres were reported damaged compared with 68,054 a year ago. Most of this damaged acreage, was in West Texas where cotton land —bare after last year's harvest and dry from lack of rain—was subject to blowing.

The Department gave these state figures of acreages damaged by soil blowing in November and December, compared with a year ago:

Montana 117,750 acres 1970 and 23,710 acres in 1969; Nebraska 54,860 and 25,125; North Dakota 279,950 and 55,800; South Dakota 61,600 and 14,000; Wyoming 29,200 and 8,050; Colorado 34,640 and 17,600; Kansas 7,200 and 25,500; New Mexico 12,800 and 8,000; Oklahoma 8,450 and 4,750; Texas 1,175,225 and 68,054.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is looking for slightly reduced U.S. wool production this year but for some firming in prices.

In its current wool outlook report, the Department says that as of Jan. 1 there were 16.9 million stock sheep and lambs on U.S. farms and ranches, almost three percent under a year ago.

Prospects for 1971 wool production are off slightly from the 1970 production of 162 million pounds, grease basis, the department said.

As to prices to producers, the report said they are expected to improve in coming months. but into midyear likely will average below the first half of 1970. It added that second half prices should run above 1970.

"Recovery in the general economy should strengthen demand and boost rates of domestic wool use above the postwar low recorded in 1970," the Department said.

"And although world wool supplies have been relatively large, a pickup in world consumption may yield a gradual rise in prices of imported apparel class wool. Thus, both the domestic and foreign situations indicate some firming in prices for U.S. wool."

State Patrol Investigating Theft of Car

(Democrat-Capital Service)

EMMA — The Missouri State Highway Patrol is investigating the possibility that a car thief took a 1968 Volkswagen belonging to Leland Schelp after an older model car, also believed stolen broke down here Saturday morning.

Schelp told the Patrol that he was awakened about 4:15 a.m. when the family dog began barking, but saw nothing suspicious. When he left his home for work later Saturday morning he discovered that his 1968 white Volkswagen was missing from the driveway.

Shortly after Schelp reported the stolen car, the Patrol learned that a 1963 Volkswagen with Colorado license plates was found abandoned on County Line Road Y near the Holy Cross Lutheran School. The school is only a few blocks from the Schelp residence.

Highway Patrol headquarters in Lee's Summit reported a stolen car check is being made with Colorado authorities on the abandoned auto.

Republican National Committee, Dole said "As Mr. Ackley sees the President bring Republican order out of Democratic chaos his only reaction is one of mindless criticism."

The biggest improvement in Nixon's new plan, he said, is the official abandonment of the balanced-budget objective, which Ackley said "is long overdue and welcome."

But on the other side, Ackley said:

"The President fails to recognize that new tools are needed to help slow down the present 5½ per cent rate of inflation.

"The idea that a balanced full-employment budget will automatically produce full employment without inflation is oversimplified and misleading . . ."

Fires In The City

Sedalia firemen were called to the E. A. Smith residence, 1414 East Fourth, at 12:18 p.m. Friday where a defective chimney flue started a fire. Firemen estimated damage to the building at $100.

At 11:51 a.m. Saturday, firemen were called to 612 East 25th to extinguish a grass fire, caused by burning trash. No damage was reported.

Area Fires

IONIA — Mrs. William Beeson's house began to burn while the Pettis County Fire Department was across the street fighting another fire Friday. The coincidence in timing can very well be credited with saving her home.

At 2:49 p.m. the Pettis County Fire Department received a call from the Alvin Strathman residence here, where a short in an electric blanket started a fire in a bedroom.

While firemen were fighting the Strathman blaze, Mrs. Beeson reported that her house was on fire. The fire at her home was caused by a defective chimney-flue, causing considerable damage to the attic.

Firemen, with the aid of about seven volunteers, finally brought both fires under control. Damage to the Strathman residence was termed "considerable," by firemen. Some smoke damage to other parts of the dwelling was also reported.

No one was injured in either incident.

The government contends Calley and his men rounded up villagers in batches and moved them in assembly line fashion beneath the sights of their M16 automatic rifles—opening fire at the defendant's command to "kill'em, waste'em."

The victims, according to prosecution testimony, were old men, women and children, including babes in arms.

Tall Tale Contest Winner Is Selected

SACRAMENTI, Calif. (AP) — Bill Lambert won a championship after he said he was alone in the forest, driving a wedge into a log, when he was set upon by eight Indians looking for someone to kidnap.

The woodsman said he talked them into giving him a hand before being spirited away, and the wandering Webfoots put their fingers into the split to pull the log apart.

Lambert deftly whacked the wedge out and "the split closed, trapping their fingers. They couldn't get away." The sheriff was called, he said, and the errant tribesmen were soon behind bars.

Lambert, a retired U.S. Forest Service official from nearby Grass Valley, related the story in winning the 1971 world champion tall tale tellers' competition at a Sierra-Cascade logging conference.

Elks Dental Unit Will Visit Area

The Missouri Elks Mobile Dental Unit will arrive in Sedalia this Thursday and will remain here three to four weeks to offer dental care and treatment to crippled children, it was reported Saturday.

Everett Kemp, exalted ruler of the Sedalia Elks Lodge, said the unit would be open for public inspection from 6 to 8 p.m. Feb. 24.

Parents of crippled children in Pettis, Morgan and Benton Counties who cannot provide their children with proper dental care due to economic reasons, will be contacted, Kemp said.

The service is provided free through the cooperation of the Missouri State Medical Association, Missouri Crippled Children's Service, Missouri Dental Association, Missouri Division of Health and the Missouri Division of Mental Diseases.

"Missouri's rate of unemployment increased from 4.2 per cent of the work force in September to 4.8 per cent in November. The November rate is higher than rates for the same month since 1961," the report said.

CIVILIZATION'S DISEASE
DENTAL CARIES (Cavities)

Fermentable carbohydrate foods with a high sugar sucrose content are believed to be the chief cause of producing dental caries. Cutting down on sweets and other sucrose-containing snacks is one of the first rules of dental health education. Strengthening the hard glossy outside enamel of the tooth is also important, and this is helped by the fluoridation of drinking water.

The next preventive measure is in reducing, by vigorous brushing, the amount of dental plaque that accumulates at the base of teeth and gum junctions. Dental Caries start underneath this plaque. The brushing also helps to eliminate inflammation of the gums and reduce calculus which could lead to disease of the gums. We carry a complete stock of dental aids.

Question

I am saving several government bonds as a burial fund. Can I have these bonds put into your name for this purpose?

Answer

Series E. Bonds may be titled only three ways, and making them payable to us for your burial is not an approved form of registration. Bonds may be registered in your name alone; in your name with a joint owner; in your name payable upon your death to a beneficiary.

There is no way Series E Bonds can be positively earmarked for funeral purposes. If they are titled in your name alone, the funds would eventually be expended for funeral purposes through your estate, but this would subject them to the costs of probate.
Since you have acquired these bonds for funeral purposes, it would be wise to discuss with us or your bank an alternative which would work better for you.

Seek Russell's Ouster

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Democratic congressman has called for the firing of a Nixon administration official accused of appointing "unqualified political hacks" to a coal mine safety research panel.

Among the appointees, required by law to be knowledgeable in the mine safety field: a former airline stewardess, a veterinarian, an antitrust lawyer and a woman qualified on grounds her late husband was a doctor. At least three members have been involved deeply in Republican politics.

Rep. Ken W. Hechler, D-W.Va., called on President Nixon Friday to fire Undersecretary of the Interior Fred J. Russell, who made the appointments, and some unnamed panel members.

Russell, in California for the holiday weekend, was unavailable for comment. But Interior sources said he was hopping mad about the appointments, recommended to him by John B. Rigg, aide to Asst. Secretary Hollis M. Dole.

Also out of town and unavailable to discuss Hechler's charges were President Nixon and Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton, who had not taken office when the appointments were made last month.

A number of the appointees have no coal mine safety research experience, Hechler said. "Their main claim to fame is their service as Republican political officials," he said.

Gary Sellers, a colleague of public-interest lawyer Ralph Nader, said congressmen he interviewed, both Republican and Democrat, were also upset over the appointments announced Thursday.

Some, he said, "were practically speechless."

Under the mine health and safety act of 1969, a committee on mine safety research was created to advise the secretary of interior.

As required by law, three members are representatives of the President's Office of Science and Technology, the National Bureau of Standards and the National Science Foundation.

Other members are appointed by the secretary of interior and must be "knowledgeable in the field of coal mine safety research."

The Rigg-Russell appointees include:

—Jo Ann Gray of Denver, a former Continental Air Lines stewardess and wife of a pilot, who says some relatives of her mother's side were miners. Mrs. Gray was a Republican state committeewoman and co-chaired Sen. Barry M. Goldwater's 1964 presidential campaign in Colorado.

—Sara Abernethy of Altus, Okla., a one-time fine-arts student, now a member of the Board of Regents of Oklahoma College of Liberal Arts. A former co-chairman of her county Republican Committee, she has just joined the Oklahoma staff of Republican Sen. Henry Bellmon. Her connection with mine safety, Rigg said, was the fact her late husband was a doctor specializing in eye, ear, nose and throat ailments.

—Robert F. Ziems, of Arlington, Va., a Washington area patent, trademark and antitrust lawyer, and former Republican chairman in suburban Fairfax County.

Hechler cited those three as examples of political appointment in comments in the Congressional Record on Thursday.

Others certified by Russell as "knowledgeable" on mine safety research included:

—Frank L. Kraft of Aberdeen, S.D., a former traveling representative of Cargill, Inc., owners of a Louisiana salt mine where fire killed 21 men in 1968. Kraft was a Republican county committeeman in Brown County, S.D.

—William D. Carlson of Laramie, Wyo., president of the University of Wyoming. Carlson is a specialist in radiology and veterinary medicine, familiar with radiation problems in uranium mines but without experience "in the specific field of coal mine health research," according to his sponsor, Sen. Clifford P. Hansen, R-Wyo.

—Ben B. Chastain of Birmingham, Ala., chemistry professor at Samford University, with no reported experience in mine safety.

—H. Lynne Barber of Cincinnati, a retired executive in the "sand, gravel and retail coal business" of Dravo Corp.

—Frederick J. Robbins of Hinsdale, Ill., a metallurgist and president and chief executive of Bliss and Laughlin Industries.

Completing the panel are its chairman, Walter R. Hibbard Jr., a former director of the U.S. Bureau of Mines, now an executive of Owens-Corning Fiberglas, and four representatives of the mining industry:

—Harold T. Suter, vice president of Consolidation Coal Co. Seventy-eight men were killed in Consolidation's No. 9 mine in Farmington, W.Va., in an explosion in 1968.

—Ted Q. Wilson, Oneida, Tenn., general counsel of a 2,000-member miners' union called the Southern Labor Union. He is a Republican former member of the Tennessee House of Representatives.

Work For Success

CHICAGO (AP) — Norman Budwit, a $3.50-an-hour clerk who returned $183,000 he found, says he considers himself an honest man "within reasonable limits."

Then he added: "Well, philosophers down through the centuries have been looking for an honest man and they haven't been successful."

Budwit, 35, got a reward of $18,300 after he returned to Brink's, Inc., Friday the two sacks containing the $183,000, mostly in cash but with some checks. He had found them Monday.

Budwit said at a news conference he had hesitated to return the windfall for fear other bags might be missing and he would be held accountable for them.

Asked if he ever considered just keeping the money he replied:

"In that situation I suppose everything enters your mind but I never opened the seal."

Officials of the Brink's Inc., figure Budwit picked up the money Monday within an hour of the time it fell out the back door of an armored truck in suburban Elmhurst. A guard felt a draft, turned to find a door of the vehicle wide open and noticed the bags were missing.

Budwit said that while driving from his home in Downers Grove to his job on the night shift at Shell Oil Co., in Des Plaines he found the bags marked "Brink's" and threw them in the car "just to get them out of the road."

He said he forgot about them until Tuesday and then refrained from telling his wife, Kay, about them "because it was just something else she would have to be concerned about."

Friday, when he saw news stories about the missing money he phoned Brink's and told Security Director William Cole, "I would like some clarification on the reward."

Jones told newsmen that even though company officials had mentioned the liberal reward they considered the chances of recovering the bags were "3 to 1 against."

After a brief conversation with Budwit they said recovering the money would be worth 10 per cent to them and they hastened to his home to pick up the bags.

Budwit said he would consult his wife and three children ranging in age from 7 to 14 on how to spend the reward.

Probably, he said, it would be for "family use and necessities —the necessary evils of living day to day."

Seek Youthful Electoral Punch

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two years before the 1972 election, 10 young people are spearheading a drive to give the Now Generation some electoral clout.

They organized the Youth Citizenship Fund, Inc., six months ago and, armed with $40,000 in foundation funds, set out to register the country's 11 million 18-to-20 year olds. The Fund also is working to encourage 21-to-24 year olds to vote.

"Historically, 21-to-24 year olds have the poorest voting record of any age group in the country," said 23-year-old Charles Gonzales of New Iberia, La., a Fund staff member who dropped out of New Mexico's College of Santa Fe to lobby for the 18-year-old vote.

"We're trying to deal with the problems of apathy and disillusionment so many young people face with the electoral process," Gonzales said in an interview. "We want to impress kids with the idea that they have power if they vote together."

The Fund also has a problem in impressing many state legislatures that teen-agers should vote at all. When the Supreme Court ruled last December that 18-year olds have the right to vote in federal elections, it said the franchise in state and local elections remains within the jurisdiction of the individual states. So far, only nine states have dropped the voting age below 21.

The group is testing its two-pronged registration and education program in four areas which have already dropped the voting age from 21: Chicago, Louisville, Ky., Boston and Washington, D.C.

"In Kentucky," Gonzales said, "we're going to set up branch registration programs in each high school and college if the county clerks agree.

"And in Boston, the public school system has agreed to begin work on developing new curricula in the social studies program. Before the kids actually start registering, they'll be provided with citizenship education and registration material."

The Fund's advisory council includes John W. Gardner, chairman of Common Cause; Mrs. Bruce B. Benson, national president of the League of Women Voters; Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, president of San Francisco State College, and Dr. Margaret Mead, the anthropologist.

Financial assistance has been provided by John D. Rockefeller 3rd, the Stern Family Fund, the Eugene and Agnes Meyer Foundation, the Episcopal Church Center and Western Union. Each staff member receives a weekly salary of $125.

If the Fund's efforts to register the country's young people succeed, will they vote like their parents, as some experts have predicted?

"I don't think so," said Gonzales. "Our surveys show kids are interested in different issues: stopping pollution, ending the war and equal rights for all people.

"They place more emphasis on human concerns and they're not as oriented towards bureaucracy and production as their parents are."

Q — I would like to know why city or school officials allow the field adjacent to Smith-Cotton High School to be in such a dirty, unkempt condition? I would also like to know why the boys and girls who exercise on that field during school hours cannot be required to pick up the trash that they have thrown there? — F.K.

A — T.J. Norris, superintendant of Sedalia schools, said that several boys assigned to the high school through the Neighborhood Youth Corps clean up the field every afternoon. Norris said the school makes a serious attempt to keep the field clean. "As far as the boys and girls in physical education are concerned, we do not feel that all of them should have to police the area for the actions of a few," Norris said, adding that it is a difficult job to keep the area free of litter all the time.

Q — I would like to know whether a mobile home is taxed as personal property or real estate? We have a 55 by 20 foot mobile home, and have been taxed both ways. — A.O.

A — When Hot Line contacted the Pettis County assessor's office, it was learned that mobile homes are assessed as personal property, as stipulated by state law. The mobile home assessments are divided into five classes based on length, width and year and depreciation is a major factor. For example, a mobile home like yours made in 1971 would be assessed at $4,200, but a 1962 trailer of similar size and style would have an assessed valuation of only $600. There has been only one recent case of a mobile home being assessed as real estate and that was at the request of the owners who wanted the mobile home classified as real estate to qualify for a GI Mobile Home Loan. In that case, however, the wheels of the mobile home were removed and it was made a permanent fixture on the lot.

Q — I want to know why a sewer can't be put in to carry the water that comes from east Broadway down to 10th Street and runs like a river down the 700 block of east 10th? — L.A.

A — Robert Cunningham, city engineer, said such a sewer project was part of the city's master plan for storm sewer construction. He said, however, that the city presently has no funds for the project. He indicated the storm sewer planned for your area would run from Broadway to Centenial Park. The most current cost estimates for the 15-block project, run as high as $427,890.

Dog Teams Are Out

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (AP) — Snowmobiles have replaced dog teams in much of the Arctic area, the Northwest Territories Council said Wednesday, and it called on the territorial government to legislate safety regulations for the new mode of winter transportation.

"At least in the eastern Arctic, I don't believe there's a dog team left," said Bryan Pearson, councilman for that district. He added that accident rates are rising.

The resolution was approved unanimously.

Kidney Donation In Nick of Time

LA MESA, Calif. (AP) — The word from her doctors was grim. After living a year without kidneys, Zoe Carmen Hale was told she was dying of polycystic kidney disease at 55.

The twice-weekly treatment with an artificial kidney machine was growing ineffective, and nowhere could a donor with her tissue type be found.

Her husband, Perley Hale, a 62-year-old painter, said that after 15 operations in recent months "we were prepared for the worst."

"She decided to go to Las Vegas for our first real trip in two years," Hale said Thursday. "She thought it was her last trip, her final fling."

The couple left their suburban San Diego home by car Wednesday. About the same time, Gary Lee Goodrich, 15, was dying in Children's Hospital of injuries suffered Feb. 2 when a car knocked him from his bicycle.

Gary's mother agreed to allow his kidneys to be taken after his death, and at the San Diego Blood Bank, it was determined the boy's tissue matched that of Mrs. Hale.

A description of the Hale's car was radioed by the California Highway Patrol. In Baker, a town 45 miles from the Nevada line, Sheriff's Sgt. Gerald N. Hanna spotted the passing car Wednesday night and gave chase.

The Hales, under police escort, went on 90 miles farther to the Las Vegas airport and flew back to San Diego on an airliner. A few minutes after midnight, surgeons began the successful transplant in University Hospital.

"The whole thing was just fantastic," said Hale. "She's been my wife for 37 years but how can I tell you how wonderful this is?"

Aztec Temple Is Uncovered

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Part of what experts think may have been the largest Aztec temple built in the 14th century, has been discovered near the main square of Mexico City—a site where the Aztecs founded "La Gran Tenochtitlan"—Mexico City's predecessor—in 1312.

Workers who were building a parking lot near the National Palace told History and Anthropology Institute experts that they had discovered "some painted stones and a skull."

The archeologists went immediately to take a look and declared, after digging about 12 feet, that this was possibly the "Gran Teocalli Azteca," the largest Aztec temple.

"It is a great discovery," said Alfredo Melo, a member of the Institute in charge of restoring works.

"Even if it is not the major Aztec temple, the discovery means a great deal because it is the first time we have a sample of Aztec painting."

Melo worked carefully at a rectangular stone about three feet long and wide and two feet tall. It was painted on the sides, showing skulls and bones with a stone skull raised on the middle of the front side.

The exact shape or location of the Gran Teocalli has not yet been determined.

"It is not impossible to say if it is the great Aztec temple," Melo said. "It also may be the grave of an Aztec personality or a Tzompantli, the place where the Aztecs kept the skulls of their sacrificed victims."

The paintings on the stone apparently refer to funeral ceremonies and a series of painted skulls seems to indicate a specific direction.

"These paintings could be our best clue to further investigations, so we will aim our work to where the skulls lead," Melo added.

Vatican TV Station Plan Is Announced

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican plans to establish a television station to produce programs for transmission by satellite around the globe, Vatican sources said Saturday.

A studio at the headquarters of Vatican Radio has been set aside for television production, they said.

Sources said the Vatican also would record television programs to send to stations around the world, but there was no word on when programming would start or what type of programs would be produced.

Ruling out the use by the Vatican of television relay stations instead of satellites, the Rev. Antonio Stefanizzi, the radio's technical director, said: "No state would authorize another state, even the Vatican, to set up relays for foreign broadcasts."

Driver Smashes Car Onto Dance Floor

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — The party was in full swing at the Ponderosa Dance Hall at 3:45 a.m. Saturday morning and revelers failed to see the argument underway in the corner of the big hall.

A man stalked outside to his car, backed it up and then crashed it through the dance hall wall.

Witnesses said the man drove his car around the dance floor, smashing tables, chairs, a phone booth, the bar and destroying virtually every stick of furniture in the building. The driver also rammed the bandstand, sending instruments and musicians flying.

Witnesses said the man drove his car out the same hole he had made in the building and crashed into a parked car, breaking his leg.

Closer Look at Specialists

By PETER WEAVER

Ever wonder what duties are performed by ophthalmologists, optometrists and opticians and whether you should go to one or the other?

Although some of their duties overlap, each one of these eye specialists has a job that is quite different from the other. Let's take a look at what kind of job each does best:

— OPHTALMOLOGISTS: These are medical doctors with special eye training. Although they do refractory work (prescribing corrective lenses for mechanical eye defects), an ophthalmologist's real value is his or her ability to spot and cure some pathological problem in the eye or uncover some other medical problem revealed through the eye.

Ophthalmologist Carl Kupfer, director of the National Eye Institute, says eyes should get a medical examination early in life. Ideally, says Dr. Kupfer, the first exam should come soon after birth.

"Unfortunately," says Dr. John W. McTigue, eye surgeon and associate director of the International Eye Foundation, "it's difficult or impossible to get maternity hospital services of an ophthalmologist because there aren't enough to go around."

If there isn't any eye specialist in a hospital where a baby is born, someone familiar with eye exams should be asked to give the baby's eyes a careful look. Tiny tumors or cataracts can be spotted at this early stage and blindness or serious illness can be prevented.

The next most important period for an eye examination is when a child is around four years old. "At this stage," says Dr. McTigue, "you can pick up such things as crossed eye or lazy eye and make corrections before the pattern becomes rigid around age six."

After age four, if there's no medical problem, eye examinations by an ophthlmologist are recommended once every five years or so until middle age. Then, because of the increasing threat of glaucoma (major cause of blindness) and cataracts, exams should be scheduled every two years.

— OPTOMETRISTS: These professionals' skills are primarily mechanical, not medical. They get six years special training in the mechanics of vision and are also trained to recognize some pathological problems so patients can be referred to a doctor for treatment.

An optometrist's services are usually easier to arrange and are less expensive than those of an ophthalmologist. For correcting common nearsighted, farsighted or astigmatism eye defects, a qualified optometrist can do the necessary refractory work and will throw in a good, routine eye checkup to boot. Those with glasses should see an optometrist once a year.

Optometrists are leaders in the field of prescribing and fitting contact lenses. There are 11 schools of optometry (four in state and city universities) and all require formal training with contact lenses. You can get a good booklet which explains some of the advantages and disadvantages of contact lenses by writing: American Optometric Assn., 7000 Chippewa St., St. Louis, Mo. 63119.

— OPTICIANS: These are the fitters, adjusters and dispensers of eyeglasses. Although they can only dispense glasses on prescription from an ophthalmologist or optometrist, they can be an excellent source of product information.

For example, if you want to get "impact resistent" lenses — and you should — an optician can tell which kind of lens fits your needs. Plastic lenses are strong and half the weight of regular glass. However, they must be carefully cleaned (with water and detergent) because they scratch easily. They're not good for children. You can also get heat-tempered lenses which are eight times stronger than regular glass and cost only a few dollars more.

If you are interested in eye-care coverage to pay for examinations and glasses, write: Vision Institute of America, 9705 Highway 66, St. Louis, Mo. 63126. The plan costs an average of $2 a month ($3 for a family) and is available to groups in unions, companies, associations and some medical insurance plans.

Betterment Club Meets Thursday

HUGHESVILLE — The Hughesville Betterment Club met Thursday night to hear Frank Schwarzer, executive director of the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission, make a slide presentation on federal housing for senior citizens. Forty persons attended.

The club sponsored the program as a first step toward getting 50 Hughesville taxpayers to sign a petition for federal housing in the area.

The club authorized Mrs. Barbara Parkhurst, Louise Gray and Frankie Phillips to publish a monthly community betterment newsletter.

The club has designated $10 for the William Fry Medical Expense Account.

The club birthday and activities calendar sale has netted $98, according to Mrs. Frankie Phillips. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Olsen and Mrs. Jackie Butler co-ordinated the sale drive, she said.

The Drug Threat—1

More Teens Are Using Drugs

(Editor's Note: The traffic in drugs continues to be a problem in Sedalia and throughout the U.S. In order to make parents aware of the threat that drug abuse poses, Sheriff Emmett Fairfax has provided a 13-part series to The Democrat-Capital, to be published each Sunday, as a community service.)

Fairfax

A noted college professor in the east said recently, "the present generation of young people in our schools and colleges are the best informed, the most intelligent, and the most idealistic of any we have ever had in this country." He adds, "today's young people are more moral than their elders, 90 per cent of them." Only a small minority of young people are using and abusing drugs, but a minority still means a great number of young people, some quite young, and the number is evidently increasing rapidly.

This is a drug-obsessed society. In 1965 about 167,000,000 prescriptions were written by doctors for psychotropic drugs, the kind that change or affect mood or behavior. Adults were the main consumers, and so it can be assumed that adults themselves are high on the list of drug abusers.

If this is true, and national statistics seem to indicate it, the parents must look to themselves when trying to understand how the drug problem got its start in the first place. However, the purpose of this series is not to place blame, but rather to become familiar with terminology, learn more about the drug problem itself, and discuss how best to cope with it as parents.

It takes no giant intellect to realize that a parent cannot scare a child into doing "the right thing" with statements that are not factual. During these trying times most children, from their associations on the street, know more about drug use and terms than their parents. Therefore, what is discussed here about drugs will be an effort to meet and surpass the knowledge of children, so that parents may better impress them on the pitfalls of drug use.

Everyone knows, if he reads at all, the use and abuse of drugs that affect the mind is spreading across the country. Hundreds of thousands, maybe millions of young Americans are tasting, testing and experimenting or going further with marijuana, LSD, with "uppies" and "downies" ... pep pills and sedatives, with "Speed," and a few with heroin. So then, this series will examine such things as oral amphetamines, injected methamphetamine, barbiturates, heroin, marijuana and LSD — what they look like, the names they are called by the teens, where they are obtained, and how they are used, dangers of use, affects of use, reactions and so on.

For a majority of youngsters, an encounter with a mind-affecting drug seems only a flirtation with the user feeling sure he can take it or leave it. Some authorities say that such experimentation can amount to drug roulette; some young people happen to be particularly susceptible to some drugs and can become dependent and hurt badly by what they intended as an innocent adventure.

American society tolerates alcohol and nicotine, both of which are technically drugs, and millions of people abuse both of them. Many drugs are taken legitimately by prescription, but there is also a black market among some potent drugs.

Every year billions of sedative and pep pills are diverted to illegal use and misuse. This is enough pills per person per year to keep everyone in the United States awake and jumping for a week, and enough barbiturates to keep them in a stupor for a week, according to the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

(Next Sunday: Marijuana)

Company Is Fined In Pollution Case

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. has been fined $5,000 for dumping 750 tons of blast furnace waste into the Cuyahoga River in Cleveland last September.

J&L pleaded no contest Friday to five of 10 counts in U.S. District Court. J&L was charged by the federal government Dec. 30.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge James C. Conell found the firm guilty on five counts and dismissed the other five counts.

student reports

SWEET SPRINGS — Mrs. George Forbes, elementary school principal, reported that 19 teachers of the Sweet Springs R-7 School and one from Concordia Elementary School are enrolled in a series of five meetings on new math concepts held in the elementary building.

Delbert Lund of the State Department of Education, is the instructor. The classes are held from 4 to 6 p.m. every Thursday.

Antique Greeting Cards On Exhibit

MARSHALL — An exhibit of antique greeting cards from the Hallmark Historical Collection is on display here at the Missouri Valley College Student Center. Included are examples of handmade, comic and Victorian valentines, Easter cards, and Christmas cards of both European and American design.

The display is being circulated by the Association of College Unions — International and will be at the college through February 24. The Hallmark Historical Collection contains more than 55,000 antique greeting cards.

Two Hoovers Get Four-Year Terms

BALTIMORE (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover, 25, and Herbert Hoover, 30, were given suspended four-year prison terms on charges of attacking a long-haired college student last fall.

Herbert, of Hyattsville, and J. Edgar, of West River, work as carpenters and are in no way related to the FBI director or the former president.

The victim, Anthony Trachta, 21, was beaten in downtown Baltimore Oct. 13. The elder Hoover brother, who is a Vietnam war veteran, testified before sentencing Thursday that he becomes angry whenever he sees a man with long hair.

Chalmers Worried By Laos Invasion

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Dr. E. Laurence Chalmers Jr., University of Kansas chancellor, says he believes "we might as well close the campus" if large numbers of U.S. infantrymen invade Laos.

"The campus reaction would be difficult or worse than we experienced last spring with Cambodia and Kent State," Chalmers told about 50 members of the Kansas City Press Club Thursday night.

He said the incidents last year were poorly interpreted by the establishment news media and overemphasized.

The fire at the KU Student Union was depicted as the beginning of a revolution in Mid-America.

Instead, Chalmers suggested, it should have been described as a heroic fight by 300 students who saved thousands of dollars worth of art objects from a fire set by an unknown arsonist.

He said the insurance company, responding to the students' efforts, gave $5,000 to the school's endowment fund. That was 10 per cent of the value of the art objects.

The bombing of Summerfield Hall in December had a "silver lining," Chalmers said. It brought expressions of support from students who rejected the use of violence.

Also, it prompted an editorial in Vortex, a Lawrence underground newspaper, describing the bombing as harmful to the dissidents' aims.

Chalmers said that issue of Vortex did not sell as many copies as usual. "They discovered the tragedy of an unspectacular headline," he added.

The year of strife has actually increased participation of younger alumni in campus affairs, said Chalmers, while "many fair weather friends fell by the wayside."

Replying to a question, Chalmers acknowledged areas of disagreement between him and Gov. Robert Docking and some regents, but he said they were talking and working toward solutions.

The chancellor said "repressive laws, increased fees and more legislation" served not the great majority of fine students but those who sought to promote trouble and divisiveness.

Asked about the value of organized religion, Chalmers said many students favor a personal religion bound to humanism and deep concern for the problems of society.

"They are not active participants in organized religion," he said. "But there are far fewer agnostics and atheists on the campus today than when we were in school."

Chalmers urged his listeners to visit the campus.

"You will see lots of hair," he said. "You will see freaks, blacks, coeds and male students. But they all will welcome you, show their love for the campus, and I think that is an extraordinarily healthy situation."

Kenneth C. Royall was the last U.S. secretary of war.

Jobs For Objectors Are Few

WASHINGTON (AP) — Required to find jobs for increasing numbers of conscientious objectors, Selective Service is studying recommendations that some be considered automatically for Peace Corps, Teacher Corps or VISTA assignments.

The idea, along with others on public-service jobs for COs, emerged from a Selective Service task force which met quietly with antiwar draft-counseling organizations before making its recommendations.

Officials emphasize local draft boards may veto any request for Peace Corps, VISTA or Teacher Corps assignments as a substitute for military service.

There are some hurdles: Young men with antiwar convictions would have to first qualify for a special CO status for alternative civilian service. Others willing to take Army jobs as medics or other noncombattants couldn't apply.

Nevertheless, the suggestion is apparently under serious consideration by an agency which must find alternative service for 6,000 young men who meet the civilian alternative qualifications. And recommendations from Selective Service headquarters, officials say, usually exert strong influence on local boards.

As currently written, regulations permit COs in civil status to work only in hospitals or other selected nonprofit social agencies.

They also must earn pay comparable to lowest military ranks, be assigned beyond commuting distance from home, work where there are no qualified non-CO applicants yet still be considered for their own talents.

When the task force met with the draft counselors and conscientious-objector groups last fall, there were some stormy objections to all its recommendations.

Blacks said the Peace Corps substitute proposal would provide a haven for college-educated middle-class youths, leaving black COs from the ghettos to serve in menial "bedpan" jobs in the Army. Militant antiwar COs urged abolition of any required government service.

Firemen Too Late To Answer an Alarm

CLEVELAND (AP) — A fire at Cleveland Heights High School Friday caused the evacuation of 3,200 pupils and the summoning of 22 firemen manning three pumpers, two hook and ladder trucks and a rescue vehicle.

The firemen were too late. Several boys ran into the girls' rest room and doused a fire in an ashtray with a glass of water.

Seek to Keep Luce On Duty in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nineteen U.S. senators have asked Secretary of State William P. Rogers to help prevent the expulsion from South Vietnam of American newsman Don Luce, who exposed prison conditions there.

The South Vietnamese government refused to renew press credentials for Luce, a journalist for the Ecumenical News Service, after he wrote last October about "tiger cages" holding prisoners at the Con Son Island prison.

The letter to Rogers, drafted in the office of Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., said Luce's case illustrates "the rights of the American press in South Vietnam and, more generally, the right of the American people to be fully informed about events there."

Accident Picture Is Dark

Highway accidents in Pettis County during the first month of this year had a generally grim look when compared to the same period in 1970, according to figures released last week by the Missouri Highway Patrol.

The number of accidents jumped from 15 in January, 1970, to 27 this year. One person was killed last month while January 1970 was free of fatalities, and the number of persons injured also increased, from eight in January, 1970, to nine last month.

Property damage resulting from accidents last month more than doubled compared to losses sustained during the same time in 1970. The total rose from $6,505 in 1970 to $14,700 last month.

Statistics last month for other area counties include:

Benton: 16 accidents, no fatalities or injuries but $11,115 in property damage.

Cooper: 14 accidents, two fatalities, 13 injured, $16,835 in property damage.

Moniteau: 8 accidents, no fatalities or injuries, $4,185 in property damage.

Chosen Runnerup

COLUMBIA — Miss Mickey McGrath, daughter of Mrs. J.J. McGrath, West Walnut Hills, has been chosen as the second runner-up for the position as the Stephens College representative to the national Glamour magazine Top Ten Outstanding Young Women contest.

Miss McGrath was chosen on the basis of leadership in worthwhile extra-curricular activities on and off campus, as well as photogenic qualities.

Music Club Hears David Hollander

The Helen G. Steele Music Club heard David Hollander, pianist, in his first appearance as a soloist in Sedalia Wednesday. In January, 1970, he appeared as an accompanist for his father, Norman Hollander, noted cellist. Impressed with the talent and ability of the 24-year-old artist, Mrs. Al Miles, program chairman, made arrangements for his return to Sedalia to present a solo concert for the music club.

Hollander's program included the works of J.S. Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, and Chopin. Before playing the Beethoven set, Mr. Hollander discussed the great human qualities of Beethoven. "This year," he said "musicians all over the world are playing Beethoven music to commemorate the bi-centennial of the birth of the composer."

Hollander's superior talent was displayed through unfaltering technique, control of his instrument, great interpretive sensitivity, and his knowledge of the style of the period to which each composer contributed.

Presiding at the meeting, Mrs. Louis R. Hughes, first vice president, welcomed members and their guests. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hollander, parents of David Hollander.

Mrs. Firmin Boul, chairman of the day told of the artist's educational background and introduced him.

Estelle Parsons Has Theatrical Spirit

"It's easy to play a drunk if you're drunk," she recalls one epic jaunt with stage ultrarealism, "so I thought this time I'll just stop altogether."

Such determination is automatic with Miss Parsons, whose professional and private discipline lurks behind a facade of strange roles and rakish, rambling discourse.

Winner of a film Oscar for her flamboyant participation in "Bonnie and Clyde," nominated for a Broadway Tony by virtue of her bravura performance in a late Tennessee Williams fizzle, Miss Parsons is getting ready now for another visit to Broadway as the titlist of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little."

The drama, due at the Morosco Theater on March 4, is the followup script by Paul Zindel, who swept most of last season's prizes with "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds," which is still thriving Off-Broadway.

"I didn't get to be successful until very late," says the 43-year-old actress, "and I still have to prove myself on the stage. This one, I think, is going to change my luck."

Looking back over her legit credits prompts her to remark, "I often get good writers in their bad plays. My friends say sometimes I do it deliberately.

"And people always expect me to hate everything. What I usually have done is take the best of the worst that's been offered."

"I had a lot of bombs—but I was always encouraged," she sums up the struggle years which marked her shift from participant on NBC-TV's "Today" show to dramatic actress. "After the twins were born I went on the stage so I could work nights."

The event which laid the groundwork for her recent teetotal pledge was "The Threepenny Opera," in which she portrayed bibulous Mrs. Peachum.

"I used to put away a half pint of vodka before every performance to get into the spirit, you might say. But that's not method acting." On New Year's Eve she lined up a half-dozen Manhattans—"I made them myself because I was going to have to drink them," she cryptically amends.

Actress With Vision

Winner of a film Oscar for her work in "Bonnie and Clyde," Estelle Parsons is now preparing for another Broadway visit, in the title role of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little." When she first took up acting, she studied with Lee Strasberg of Actors Studio fame, and she remains a staunch admirer. "I hope I fulfill the vision of the theater he gave me," she says. (AP)

Gourmet Serves TV Humor

NEW YORK (AP) — Graham Kerr, the "Galloping Gourmet" of international television and radio, has hitched his culinary capers to a new career — designing "the logical kitchen."

After his 1,000th broadcast, he'll ditch the airwaves to further the kitchen idea for the rest of his life.

He has put his design stamp on knives, ovenware and rangeware, with the hope his ideas will help modernize the traditional kitchen. But it is only the beginning in his aim to make kitchen equipment safe, easy to clean, easy to stock, easy to store, and you shouldn't have to replace it "as a regular thing."

His displeasure with kitchens has been no secret to viewers in the years he has been cavorting on the television screen, cooking 1,000 dishes a year. Kitchen gadgets, utensils, knives, forks, refrigerators have been targets of his British humor.

In particular, impish sarcasm has been aimed at kitchen planning — "look now. I've got to run way over here for this" is a typical irritation that comes across good humoredly, but with a martyred smile.

"I've been close to the food business all my life and I've been talking about food since 1958 to people who should want good practical advice. I've been trying to attain perfection in the kitchen with equipment that doesn't permit me to do that. Even the new equipment I've designed has idiosyncrasies, and there is still no such thing as perfect equipment."

The rigid formula of traditional cookware in the modern kitchen he lays at the feet of the thoroughly inflexible maestro chef who has always done it that way.

"There is an awful lot of lip service paid to gourmet cooking. But I still separate the people who want to discuss status symbol pheasant-under-glass from those who want to eat pheasant that tastes delicious and smells good. I am a totally logical animal with no room for any emotion except pure enjoyment of food."

This attitude was furthered when he was chief catering officer to the New Zealand Air Force. He had arrived in that country, he says, "a classicly oriented, Escoffier-minded status-seeking gourmet, cooking the kind of stuff that couldn't be achieved with a minimum of equipment," but he soon became aware that New Zealand was a nonstatus-seeking society, a do-it-yourself country. In no time friends asked why he would call a sauce Bechamel instead of white sauce with bay leaf. It made sense. The idea for his radio and television program was born.

Born into the hotel business—his father was with Claridge's of London and later opened his own successful hotel — Kerr spent his early years in English kitchens.

Later, in the British army, he was one of two pan washers in a 1,500-man kitchen, and the utter futility "of scraping greasy bake-on dirt off metal pans, the kind now considered fashionable in domestic kitchens, "struck him as an exercise of sheer stupidity."

He believes people can enjoy cooking experiences more when they aren't afraid of the terminology—one reason he makes everything sound simple on his broadcast. His attempts at reassuring his watchers border on the hilarious as the banter is predicated on his efficiency or lack of it, so that the average cook can relate to his problems.

One recent program is an indication:

I need a big lid for this pot... Where is it? ... All studio directors are interested in these days is the commercial break ... We cannot do anything because I don't have a lid ... Oh, thanks, ducks (as he reaches offstage for the lid) ... We are now breaking into the soap opera so you'll see only 15 minutes of it ... Notice I'm keeping control of myself ... Season the range nicely (he says, as the pepper grinder misses the pot) ...

Kerr does all the cooking in his own home. "Trina doesn't like to cook or to eat," he says, "and I wouldn't let her cook anyway—she washes up."

In the Kitchen Business

Graham Kerr's emotions are ruled by "pure enjoyment of food," he says. The English-born "Galloping Gourmet" of international television and radio has been cooking 1,000 dishes a year for viewers, showing obvious though good-humored irritation with conventional equipment. Now, after his 1,000th broadcast — has has about 300 to go — he plans to dedicate himself to a new career: designing "the logical kitchen." (AP)

The Computer Protects Credit Card Carriers

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Credit cards are the order of the day. It's a rare wallet that bulges with cash any more.

"Chances are the wallets that do," said William H. Blair, president of Hot-Line, "usually belong to women."

Blair's firm is a charge card service that keeps computerized records of all credit cards of its customers for the purpose of preventing their use by thieves and pickpockets.

According to Blair, many women don't like to carry credit cards because they're afraid of purse snatching.

"They would rather lose the cash because some way they'll make up the deficit with no one the wiser. But when they lose a credit card they have to admit it to their husbands and endure a lecture on female carelessness."

Blair's firm helps keep peace in the household. One phone call reporting lost credit cards takes care of the whole matter. Use of the cards by an unauthorized person, no matter how many different ones are lost, is stopped immediately. And within a week the cards themselves are reissued to the owners.

Set up to prevent thieves from running up huge bills on lost or stolen credit cards, Hot Line works like this:

A customer, when she joins, lists the numbers of all her cards. She is given a warning card to carry that tells a thief that he is running a serious risk of being caught if he tries to use the credit cards. One phone call sends the company's 360 computers into action and written notification goes out pronto to the card issuers.

"Each customer is issued $2,500 in insurance in the event she is not aware of the loss and charges have been made against her accounts," Blair said.

The company also records passport numbers and other statistics people may carry and lose.

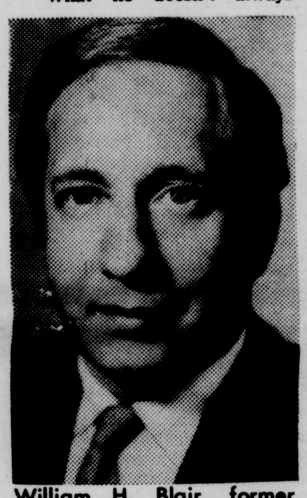
"We use Social Security numbers as a secondary check," Blair added. "You can run into people with the same name and even with the same address. So it's a safer way to check identity."

Blair is enamored of his new computer service. "It's infallible," he enthused. "It's great."

In their work with the New York City Police Department, Blair said they have discovered that more credit cards are stolen on Friday than any other day of the week — chiefly from men.

"A tired business felow," he said, "visits his local cocktail lounge at the end of a long week's work. He becomes careless. And when he gets home, he discovers his card wallet is missing.

"What he doesn't always realize is that although HE isn't working over the weekend, the thief is — and has from Saturday until Monday to spend away his ill-gotten gains. A quick call to us puts a spike in the wheel of the modern-day Fagins."



William H. Blair, former Wall Street specialist, president of Hot-Line Credit Cards, Inc.

Blair had some interesting observations to make on the credit card scene today.

He believes that the bank cards, such as BankAmericard and Master Charge are becoming more accepted than other cards because the restaurant or travel agent who accepts them doesn't have to send in his slips, pay about a 7 per cent charge and hope that he'll collect the money 20 days later.

"The banks charge an average of 4 per cent," he said. "And you can take your slips there just like a deposit and in 24 hours the money is in your account."

Theft has become far more sophisticated than it was in the days of Oliver Twist. And Blair goes after today's Fagins with a delighted gleam in his eye.

A Yale graduate who raises dogs as a hobby, Bill Blair enjoys his job. "It's like being a detective — at much better pay," he quipped.

Hairdos to Compliment Couture

By LUCIE NOEL
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — The hairdos Parisian stylists dreamed up to accompany the spring couture collections formed part of the image of the '30s and '40s the couturiers sought. But some of these flashbacks do not prove to be the happiest solution.

Dior's daytime mode has shoulder-length hair curled to frame the face. His evening fare calls for scooping the hair into a tight little brioche bun on the crown of the head.

Yves Saint Laurent's nostalgia features corkscrew curls, reminiscent of Piaf, and also looks recalling Carole Lombard and Marlene Dietrich in "The Blue Angel."

At Givenchy, Alexandre brushes back the shoulder-length, softly curled tresses. The result is feminine, flattering and free.

Carita for Jean Patou trims the hair short and smooth and brushes it from back to front. The brow is covered. In the evening his recommendation is a small knot atop the head.

He also does Ungaro's girls, favoring for daytime small heads with pomaded hair a la Valentino. Come evening, his wigs feature short, petal-cut erratic strands.

Luc Traibeau shows wigs in four styles and eleven shades, for summer vacations. They go swimming, take shampoos and dry quickly.

Hair Stylists Note Beauty Salon Week

If the men in the community seem to notice a difference in the women's looks this week, it's probably due to the National Hairdressing and Cosmetologist Association members in Sedalia who are noting National Beauty Salon week today through Saturday.

"Hair is in. Make it beautiful," is the theme of this year's beauty salon week.

There is a fancy free look in hair styles for the coming season according to a collection of new styles unveiled by the official Hair Fashion Committee of the National Hairdressing and Cosmetologist Association. Whether you prefer a look of classic chic or one of mystic romance, the choice is yours.

Just as new spring clothes show off the form and curve of the body, new hair styles show off the curves of the head with crown hair combed softly to follow head contours.

Hair lengths are generally shorter for spring. Whenever length adjustments are desired for variations with skirt and pant lengths, hair pieces are used.

In addition to promoting good grooming and new styling for spring, the members of some of the local beauty salons are offering free services to area nursing homes.

Campbell's Rest Home, Rest Haven Nursing Home, Burt Manor Nursing Home and Fairview Nursing Home will all be visited by the beauticians. Residents will be given haircuts, styles and permanents free of charge as part of the beauticians efforts to contribute to their community.

Also to be included in the visits will be Kidwell Nursing Home, Versailles. This is the eighth year that members of the Sedalia School of Hairdressing and their director Mrs. Fran Branson have visited the home.

Participating in the services this year will be: Stylarama, Sedalia School of Hairdressing, Mall Beauty Salon, Mr. John, Trudy's Fashion Boutique, and A&B Beauty Salon.

Other activities during the week will include a workshop for beauticians today on spring trends and new styling and coloring techniques. Personal grooming courses have also been arranged for community church youth groups and 4-H groups.

The local cosmetology association will also be offering their services to the children of State School No. 21 for the Retarded so they can be ready for their annual Valentine Party.

Hair Is In

Even the youngest ladies are anxious to be in the hair fashion know for spring. Miss Cynthia Lou Jones, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Jerry N. Jones, 2605 Southwest Boulevard, waits patiently for her hair to dry so she can see her new spring hairdo.

Make It Beautiful

Mrs. Helene Wolf, stylist, combs out Cindy's hair in one of the new curved spring styles. Styles are generally shorter this spring and curved to show off the curves of the head with crown hair combed softly to follow head contours.

U.S. Stenos Like British Bosses

By JOYCE GABRIEL

NEW YORK — (NEA) — In 1607, John Smith founded Jamestown, the first successful British colony in America. The colony prospered, expanded and developed into a nation. Over three centuries later, the colonists' descendants are returning to England.

The descendants are female. They are secretaries and they're not going back to the Mother Country to colonize. They are going back to work, temporarily, in London.

Two companies, Olsten and Western Girl Inc., have programs for American girls interested in working in London on a temporary basis. The girls must be skilled typists (there is a 60-word-per-minute minimum) and skilled stenographers (100 words per minute minimum) in order to qualify.

According to Gus Williams at Western, there is a dearth of qualified secretaries in London, especially during the months from May to October, when many girls are "on holiday." As solution to the problem, the two firms recruit American girls interested in traveling to work in London.

The girls come from all over the country — anywhere from Shawnee Mission, Kan., to New York City, N.Y. — and they are guaranteed temporary jobs in London before they arrive there.

Both companies take care of all the arrangements for their girls: They provide the all-important temporary work visas, line up jobs, search out "flats" and even find roommates for the girls.

The job candidates pay their own fare over and, if they want to travel around Europe while based in London, they pay pay their own expenses. (The average wage for a typist-stenographer in London is $48 a week, which takes care of "food, shelter and clothing," as one of the girls put it, and not much else.)

The girls don't go there to get rich, however. Most go because they've never been to London and want a new experience.

"I had," said Michelle Whelan, a New Jersey girl who worked for Olsten in London, "reached the decision that I was in a rut. I was quite bored with my life but didn't know how to make it more exciting. I decided a new job might be the answer and when I saw the ads for secretarial jobs in London, I decided to give it a try."

Alice Kane, who worked for Western in London in 1969, wanted to "meet people from a different country." She even met someone who spoke a foreign language.

"Meeting someone who spoke Cockney English was an embarrassing experience," she said. "It was as if he was speaking a different language. I had visited Hyde Park the day before and he asked me, 'What did you think of the like?' I couldn't figure out what 'the like' was — I kept thinking of the soft drink. He was really asking me about the 'lake' but I just couldn't figure it out at the time."

Spelling also proved to be a problem. "Check" is spelled "cheque" and "practice" is spelled "practise."

"Sometimes my boss would look at a letter," said Alice, "and, wow, he couldn't believe the spelling. He just didn't realize there were so many differences in the British and American languages.

"And I had real trouble ordering lunch. I was always saying lettuce and tomato. And everyone would laugh. Finally, I started saying 'tomahto.'"

Once Alice got back to the States, she had the language problem in reverse. "Do you know what it's like to go into a store and ask for 'crisps' when what you want are potato chips?" she asked.

The cultural differences have their advantages, however. Gus Williams explained that American girls are "glamorous" to British men because they're different. "They're more outgoing and gregarious," he said. "They don't have the inhibitions that some of the British girls do. And they always bring their bosses coffee."

Travel is relatively inexpensive and some of the girls took weekend jaunts to Ireland, Scotland, Denmark and France.

"Living in London and going to all those places is like living in New York and going to Pennsylvania for the weekend," one girl said.

Most of the girls go to London for a few months (they have only temporary visas) and then come back to the States. But some have been known to reapply for the program, others have gotten permanent jobs in London and, oh, yes, some (about 2 per cent) have married Englishmen and started some colonizing of their own.

Even Twain Liked Bermuda

BERMUDA — (NEA) — When Mark Twain sailed on the first luxury cruise ship to Bermuda, he thought he would hate it.

What could there be out in the middle of the Atlantic except fish and water? And Twain had seen plenty of both growing up on the banks of the Mississippi.

He was surprised. The island delighted him. That was back in 1867 and although since Twain's first visit the island has changed and the tourist trade has blossomed, Bermuda still surprises people.

There is a tendency to group Bermuda with the Bahamas or "those islands in the Caribbean," but it is miles away from them, literally and figuratively. The island is 600 miles off the coast of South Carolina, not south of Florida, as the other islands are. The climate is cooler. A tourist in Bermuda in December has need of a coat, not a bathing suit. And the atmosphere there is more New England proper than tropical paradise. That is because Bermuda is Britain's oldest colony and although she has political autonomy, culturally she is very much tied to the mother country.

The sand on the beaches really is pink and the Atlantic sparkles turquoise blue in the semi-tropical sun, but one is more likely to see an Anglo-Saxon in business suit on motorbike than "qaint natives" in island garb.

And the people who go to Bermuda are looking for relaxation, not neon lights. Gambling casinos, which flourish in other vacation spots, are outlawed here. On the island, golf and water sports are the main attractions.

Bermuda is a mini-world where narrow, twisting roads slice across the island. Only small foreign cars and motorbikes are used and the speed limit is 20 miles per hour. Cars were not even permitted on the island until after World War II and now residents are limited, by law, to one car per family.

Fairyland houses painted and framed by hibiscus, bougainvillaea and oleander perch on hills overlooking the water. Palm and paw paw trees fringe the roadways.

In Hamilton, stores like Trimingham's and Cooper's line Front Street, offering bargains in china, linen, perfume and sweaters. Liquor stores attract tourists with their wholesale prices. And across the street from the shopping district is the harbor where cruise ships dock and fishing boats and pleasure craft lay at anchor.

In St. George, Bermuda's original capital, streets that are no more than alleys wind their way from a cobbled square where reconstructed stocks and pillories are monuments to 17th century British rule.

In a recession economy, Bermuda still maintains its tourist trade. One reason is that the island is close to the States, making travel there relatively inexpensive (airlines such as Eastern have roundtrip flights for less than $125 from New Hork). The undertones of racial tension on islands in the Bahamas and the Caribbean also boost Bermuda's trade, since black-white relations there are relatively good.

"We had a demonstration a few years back," one Bermudian explained. "Blacks were not allowed to sit in the same seats as whites in the movie theaters and they were protesting. The day after the protest, the government passed a law barring all discrimination."

Tourists can choose accommodations ranging from $45-a-day rooms at a luxury hotel like the Princess in Hamilton to a $12-a-day guest house on the island.

The Princess, bought by billionaire D.K. Ludwig in 1959, houses 1,000 guests at peak season (from June to September) and has a staff of 600 to service their needs. It has special facilities to house convention groups since Bermuda's winters are too cold for tourist trade and rates are cut to lure large groups to the island.

Being a mini-world, Bermuda is a nice place to visit (the pace is relaxed and the scenery intoxicating) but living there year-'round could get confining.

Hotel workers, many of whom are from Germany, Italy and Holland, say they need to "get away" every few months to find some excitement.

Even Twain, who liked the island so much he started his very own club there, The Angel Fish, never stayed more than a vacation.

Bill For the Public

State Sen. Donald L. Manford, a suburban Kansas City Democrat, has introduced a bill to insure the public's access to the conduct of its business.

The bill, Senate Bill No. 60, would require that all meetings of public bodies be open to all citizens of the state. This would cover agencies, boards, bureaus, commissions, departments and divisions of the state, any county or school district and political subdivisions.

No state law now requires open meetings. The only stipulation is that official records of public bodies be available for public inspection. This means in many cases that the public is privy only to accomplished facts, without being cut in on the often secretive deliberations that go on behind the scenes, which is where the real business of government is so often transacted.

Reasonable provisions for closed, executive sessions of public bodies are included in Senator Manford's bill, and cover such areas as personnel matters, consultations with attorneys involving pending lawsuits in which the public body is involved as a party, and matters relating to the purchase or sale of property that might be jeopardized by publicity.

We support Senator Manford's bill, as should all Missourians who believe that public business should be transacted in public.

Missouri's once rich expanse of native prairie is now little more than a memory. But there are indications, according to the state Department of Conservation, that native prairie grasses may make a comeback.

The University of Missouri and the Soil Conservation Service are working with such native prairie grasses as bluestems, Indian and switchgrass. Such grasses are nutritive, require little care and soil treatment and are drought resistant. Some grasses put out roots up to 14 feet long to tap deep moisture levels.

In addition, the prairie is a rich ecological system, housing a variety of plant and animal life, including the nearly extinct prairie chicken. Visit the Missouri Prairie Foundation's Friendly Prairie south of Sedalia sometime to learn more about these unique worlds.

If just some of the former glory of Missouri's prairies could be restored by enlightened cattlemen, the state would be the richer for it.

ICC Examiner Claims Innocence

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The Interstate Commerce Commission, already hounded by scandal, has now brought charges of gift-taking, disobedience and immoral conduct against a veteran hearing examiner.

A commission spokesman, in confirming the unannounced charges against Bernard Hasson, said Hasson is fighting the charges. It will be up to the Civil Service Commission to resolve them.

Jack Anderson

As a hearing examiner, the $31,000-a-year Hasson is much like an independent judge. By law he is virtually free of ICC disciplinary powers. Only the Civil Service can discipline him.

Hasson's woes stem from a motor carrier hearing in 1968-69. "He was told," said the spokesman, "what our thoughts were on the canons of conduct."

But Hasson, so the charges say, disobeyed the order. He allegedly accepted "excessive gratuities" mainly meals, drinks, and entertainment. In 1970, the ICC formally but confidentially proposed that Hasson resign as a hearing examiner.

Hasson, however, contends that he hasn't done anything wrong, certainly nothing that other ICC officials haven't done without getting punished.

Hasson Might Talk

Now, some of the commissioners want to let the case drop. They fear that the experienced Hasson will drag out the same sort of high jinks by commissioners themselves that they have brought against Hasson. This would show that Hasson is being given unequal treatment.

Hasson's many friends at the ICC say he is being persecuted to pacify ICC critics who have accused the ICC of inefficiency and coddling the railroads and truckers.

We couldn't reach Hasson despite more than a dozen phone calls. His lawyer, Sheldon Cohen, declined all comment on the case.

Meanwhile, we have uncovered other scandals hushed up by the ICC. In Atlanta, regional director Ray Atherton has accepted a $7,000 loan arranged for him by a trucker.

Still a new case has now come to light in which seven ICC employes "moonlighted" for a special service which keeps track of cases filed at the ICC for firms doing business with the ICC.

The highest ranking of the seven is Donald Simmons, chief report writer for the ICC's suspension board. The ICC has quietly proposed that he leave the ICC, but he also has demanded a hearing.

Simmons told us he had worked for $4 an hour for the special "watch service" to supplement his income. But he denied any conflict whatever.

Don Norman Associates, which has provided the service, has now lost the privileges Norman held for 18 years to a desk, a phone and his own duplication machines at the ICC. Norman also denied wrongdoing and told us he is asking the ICC to reconsider the withdrawal of his privileges.

Of the other six men in the case, four have been reprimanded and two others are resisting pressure to resign. The ICC confirmed the charges but declined to make the records of them public.

Students and Agnew

Vice President Spiro Agnew, in a quiet move to improve his image with students, invited 14 science students from the Washington area to accompany him to the Apollo 14 launching at Cape Kennedy.

Six of the students were invited from Washington's black universities and colleges. One of the black guests, Sam Sullivan of Howard University, is writing his Ph.D. thesis on moon samplings.

Throughout the flight to Florida aboard Air Force Two, Agnew visited with the students several times. He confessed to a physics major that physics had been his worst subject. He predicted that all combat troops would be out of Vietnam within a year and talked about how President Nixon had increased the role of the V.P.

Once Agnew was summoned to the phone. The trouble with being vice president, he complained, was that he couldn't get away from the phone even in the air.

Donald Wallroth of George Washington University suggested that the supersonic transport plane would save the vice president's time. Agnew said he liked to have travel time to get briefed on the places he was visiting. He spoke at length about the problem of giving offense in foreign countries. Noticing that one student had his legs crossed, the vice president said this would be considered an insult in some countries.

At the end of the trip, Agnew invited the students to join him again to watch the launch to Mars. He promised he would be present if he "had to come on a cane."

Anti-Brandt Bloc

Some of the principal architects of U.S. policy toward Europe are troubled over West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's flirtation with the Kremlin.

They include such big guns as the state Department's ex-secretary Dean Acheson, ex-undersecretary George Ball, ex-ambassador to Bonn John J. McCloy and Gen. Lucius Clay, who played a big role in shaping postwar Germany and who now are working behind the scenes to discourage a German East-West reconciliation.

In the backrooms of Washington, they are pressing the same views that publisher Axel Springer has been raising in Germany. The powerful publishing tycoon has been crying out against the Kremlin's "dangerous deceit" and Brandt's "dangerous illusion."

Method in Humor

Even the National Safety Council sometimes gets tired of harping on the tragic side of driving. It has discovered there is humor on the highways, too, as evidenced by a roundup of funny signs published in a recent issue of the council's magazine "Traffic Safety."

For instance, on one side of a signboard on an Ohio secondary road the message says: "Road Closed — Do Not Enter." The other side reads: "Welcome Back, Stupid!"

On the outskirts of a small town in Pushmataha County, Okla., a sign warns: "Slow. No Hospital."

When nobody paid any attention to a 10 m.p.h. speed limit sign in a mobile park in Oxnard, Calif., the manager revised the sign slightly to get better results. Catching the eye of motorists was this new restriction: "Speed Limit 9½ M.P.H."

And down in Atlanta, Ga., there's a sign that puts it in the vernacular: "No U-all Turn."

Russians Snag W. Berlin Talks

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The continuing four-power talks on easing conditions for West Berlin have soured badly

The newest talks at the ambassadorial level, 14th in a series that began last March, are taking place without the customary preparation provided by a prior meeting of middle echelon experts. The three Western powers—the United States, France and Britain—told Moscow they could see no point in the detailed preparatory effort.

The reasons are basically two. The West is gravely annoyed that three times since late November the East Germans have enforced traffic slowdowns up to 15 hours on the vital highway lifelines to Berlin from West Germany. The most recent disruption lasted five days.

We are also upset at what one spokesman here calls the "sterile, arid" character of recent four-power conversations. They are going nowhere, and the indications are this hollow routine may mark the talks for at least the next two or three months.

Furthermore, officials here say the Soviet Union has hardened rather than softened its demands relating to West Berlin. These demands are a proposal that West Berlin sever all political links with West Germany. The Soviet Union and West Germany go even further to insist that nothing "provocative' 'toward the Communist world be uttered in West Berlin—and they want to define what is provocative.

Western sources say the Reds' tolerance levels evidently are being lowered. The recent three Berlin access traffic disruptions were touched off by West German political activity in that city of a minor order that caused no trouble four years ago.

No one is quite sure whether Russia will in time soften its totally unacceptable position. Some diplomats feel the Kremlin is just testing Western resolves and will ultimately shift tone. A West German view is that this spring's Communist party congress in the Soviet Union is a watershed point, and that Moscow may be more flexible after it is over.

Meantime, the disruptions in traffic and the emptiness of the talk are making life hard for West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Under pressure last year from domestic German opposition which charged that he gave much and got little when he signed a Polish-German border settlement and renunciation-of-force treaties with Moscow and Warsaw, Brandt had to link ratification of those pacts with progress in the Berlin talks.

When fresh rumors spread in early winter that he might weaken this link, Brandt in a major speech said there is an "unshakable connection" between ratification and the Berlin conversations.

Furthermore, the late January traffic slowdown so magnified West German irritation that a Brandt spokesman threatened "countermeasures" if any further interruptions occur.

Still, the only really effective counterstroke would be to break the nearly 20-year-old trade pact Bonn has with East Germany. The interzonal trade flow is considered vital to East Germany's economy. In a similar crunch years ago, Red leaders buckled down when a breakoff was threatened.

Caught in the tension-easing mood of his "eastern policy," Brandt seems unlikely to invoke this stiff course. For the same reason, he won't let the Western Three suspend the Berlin talks, no matter how long they drag on in futility.

Brandt faces three provincial legislative elections very soon, including West Berlin (which has status as a state) on March 14. These will not be clean-cut referendums on his "Ostpolitik," since he has home-front trouble on inflation, education, health and other issues, But, obviously, reverses would not do his eastern policy any good.

What Brandt began as a hopeful exploration bent toward lessened tensions has today trapped him in serious difficulties which the Reds may try to exploit.

It is a wise bridge player who knows his partner and both his opponents.

West opened the four of hearts against the rather normal three no-trump contract and South proceeded to rise with dummy's jack.

East played the five spot and South proceeded to overtake dummy's jack with the king. Then he started on the diamond suit.

West had to take the second diamond and then West went into communion with nature to decide on his next play.

The ordinary player would simply play a second heart and hope for the best, but West wasn't an ordinary player. He was Bill Grieve of New York who played for the United States in the 1960 World's Championships. East was George Rapee one of the game's best. Bill and George played together on the team that tied for the championship at this year's fall nationals.

South was that well-known expert Mr. Nameless. It is not the policy of this department to give the names of victims.

Bill remembered that George had played the five of hearts at trick one and that the five was the lowest heart missing. Would he had played it if he held four hearts? Very unlikely, thought Bill.

Then why did good old nameless waste his king of hearts? Because he was afraid of some other suit. Bill knew what the suit had to be. He led the spade king, just so that George would know what was going on. Then the deuce of spades to the ace and the defense had four spade tricks.

Different Valentines

The woman looked o'er Valentines
For something kids could take Apart and put together —
Fancy Valentines to make,
But those she found were simple,
Something easily pushed out,
There were no lace or roses,
Not anywhere about,
No need to use scissors,
No need to paste or glue,
"Today's children can't be creative,
"There is nothing they can do."
I listened to her grumble
And I couldn't help but smile,
I'm afraid her age was showing,
Lace has long been out of style
For the Valentines children
To cut out and paste with lace
Of paper, with some posies
No longer have a place,
"There is nothing left for children,
"To give them any fun,
"To really be creative,
"The work for them is done."
But the real creative children
Can just be left alone
Without the lace and flowers and stuff
They come up with their own,
A crayon and some paper
They really need no more,
But still, like most kids used to do,
They'll buy them at the store
And they'll be just as happy
With a name in childish scrawl
When the box at school is opened
With bought Valentines for all,
There were always some handsome ones
With lace and flowers and such
But the simple ones I gave I bought,
And liked them very much,
I think they cost a penny
And I thought that they were fine
And I loved each one that I received,
They were boughten — just like mine,
Of course some of them did have lace
Some cupids and a rhyme,
I loved them all, for Valentine's Day
Was a very special time.

WASHINGTON — The Kennedys are back in the White House. This time the late president and his wife Jacqueline will adorn the walls in portraiture.

There were several special showings of the portraits by artist Aaron Shikler before they were placed on public view. The paintings had to be accepted by the White House Historical Society. Members of the Kennedy family and a few intimate friends viewed the paintings at the National Gallery of Art.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and her two children, Caroline and John Kennedy, accepted President and Mrs. Nixon's recent invitation for dinner and to see the paintings. This was a pleasant occasion and their first visit to the White House since they left it in 1963. They also saw the Jacqueline Kennedy Rose Garden, named for her by Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, for the first time.

The portraits will always be controversial, but no one will deny that they are good likenesses of the handsome, youthful president and his beautiful first lady.

The portrait of the late president, to this viewer, looks more like his brother Bobby in a characteristic pose than like Jack.

As for Jacqueline, the artist caught the phantom look so typical of her. The gown she wears appear to be a hostess gown in a delicate mauve shade. It accentuates her height. Her long slender hands with firm stiff fingers do not suggest a relaxed pose.

The former president's portrait hangs in the Green Room. It is very large. His wife's portrait hangs on the ground floor wall with other presidential wives. The plaque reads "Mrs. John Fitzgerald Kennedy."

These are the portraits every White House visitor will want to see. They are interesting poses. They are good paintings of two good-looking persons. They are unusual, but John and Jacqueline Kennedy were unusual persons.

Senators Charles H. Percy and Adlai Stevenson III and the 24 Illinois representatives sponsored the world premier of the David L. Wolper television documentary film, "They've Killed President Lincoln," at Ford's Theater recently. A champagne reception for the specially invited guests followed the film showing.

The Press Club of Washington (still mostly women) held a sparkling give-and-take briefing with three new women members of Congress. Representatives Bella Abzug (D-N.Y.), Ella Grasso (D-Conn.) and Louise Hicks (D-Mass.) are destined to do more than add colorful House dresses to the 92nd Congress. There are 12 women representatives — nine democrats, three republicans. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me.) is the only woman senator.

According to D.C. superintendent of schools Hugh Scott, there are an estimated 2,000 children unable to attend school during the bitter cold weather here because they have no warm clothing. A disgrace for the nation's capital.

Luckily Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, Jr., wife of a D.C. commissioner, and Mrs. Robert Finch, wife of the presidential adviser, are again heading a "Clothing for Children" drive. Last year with the help of Station WTOP they collected $15,000 for new clothing and new shoes plus 15 tons of clean used clothing.

Democrat Pickups

Several women went out to eat and put their purses on the floor beside them. When they were about ready to leave, one of them reached down, picked up the purse between her and the woman beside her, and opened it.

Suddenly she realized that the things in the purse didn't look familiar, here was a small billfold while her's was long, and she wondered how that billfold got in there before she realized that it wasn't her purse at all. No wonder nothing in it looked familiar. H.L.

Power Tools Are a Must

By MR. FIX

Portable power tools have become so common, so relatively inexpensive and so versatile that they belong in every home owner's collection of basic equipment.

One especially is the electric drill. It is generally the first power tool anyone buys. Not only is it good for drilling holes but with added attachments can be used for grinding, polishing, sanding and buffing.

The quarter-inch drill, one that will take drill bits up to a quarter-inch in diameter, has been the most common and popular. There has been an increase in popularity of the $\frac{3}{8}$-inch drill since advances in designing and new electrical motors have gotten the larger drill to a size and weight that makes it an easier tool to handle.

The larger size means more versatility, the ability to handle larger jobs and more muscle on smaller ones.

While you are at it, investigate drills with added features. More than one speed will make the tool more useful since the slower speed combined with the correct drill bits or attachments allows you to drill in concrete, or be used as a screw driver. Some drills have continuously variable speeds which makes them even more versatile.

You may want to add attachments later but consider the efficiency of getting everything at once. Most companies package drill and the most popular attachments neatly in a metal box at a price that may be more attractive than purchasing attachments separately. And if you buy them all at once they are there when you need them and you will find uses for them very quickly.

The sanding disc is perhaps the most popular attachment for an electric drill. If you do much furniture refinishing, however, you will find that the rotary motion of the disc can leave unattractive marks unless you work very carefully.

If you do much sanding, consider the portable electric sander. These offer sanding action in a straight line and are quite a work-saver in smoothing and refinishing jobs. A variety of grits is available in the sandpaper that is provided for them.

There are saw attachments for electric drills but again, if your cutting chores are more than once in a lifetime, you may find the drill and attachment a cumbersome affair and not very efficient.

If you are going into heavy duty cutting a portable electric saw with a circular blade is the tool for you. If you plan to do any remodeling or refinishing of a basement or an attic an electric saw will pay for itself in saved time.

For many, however, heavy-duty cutting may not be a problem. In this case consider the portable electric jig saw. Such a saw is versatile, easy to use, will cut metal and plastics as well as wood and can be used for sawing curves as well as straight lines.

An assortment of blades gives you the ability to go through different materials. These are easily changed. You can even do a little heavy-duty cutting since most models will go through a two-by-four.

Palmer Leads Desert Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, relaxed and joking, swept into sole control of first place in the fourth round of the Bob Hope Desert golf classic Saturday while Vice President Spiro Agnew did it again.

Palmer, playing a prudent two holes back of the Vice President, cut out a four-under par 68 on the Bermuda Dunes Country Club course. That gave him a 72-hole total of 272, or 16-under-par in this, the only event on the pro tour that stretches to 90 holes.

After four rounds, which would give him a victory in any other tournament, the dynamic golf master held a three-stroke lead in quest of his first victory in more than 14 months.

But the nation's Vice President inadvertantly stole the show again, clipping three spectators with shots as he tried to get off the first tee. Last year, he hit pro partner Doug Sanders in the back of the head with an errant shot in this tournament.

This time it was the gallery which took the pounding.

The Vice President, who came West to inspect an earthquake disaster area and stayed to create his own little center of consternation, hit his tee shot off the toe of his club and the ball flashed into the tightly-packed gallery.

It struck G.L. Decker, 66, of Salem, Ore., on the arm and glanced off the arm of Decker's wife.

Agnew apologized to the woman, kissed her on the arm, and returned to the tee.

And he did the same thing again. This time the ball smashed into the left ankle of Mrs. Jacqueline Woods, 35, of Chatsworth, Calif. She received emergency first aid and was taken to a hospital for X-rays which indicated no fracture.

The Vice President, obviously shaken, dropped his driver after the second shot, ignored the gallery's pleas to try it again, jumped in a golf cart and sped down the fairway before continuing play.

Hope, playing in the same foursome with the Vice President, Sanders again and Willie Mays, later quipped to Agnew:

"When Alan Shepard played (golf) on the moon, I felt they finally found a place safe enough for you to play."

Palmer, who stopped several times to pose with spectators for amateur photographers hugged the ladies and joked with the men as he advanced to his three stroke lead over former PGA champ Ray Floyd and Bert Yancey.

Floyd shot a 70 at Bermuda Dunes while Yancey carded a sparkling 66 in the 90-degree heat at Tamarisk Country Club.

Big Jim Wiechers who shared the third-round lead with Palmer, slipped to a 73 for 277 and was tied for fourth with veteran Bob Rosburg. Rosburg had a 67 at Indian Wells.

Four desert courses are used in this $140,000 tournament, with the final Sunday at Bermuda Dunes for the $28,000 first prize after the cut to the low 70 and ties.

The 41-year-old Palmer continued his mastery of the par 5 holes on the courses being used in this tournament. He chipped to within 2½ for a bird on the final hole.

That put him 14-under-par for the 16 par five holes he has played.

"That's a lot different than the way I've been playing the par 5's in the last few months."

Bad Golf Shots Redden Agnew

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, known for his errant shots in golf and tennis, hit three spectators as he attempted to tee off on the first hole at the Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament Saturday.

One, a woman, was treated at a hospital for a bruised left ankle.

Teeing off last in a foursome that included Doug Sanders, whom Agnew hit in the head with a shot in this tournament last year, Agnew struck the ball off the toe of his club, a driver. It flew to the right into the stands where some of the crowd of 20,000 was watching and struck G.L. Decker, 66, of Salem, Ore., on the forearm and richocheted against the arm of his wife.

Agnew apologized, stepped once more to the tee and hit a similar shot into the crowd that struck Jacqueline Woods, 35, of Chatsworth, Calif., near her heel.

She was taken immediately to the first aid station for emergency treatment and then to Valley Memorial Hospital in nearby Indio for X-rays. She later was released.

After the second shot, Agnew disgustedly dropped his club, climbed into a golf cart and rolled down the fairway to the second tee.

On the eighth hole his tee shot went into the crowd but didn't hit anyone.

Mrs. Woods' father, Walter Summers of Indio, who works at this Bermuda Dunes course, remarked: "The ball came so low and fast there was no way to move."

The fairway was about 40 yards wide at the point—some 30 yards from the tee—where Agnew's shot flew on a straight line into the stands.

Can't Bear to Look

Vice President Spiro Agnew fires another golf shot heard around the world as he hits his tee shot into the crowd in the Bob Hope Desert Classic at Palm Springs, Calif., Saturday. He set up another ball and hit another woman in the crowd. Last year during the tournament, he hit his partner, Doug Sanders, in the head. UPI)

Hold Intersquad Meet

Track Season Begun at S-C

The Smith-Cotton High School Track and Field season began Saturday with the squad's first indoor meet.

An inter-squad competition, the meet included all regular events and was held at the S-C gymnasium.

Coach Gary Pepin explained that the approximate 60 athletes were divided into a "white" and a "gold" team, and although "really good times" were not recorded, the short 110-yard oval employed could be held responsible to some extent. The coach added, however, that competition between the two teams was fierce. The gold team was coached by Pepin while assistant coaches York and Cook guided the white team.

Coach Pepin listed several bright spots of the meet, explaining that a new addition to the squad, Jack Cook, who won the 30-yard dash with a time of 3.9 will help the Bengals in the sprinting department. The track mentor added that another new face potentially valuable in the middle distance category is junior Sam Woolery.

The coach also noted that long distance veteran C. E. Baldwin and star pole vaulter Mark Hewett are both in good shape and will be even more valuable this season than last. He added that Hewett was recently notified of placing fourth in the nation in the national junior olympics on his 13-foot pole vault. Hewett's best vault is 13'6". Baldwin easily won the 2-mile run with a 11:20.7 while Hewett was two feet above all competition with an 11-foot vault.

Coach Pepin expressed extreme confidence in his squad, explaining that if the Tiger cindermen can work hard and remain in good health, they could be a power in conference track.

The coach revealed on questioning that two of the really tough teams this year will be Mexico and Columbia Hickman. His optimistic attitude indicated that the squad is shaping up well. The coach indicated that much of the credit for the squad's early development can be attributed to "the great job that our assistant coaches have been doing with the various groups."

One new innovation that the S-C coaches have added is the election of team captains. A concept borrowed from the famous Kansas University track squad, it is designed to encourage more team pride and unity.

"There's more than a game at stake, our whole physical education program could be on the line..."

These were the words of Louis Kittlaus, Jr., the head of St. Louis' Public High School League one day after a riot broke out in Keil Auditorium with one second left on the clock in the Vashon-Sumner high school basketball game.

The game, which matched two of the top powers in St. Louis' Class L ranks, was tied, 65-65, with one second left on the clock. Sumner's Randle Lockette went up for a rebound underneath the defensive boards and was fouled on the play. That's all many of the 7,500 persons in the auditorium could take and the riot broke out.

Police were called in, the game was stopped and the spectators were cleared from the auditorium.

Both teams who were standing at 5-0 in the Public High School League, fought hard during the game for what could have been the conference championship.

Vashon, sporting a 12-1 record coming into the game, as well as being the top-ranked team in the St. Louis area, was holding a 65-58 lead with 1:26 to go in the contest.

Sumner, the third-rated team in the area with a slate of 16-3, put their full court press to work at that point and caught the Wolverines with nine seconds to go in the game on a two-pointer by Lockette.

Vashon got the ball across mid-court and Jimmy Clark put up a desperation and Jimmy Clark put up a shot that was off its' mark; Lockette hauled in the rebound, but was fouled on the play.

The two teams were walking back to the far end of the court — at that point, the stands erupted.

Fans started pouring onto the court; police were able to get them back, but a second wave rushed on and cans, bottles and chairs started flying.

What now? The decision has not been made as of yet. Friday morning officials of the league and the school system were thinking of three alternatives. (1) Call the game completely off and let the teams remain at 5-0 each. (2) Restart the game with one second left on the clock and Lockette at the free throw line shooting a one-and-one free throw. (3) Restart the game from the beginning, possibly playing it in an area where no crowd could look on.

What ever the answer is for the completion of the game, nothing will be able to erase the mark that has been left on interscholastic athletics because of the incident.

This is the first serious report of unruly crowds in interscholastic basketball games this season; but is certainly only a magnification of some of the things that have happened across Missouri during the current campaign.

A high school basketball game is nowhere to display your emotions in this manner. Certainly you get wrapped up in the tempo of the game, but remember, you have to keep your senses; don't let them run wild.

Incidents such as the one in St. Louis Wednesday night are the things that are slowly digging a grave for interscholastic athletics.

Grems Top Liberty-PB By 80-61

The Sacred Heart Gremlins grabbed an easy victory from Precious Blood of Liberty at Sacred Heart Gym Friday night, 80-61.

Senior forward Darrell Cook pumped in a personal high of 23 points to lead the Grems to the win in the last home game of the season for Sacred Heart.

Sacred Heart opened with a full court press that netted many steals, resulting in easy buckets to take a commanding 24-12 first quarter lead.

The Liberty cagers kept it closer in the second period as they scored 18 points to Sacred Heart's 20 to make the score read 44-30 at the half.

The Sacred Heart squad was able to substitute freely throughout the contest due to their overall superiority.

Sacred Heart was only able to out-gun Precious Blood 36-31 in the second half but it was enough when added to their big first-half lead.

The Gremlins also took the J-V contest by a 40-29 score.

Scoring

Sacred Heart — (80) Cook 23, Boss 15, Straka 13, Coxon 11, Freund 9, S. Karigan 4, J. Karigan 2, Mergen 2, Dunham 1.

Precious Blood—(61) Bazin 15, Carter 12, Licht 10, Dylak 8, Richina 8, Farmer 8.

'Best Game This Year' ---Reichert

HARRISONVILLE — Playing what Coach Reichert called "our best ball game of the year," the Harrisonville Wildcats dumped visiting Boonville Friday night on a 56-48 tally.

Behind the scoring talents of Butch Allen who topped all cagers for a game high of 31 points, the Wildcats led most of the game.

Jumping to a first quarter 12-4 edge, the locals kept up the pace to lead at the intermission, 28-19. Only in the fourth quarter did the Pirates outscore Harrisonville, 17-14, but the visitors' charge was too little, too late, as the Wildcats held onto their lead until the gun.

The Harrisonville cage mentor also said that his team did a better than usual job in the rebounding department, taking up enough slack so as to make a defensive press unnecessary.

The win boosted Harrisonville's overall record to 11-9, while Boonville stands at 12-8 for the season.

Junior varsity action paralleled the varsity game as the Wildcats again took the victory, 48-42. In that contest, the balanced Harrisonville attack led by Dyer with 11 withstood the scoring onslought of Boonville's Kelley and Alpers who netted 18 and 17 respectively.

Scoring

Harrisonville — (56) Allen 31, Hocker 11, Walker 6, Sneed 4, Dyer 2, Knowlton 2.

Royals' Pitchers, Catchers Report Tuesday

KANSAS CITY — With a seasoned performer at every position, the Kansas City Royals have a much more solid and stable look as they prepare to open their third spring training camp this week. But don't think for a minute that there aren't jobs to be won and questions to be answered.

Manager Bob Lemon, starting his first spring at the helm, will start greeting his squad which eventually will number 49 on Tuesday when pitchers and catchers report to Fort Myers, Fla. They will work out for the first time on Wednesday.

The infielders and outfielders will report six days later.

Lemon could start getting his questions answered right away since pitching and catching jobs could be the most hotly contested.

A fourth starting job — and possibly a fifth — is open, and several bullpen positions must be decided.

And the catching could develop into a three-way scrap for the top job.

Fortunately, it appears there are a number of pitchers capable of starting regularly.

Jim Rooker, Dick Drago and Wally Bunker have three of the spots in the rotation pretty well in hand on the basis of late showings in 1971. Ted Abernathy returns to the bullpen.

That means the other 19 pitchers — including four invitees from farm club rosters — are competing for six or seven other positions on the staff, and Lemon and General Manager Cedric Tallis have repeatedly said only a very few of them appear to need more seasoning.

For starting candidates, there are the likes of Bill Butler, Roger Nelson and Mike Hedlund, all of whom had physical ailments in 1970 which supposedly have been overcome, plus holdovers Al Fitzmorris, Dave Morehead and Ken Wright and Kansas City newcomers Bruce Dal Canton and Bob Garibaldi.

Rookie Jim York and veteran lefty Tom Burgmeier look like good bets to join Abernathy in the bullpen along with the starting hopefuls who don't end up Number four or Number five.

Ed Kirkpatrick did the bulk of Kansas City's catching the last three and a half months of 1970, but he faces stiff competition to hold that job from newly-acquired Jerry May, a proven performer with more than five years of experience at Pittsburgh, and 22-year-old Buck Martinez who has developed fast in winter ball after a summer spent mostly in the service. Three non-roster catchers also will bid for jobs.

Lemon faces some decisions when the infielders and outfielders report, too, even though he has a veteran available at every position. For example, he needs to know whether Joe Keough's leg has completely recovered and whether hard-hitting Carl Taylor is going to be squeezed into the every day batting order.

The 23 pitchers and six catchers plus utilityman Bill Sorrell have been asked to report Tuesday and work out for the first time on Wednesday.

The other 19 players will be in the group which reports February 22.

Lemon invited Sorrell to report with the batterymen to continue trying his hand at catching. The manager had asked the veteran infielder-outfielder to do some receiving during the winter in order to be ready at least for emergency catching duty.

This is the first time the Royals have had their batterymen report early. They hope it will help Kansas City to a fast getaway in the American League race where the Royals will be seeking to improve on their tie for fourth place in the Western Division which came with the help of 21 wins in the last 42 starts.

Free-for-All On Ice

One referee watches as a free-for-all rages out of control in the first period of the Black Hawks-Penguins game at Pittsburgh Saturday. Kikita was penalized for roughing and Labre was penalized for fighting. (UPI)

Even Competition For Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Forty drivers, probably the most evenly-matched field in years, go to the post Sunday in search of $203,050 in prize money in the Daytona 500, America's premier stock car racing event.

The flag-off at Daytona International Speedway is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. EST. About three and one-half hours later, someone will go to the pay window for a first place check of $43,500.

A.J. Foyt, three-time Indianapolis 500 winner, starts in the inside pole position in a Mercury. He qualified at 182.744 m.p.h.

The second row tandem is made up of blond Pete Hamilton, a bridegroom of two weeks who came out of nowhere to win the 1970 event, and 36-year-old David Pearson, one of the sport's all-time money winners and three-time Grand National champion.

More importantly, however, the two backed their claim to favoritism by winning two 125-mile races Thursday from which the final 38 starters were picked.

Knob Noster Moves Loop Mark to 6-0

EL DORADO SPRINGS — Knob Noster moved its West Central record to 6-0 Friday night on a 61-44 victory over El Dorado Springs.

Leading the Panthers in the win was Nolan Schubert with 21. Knob Noster's Kendrick added 18 to the team total.

A team free throw percentage of 84 by the Panthers was the crucial factor in the contest, since the locals outscored Knob Noster 40-28 from the floor. The visitors converted on 33 of 39 shots from the line.

Knob Noster didn't begin to dominate the contest until the middle of the third period, after holding a slim 1-point margin, 25-24, at the half.

The second half bore out the facts, however, as the Panthers scored 18 points per quarter, while the Bulldogs could manage only 9 and 11 respectively.

The El Dorado Springs cagers reversed the situation in the 'B' contest, winning 55-45.

Scoring

Knob Noster — (61) Schubert 21, Kendrick 18, Maxwell 8, Schuck 8, Norman 6.
El Dorado Springs — (44) Davis 16, Bender 10, Dennis 8, Evans 6, Veach 4.

Falcons Drop Cage Contest To Jeff City

JEFFERSON CITY — The Jefferson City Jays won the second of two weekend contests Saturday night when they clobbered the Springfield Glendale Falcons, 72-55.

Working from a five-point deficit at the end of the first quarter when the score stood at 18-13, the Jays gained little ground and were still behind at the half, 36-33.

The Falcons were unable to keep pace in the second half, however, falling behind the locals at the end of the third period, 54-46. The final stanza mirrored the third, leading to the final score.

One problem which Glendale had in the second half was Jefferson City's sophomore defensive standout, Wilson. The young cager was assigned to cover Bruce Young, the Falcons' hottest scorer, about midway through the third period. Although Young tallied 17 in the first half, the efforts of Wilson held the cage ace to a meager six points during the last half.

Same Cooke, consistent Jeff City star, picked up 20 points and grabbed an impressive 26 rebounds during the contest to aid the Jays in the victory.

Scoring

Jefferson City — (72) Cooke 20, Nebel 13, Hopkins 12, Nicklas 9, Wilson 9, Allen 7, Britt 2.
Springfield Glendale — (55) Young 23, Thompson 13, Pickering 9, Miller 5, Erwin 2, Niewald 2, Clampett 1.

Gross Leads Cardinals

TIPTON — The Tipton Cardinals picked up a Tri-County Conference win Friday night when they defeated visiting Iberia, 79-63.

Six-foot, four-inch Gary Gross, one of the Tri-County loop's highest consistent scorers, turned in his season's best in the contest with a 39-point performance. Gross hit 59 per cent of 22 chots from the floor and converted on 13 of 16 charity tosses to record the total.

Handling the undesirable task of guarding the Tipton star, Iberia's Bill Keeth was finally forced out of the game on fouls in the fourth period. Keeth stands only 6'1".

Also aiding the Cardinal cause was Bob Maupins, who netted 27 in the win.

After holding a small 2-point advantage at the end of first-quarter play, 16-14, the locals began to stretch it out and were never put under serious pressure in the contest. The halftime score was 37-28.

The Rangeers also dropped the J-V contest, 52-43. Mike Niermeyer tallied 18 for Tipton in that game, while Iberia's Russell netted 16.

Scoring

Iberia — (63) Wilson 18, Hinsley 12, Keeth 10, Piggott 10, Perkins 6, Veach 5, Morris 2.

Stover Stays Alive In Conference Race

SMITHTON — The Stover Bulldogs kept alive their hopes for a share of the Kaysinger Conference title with an 82-48 drubbing of the Smithton Tigers here Friday night.

All five of the Bulldog's starters hit in double figures while none of the Smithton cagers could manage that feat.

Stover opened up with a full court press that all but buried the Bengals in an avalanche of turnovers. The Bulldogs converted most of these Smithton errors into tallies as they scored a walloping 28 points in the initial period to Smithton's 12.

Things remained the same in the second period with the Tigers scoring only 9 points to Stover's 17 to make the score read 45-21 at the intermission.

Stover finally let up with their press in the third quarter, but not before they had beefed up their lead to double Smithton's output at 64-32.

Stover now has a chance to tie for the league title if they can engineer a win over the undefeated (in conference play) Cole Camp Bluebirds. If they lose they stand a chance of dropping all the way to third place if Warsaw can top Green Ridge.

Smithton's Rusty Templemire pumped in 17 points to lead his team to a 39-35 victory over the Bulldogs in the junior varsity title. Stover took the volleyball game, 28-21.

Scoring

Stover — (82) Stevens 20, Paul Marriott 16, Phillip Mariott 12, Heppard 12, Palmer 11, Fischer 5, Gary 2, Norton 2, Case 2.
Smithton — (48) Demand 9, Oelrich 8, Hayes 7, Ackerman 6, White 6, Corbett 4, Anderson 3, McCutchen 3, Boatman 2.

Jones Challenges Race for Crown

Rufus Jones will have his opportunity to seek the Central States professional wrestling crown Tuesday night when he steps into the Convention Hall ring opposite hard-hitting Harley Race.

The two got into a hassle during last week's eight-man tag elimination event won by the Viking and as a result of that latest confrontation each challenged the other to a showdown.

Jones, 280, hopes to become the first Negro to gain the Central States title. Race, 250, is equally intent on extending his reign and proving that he can handle an opponent as big and strong as Jones.

Jones will have a wide weight edge. In addition, he moves well for his heft and has the ability to absorb a great deal of punishment.

The Viking, who came through in the gruelling multiple wrestler team elimination last Tuesday, will collide head-on this time with Rock (Baby) Hunter. That pairing matches two rugged heavyweights, both of whom have solid experience in the rough and tumble.

John Tolas, a 253-pound Canadian, will go against former Central States kingpin Danny Little Bear in another test. Winner of that match will be next in line for a shot at the Central states crown.

Bulletin

HANNIBAL — The Smith-Cotton Tigers stiffened up their defense in the second period after being on the wrong end of a 23-19 score, and went on to control the remainder of the contest, defeating the Hannibal Pirates 68-60 in a Central Missouri Conference game Saturday night.

MEXICO — The conference leading Mexico Bulldogs crushed Smith-Cotton's hopes for remaining in contention for the conference title Friday night when they dumped the Tigers in a tight contest, 44-42.

Although the Tigers led most off the way through the contest, the taller Bulldogs wore out the Bengals physically to take the contest and insure at least a tie for the Central Missouri Conference championship.

S-C played a tough man-to-man defense which held the usually high-scoring Bulldogs to 44 points in the contest. But the pressure of such a strong defensive game tired out the Tigers, holding them to only 15 points in the second half.

S-C jumped out to a 16-12 first period edge which was to be the highest point total the Tigers could muster in one period for the night. The Bengals beefed up their lead in the second period to nine points on the strength of a super defensive performance which held the Bulldogs to six points allowing a 27-18 S-C lead at the half-way mark.

Mexico's height advantage began to tell in the last half as S-C's offense bogged down due to their tremendous defensive efforts and the physical preeminence of their opponents. The Bengals could manage only seven points in the third period while the Mexico juggernaut methodically started to eat away at the Tigers' bulge making the score 34-29.

The Bulldogs had their best offensive quarter in the final period when they scored 15 points to match Smith-Cotton's entire second half production. S-C had trouble hitting the first shot in one-and-one situations which might have gained them the contest, but it was not to be as Mexico took the game and most likely the conference championship.

Smith-Cotton Coach Jim Dinsdale expressed his pride in the play of his team and tried to shoulder the blame himself. "I was proud of them," he said. "You couldn't single out any one boy who played poorly."

The Tigers also suffered a loss in the sophomore tilt 49-37, but salvaged a tough 55-54 win in the J-V contest.

Mexico's overall record now stands at 20-2 and 6-0 in conference play, while Smith-Cotton's season slate drops to 14 wins and 5 losses, 3-4 in conference play.

Smith-Cotton was scheduled to continue weekend action Saturday night in a second conference game with the Hannibal Pirates. The contest is S-C's final conference tilt this season.

Press Strategy Allows Tiger Catastrophe

HUGHESVILLE — The Northwest Mustangs found themselves on the long end of a lop-sided score for the first time in two years Friday night as they crushed the Green Ridge Tigers, 94-46.

The first quarter gave no indication of the impending rout as both teams scored well with the Mustangs coming out on top of a 23-17 result.

In the second period, Northwest became super-hot and avalanched Green Ridge with 30 points while their ball-hawking tactics held Green Ridge to just 8 points to open up a nearly insurmountable 53-25 lead.

The last half was almost a carbon copy of the first half as Green Ridge kept it close in the third period but could not hold the Mustangs in the final stanza to drop the contest by 48 points.

The Mustangs also took the J-V and volleyball contests by respective 47-30 and 26-23 scores.

Scoring

Northwest — (94) R. Shireman 21, Mackesty 19, Greer 17, Kessler 11, B. Shireman 11, Verts 8, Rayl 4, Houchen 2, Edwards 1.
Green Ridge — (46) Roller 12, Aker 8, Curtis 6, Miller 6, Hill 4, Ray 4, Stark 3, Blankenship 2, Potoroff 1.

Undefeated Blue Birds Clinch Tie With Victory

By WARREN RIPLEY
Democrat-Capital Sports Writer

COLE CAMP — The Cole Camp Bluebirds clinched a tie for first place in the Kaysinger Conference race when they dumped the Warsaw Wildcats Friday night to become the only undefeated team in the conference at 7-0.

Cole Camp cashed in on the outside shooting of Roger Donnell and Roger Williams to take the contest by a 62-47 count despite an 18 point performance by Warsaw's Ronnie Redwing.

With the Bluebirds' pressing in the first period, Warsaw grabbed an initiative 6-3 and kept the lead for the remainder of the period to take a 13-12 edge into the second quarter.

Roger Donnell's entrance into the game injected new life into the Bluebirds offense as he hit 8 of his team high 16 points in the second quarter on four straight tallies from outside. The Blubirds shot into the lead as they held the visitors to 12 points while scoring 21 to take a 33-25 intermission lead.

Warsaw went to a full court press in the last half in an effort to slow down the blue machine, but the Wildcat effort proved futile. The host Bluebirds suffered a temporary setback when senior backcourt ace Gary Buford committed his fourth personal with 7:22 and had to be spelled.

With 4:25 remaining in the period, Cole Camp held a ten point advantage, 41-31. With 1:50 left and the score 44-33, Warsaw's Tony Lear drew his fourth personal which was an omen of things to come for the Wildcats in the final minutes.

With a 46-35 lead at the start of the fourth period, the Bluebirds hit the first two buckets of the period to balloon their lead to its highest watermark at 50-35. Warsaw's Ronnie Redwing then hit two twenty-footers and a free throw in succession to pull Warsaw within 10 at 50-40. But this was the Wildcat's last threat in the contest as Cole Camp stalled out most of the last two minutes to ice the victory.

Cole Camp now can do no worse than tie for first in the conference race, and Warsaw can still salvage a tie for first if Stover (7-1) can manage to beat Cole Camp and Warsaw can down Green Ridge. If Stover defeats Cole Camp and Warsaw conquers Green Ridge it will throw the conference title into a three way tie.

Warsaw could find no relief in the night's other engagements as the Bluebird girls held Warsaw scoreless in the second half to take a lop-sided 47 6 volley ball win. Cole Camp also took the junior varsity contest on a 47-31 decision.

Scoring

Montrose Captures Third Loop Title

The Blue Jays really earned the title in the see-saw contest which was tied 68-all at the end of regular play. Ten big points in the overtime period iced the game, however, as Calhoun's Golden Eagles were able to manage only six.

Scoring from the floor in the contest resulted in exactly the same point totals, although Calhoun needed only 44 shots for their 56-point field goal total, while the Blue Jays shot 56 times for a 50 per cent average.

The official scorebook showed that for the second game this season, the Montrose cagers were able to shoot 100 per cent from the line, which made the difference in Friday's contest. The Blue Jays converted on 22 free throw opportunities.

Both coaches were proud of their teams' efforts, commenting on the high grade of play in the close contest.

Although Montrose led at the end of each quarter except the last, the game provided the best in athletic tension with the lead changing hands numerous times. Only four points separated the teams at the half, 39-35.

The victory marked Montrose's 21st straight conference win, as the Blue Jays boast an undefeated record in three years' of conference play.

The junior varsity contest was also captured by Montrose, 53-35, behind the 18-point performance of Jim Rohaus. Danny Hill netted 14 for Calhoun.

Scoring

Calhoun — (74) Steenburger 29, Hill 14, Parks 12, Edwards 12, East 7.

Jays Down Columbia

JEFFERSON CITY — The Jefferson City Jays took an important Central Missouri Conference contest from the Columbia Hickman Kewpies here Friday night by a 57-50 count.

Both teams were cold from the charity line but the superior rebounding prowress of the Jays was the difference in the contest. Jeff City's high-jumping Sam Cooke, despite being only six-foot one, pulled down seventeen rebounds and scored 11, points to aid the Jay's cause. His ability to take command of the boards kept the Kewpies from getting second and third shots.

Jeff City jumped out to a 5 point first quarter lead, 14-9, but the Kewpies closed it to two points by the half at 27-25. The shooting of Columbia's George Parker was very important in the first half.

In the third period the Jays were still unable to salt away the game. The pesky Kewpies would not succumb to the second place Jays as the score moved to 45-40.

The fourth period saw the Jays take the contest, but not as convincingly as was previously expected.

Columbia's Parker ended up as the game's high scorer with 20 tallies in the loser's behalf and was the only double-figure scorer for the Kewpies. Hopkins and Cooke hit in two-numerals for the victors with 16 and 11 respectively.

Jeff City's conference record now ascends to 5-2 while their overall record moves to 15-6. Columbia Hickman now stands at 1-5 in conference action and 8-10 overall.

Scoring

Jefferson City — (57) Hopkins 16, Cooke 11, Nicklas 9, Allen 8, Nebel 8, Elliot 3, Britt 2.

Columbia Hickman — (50) Parker 20, Stewart 8, Hedrick 8, Vaught 6, Onofrio 4, Tapp 2.

Jones Helps Out In Vike Cage Victory

LA MONTE — The LaMonte Vikings, behind the scoring punch of the Kaysinger Conference's leading scorer, Mark Jones, who played both center as well as guard, whipped the Lincoln Cardinals here Friday night, 69-52.

The Vikings employed a zone defense and an effective fast break, neither of which Lincoln could cope with.

Both teams had trouble getting untracked in the first quarter as they were both cold from the field to make the score read 9-5, LaMonte, at the end of the period.

The second period saw Jones and company heat up a 22-point team total to the Cardinals 14 to take a 31-19 margin into the locker room at the half.

Although LaMonte's zone was effective, it had little effect on Lincoln's Bruce Rigby as he pumped in 30 points in the contest. The inability of his teammates to hit outside allowed the Vikings to retain the zone strategy.

The Vikes polished off the Cardinals in the second half, aided by their first half lead, by out-scoring their opponents, 38-33.

With this victory LaMonte ends up with a 4-4 conference record for the third consecutive year while their overall mark moved to 16-8 on the win.

Behind the scoring of Darrel Oswald, who hit 22 points, the Vikings took the 'B' game 53-33. The Cardinals took the volleyball contest, 33-27.

Scoring

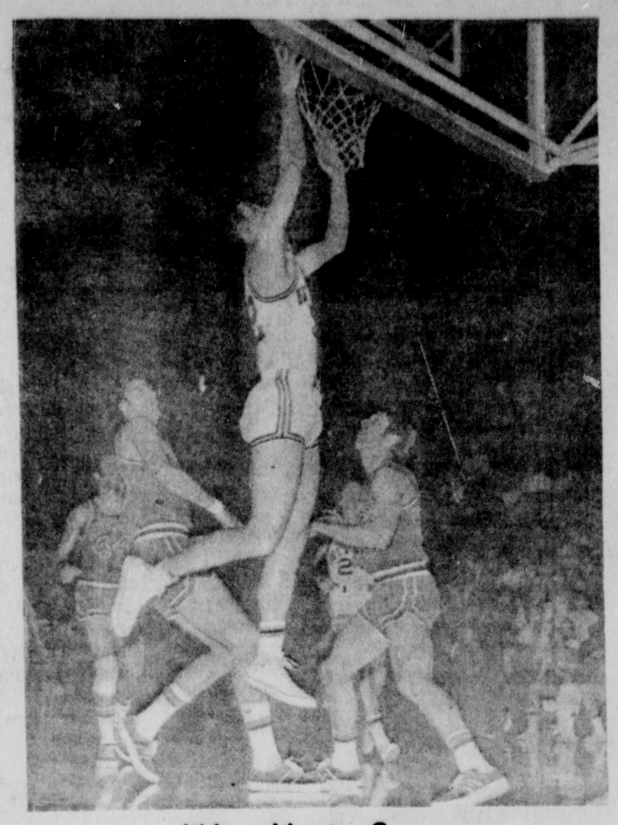
Swimming Meet Goes to Cyclones

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Iowa State University captured 8 of 13 first places on the way to a 66-47 Big Eight swimming victory over Missouri saturday

Iowa State's record is now 8-2. Missouri is 3-6.



Way Up to Score

Oklahoma State University's Paul Mullen (52) has to go high to score this basket Saturday afternoon in the Kansas-OSU basketball game played at Stillwater, Okla. Mullen scored eight points in the game. Kansas had to come from behind in the second quarter to beat the Cowboys, 63-50. In the dark for K. U. is Bob Kivistox (45), Pierre Russel (44) and Greg Douglas (20). (UPI)

Jayhawks Rally, Defeat Cowboys

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Kansas used an offensive splurge midway through the second half to break open a close contest and down Oklahoma State, 63-50, here Saturday afternoon in Big Eight basketball.

The Jayhawks expanded a 31-29 half time lead to 51-39 eight minutes from the end to jolt the Cowboys' hopes of an upset.

Dave Robisch, who led all scorers with 24 points, and Bud Stallworth fired the Kansas rally.

OSU broke on top early and threatened the fifth-ranked Jayhawks' unbeaten Big Eight record. Oklahoma State used a deliberate offense to build a 24-16 lead with six minutes left in the first half before Kansas made its move.

The smaller Cowboys were outscored 8-1 in the first five minutes of the second half and couldn't recover. OSU never got closer than eight points the rest of the way.

Life Often Becomes a Lark on the Quaint Feudal Island of Sark

And so it is, by any stretch of the rhyme scheme.

No income taxes or death duties. No automobiles. No industries. No lawyers, politicians, dentists, barbers, draft boards. No newspaper. No noxious noise levels, fume levels, pollen counts. Never a form to fill out or a summons to mail in. Wild flowers in bloom all year round.

Sark is a medieval rerun, without airport or paved run, that suddenly finds itself way ahead of the rest of the world in coping with pollution, congestion and environment control.

"It's an old relic, like myself, but we've got something here worth preserving," says 87-year-old Dame Sibyl Hathaway, the 21st Seigneur of Sark, who rules her feudal fief—three-and-a-half miles long and a mile-and-a-half wide—through a Royal Charter granted by Elizabeth I.

"Only now are our people beginning to realize that holding onto the best of the past may be the only way of insuring their future."

Lying within sight of the blinking lighthouses along the French coast, amid the treacherous rocks and tempestuous tides of the Gulf of St. Malo, Sark is the smallest and oldest British dependency. But it really belongs to another world, another time, and for most of the 488 islanders, another language: a medieval Norman French patois that is lovely to hear and almost impossible to comprehend.

From the time the medieval monks of St. Magliore packed it in after 1,000 years of trying to reform the populace, Sark has been a reputed refuge for secret swingers. Its histroy is rife with rumors of orgies, witchcraft, black magic, surviving pagan fertility rites and bawdy masquerades in which the revelers don bed sheets and animal masks, and, braying wildly, muck about the cliffs practicing unrestrained promiscuity.

Suddenly last summer, a German sex magazine showed up with some bare breasted London models and did an imaginary piece on wife-beating on Sark. The islanders were affronted.

"There's no woman on Sark that skinny—or that timid," growled farmer Jim LeFeuvre. "They're always telling lies about Sark."

But then construction worker Rod Harradine, son of the primitive artist Molly McCann, came to work at the new house going up on the cliffs and found a candle guttering in a human skull on the mantlepiece.

"The graveyard had been disturbed the night before," recounted artist McCann, stitching up a miniature Sark witch for the tourist trade. "Call it a black mass or maybe a harmless prank, but it was frightening nonetheless. Just as my son arrived, a big black spider was crawling out of the eye socket."

Like their forebears, who always built a ledge out from the chimney so the witches could warm their backs and not make a nuisance of themselves sitting by the fire, Sarkees have learned to coexist comfortably with the legends and customs of the past.

Each Michelmas Sept. 21, Dame Sibyl mails off 50 shillings $86—"the twentieth part of a knight's fee," to Buckingham Palace as her annual installment on the last bastion of feudalism in the world. In return for which, La Dame de l'Ile de Sercqu et Dependencies—to give her the full title—receives certain campy "droits" dating back to 1565 when Helier de Carteret, the first seigneur, induced 40 tenants to come help him rid the tiny Channel Island of pirates and ship wreckers.

Dame Sibyl is the only one on the island who can keep pigeons or a bitch, a right she exercises with a cote of white fan tail pigeons and a toy, coy French poodle named Maxime. Like her predecessors, all poodles, Maxine appears a trifle nervous from constantly evading the attentions of Sark's 79 mile poochees.

Dame Sibyl cuts about in an electric invalid cart, one of three on the island, which has nothing to do with medieval pageantry and is still a sore subject on Sark. Hobbled now with arthritis and, since childhood, with a shortened leg, she is fearlessly energetic in preserving her rights and the island's uncluttered individuality. Last year, Dr. John Yeandel-Wignell, the island physician, quit because he grew weary of horseback house calls up and down Sark's dusty hills and couldn't persuade the Dame to allow him an electric vehicle.

Dr. Usher Somers, the new man, diplomatically avoids the conflict. "One realizes the rules of the game before signing on," he puffed, pushing his bicycle up Windmill Hill in a pelting rain squall.

Since succeeding to the title in 1928, the Dame has waged unrelenting war against the internal combustion engine, except the one driving the turbines for Sark's electrical plant. She never has forgotten the four squad cars and two tanks that the Germans brought to Sark during their five-year occupation in World War II. And she never has forgiven herself for llowing the film company shooting "Appointment With Venus," with David Niven in 1951, to bring over a Land Rover.

Tractors were finally permitted on Sark in 1959, to help modernize the farms, but little by little they have been doubling as taxis and freight haulers. Increasing at the rate of two a year, they now outnumber horses, 36 to 35, and have been forbidden to operate after 10 p.m. or carry more than one "field hand" in the link seat beyond the top of Harbor Hill.

Off season, when the hydrofoils aren't running, the visitor steps on Sark pock-marked with soot and cinders from the fire-breathing coastal lugger that makes the one-hour crossing from Guernsey every other day, except Sunday. If no horse traps are about, he is taken up mile-long Harbor Hill in an open wagon pulled by tractor, along with the coal, the beer and the other boat passengers, and deposited on a convenient grassy bank in front of the Bel Air pub.

There is no law, modern or medieval, requiring visitors to call in at the pub at the top of the hill, but in the memory of living man, no one has ever demurred. The place is as good as any to meet the islanders at one of their favorite pasttimes.

This particular day, Jack Powell, the only butcher on Sark, was putting away his morning pint.

"Why did I come to Sark?" he punctuated the question with a poke of snuff beneath his florid nose. "To avoid income taxes, that's why. The rest will give you a great to-do about what great island lovers they are, but my hobbies are reading and drinking, and here we are."

"Fishing's fine here," put in 85-year-old Charles Vibert, the oldest man on the island. Mere mention of the word stirred memories of fierce duels with 50-pound Conger eels in the rocky coves and taking the German guards out in the swells to get them seasick. That was when the fishing fleet counted 36 boats, instead of the surviving four, and Sark eels and lobsters graced the best continental tables. Now 40,000 tourists a year, paying a landing tax of one shilling sixpence—18 cents—and a small levy on alcohol and tobacco provide most of the $55,200 budget to support the doctor, vicar, dirt roads and two one-room school houses.

Sarkees have a delightful way of putting each other down and putting the tourists on.

"We peg the cows so they don't blow away in the high winds," farmer Percy de Carteret, a descendant of the original seigneur, assured us.

Sark's charms are instant. The sea pounds against the cliffs. Birds sing in the dark woods. Wild flowers dot the bracken covered slopes. TV antennas peek unobtrusively from behind great billows of hydrangeas that almost hide the cozy cottages.

There is no village as such. A narrow dirt lane called "The Avenue," bordered on each side by lush pastures, serves as the main street. Soft-eyed golden Guernsey cows, the pride of Sark and its famous butter, peer over the fences at shoppers frequenting the two banks, the butcher's, the drug store and a few tin-roofed shops pushing duty free perfume and liquor.

Life on Sark

The tiny island of Sark, in the English Channel, has no automobiles. But there are a dozen or so pubs and hotel bars to provide a different kind of recreation. Tractors such as the one pictured here are permitted, ostensibly as aids to farm modernization. But they also double as taxis and freight haulers. Behind the tractor is the Bel Air pub, first stop for any tourist after alighting from the tractors which bring passengers up from the habor - but no further. After refreshment here, the rest is on foot. (AP)

Ruling Manse

The Seigneurie, a stone built manse with crenellated towers, is the home of the Dame of Sark. From it the Dame rules her tiny island, the smallest and oldest British dependency, set in the English Channel, nearer the French coast than the English. The 488 islanders speak a medieval Norman French patois, and exist comfortably with customs and legends of the past. Annually, at her back door, the Dame is paid "le poulage," a tax of one live capon for every kitchen chimney on the island. (AP)

Report President's Cousin on Welfare

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Times says President Nixon's first cousin and his wife are ill and living on monthly payments of $57 welfare and $270.10 Social Security.

In today's edition, the newspaper said Philip Milhous and his wife Anna, residents of rural Grass Valley 40 miles northeast of Sacramento, also receive welfare aid to pay for a helper in their one-story house.

Mrs. Milhous, 47, was quoted by the Times as saying in a telephone interview she and her 55-year-old husband hope to get off welfare. She said she did not know whether the President was aware of their plight.

Asked whether they had sought the President's help, she said, "Oh my God, no, we don't try to do things like that."

Island Tradition

Charles Vibert at 85 years old is the oldest man on the island of Sark. He was a fisherman - Sark's fishing fleet used to number 36 boats. Now the tourist industry, with 40,000 visitors a year, is more important to the island's economy. Lenient pub drinking hours are unchanged, however, and quaffing a pint - or several - remains a favorite pastime on the island. (AP)

Health Care Centers Provide Necessary Services For America's Poor

By C. G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

"This is the only way," says a black farmer. "It is one of the best things that could ever happen."

"I don't know of anything else that could be so vital to and for the people," he said, speaking fo the Tufts-Delta Health Center at Mound Bayou, Miss.

The speaker was William B. Crockett, president of the health council which oversees the operation of the pioneering health center in North Bolivar County on the Mississippi River Delta.

In Chicago, in the heart of a West Side slum area, Earlean Lindsey, a black woman, says, "We didn't have any health care before."

"I think it's just great," she says. "It's shows what the people can do without a lot of money if they're given the opportunity."

These two centers have brought about what some term a quiet revolution, not only in health care but in the social order, and have served as models for similar centers that have sprung up across the country over the past four years.

There are now about 50 of them, funded by the federal Office of Economic Opportunity, in rural and urban areas to provide comprehensive health care to those who need it.

The Mound Bayou center is affiliated with Tufts University, Boston; the Mile Square Center with Presbyterian — St. Luke's Hospital, Chicago.

Dr. Robert Kalinowski, who heads OEO's health service program development in Washington, said the idea came about because the Job Corps and Headstart programs "made us painfully aware there was a lot of health-care deficit in the kids they were seeing."

These children had no dental care and hadn't received inoculations and were undernourished, he said. A large amount of money was being invested in "catch-up health care. It was an idea whose time had come."

OEO officials felt that they could spend money more wisely in providing preventive care, Dr. Kalinowski said.

Fields and small towns and congested city slums don't look much alike, but the poor people who live in them — no matter where they are — share many of the same problems.

The health centers have not only brought medicine to the sick but orderly social change and the kinds of environmental improvements that make it easier to stay well.

In the areas they serve and others like them which don't have health centers, babies have less of a chance to live and children are more likely to go hungry.

It's not unusual in Mississippi and other rural poverty areas for a family with six or nine children to live in a three-room house with a pump in the backyard near a three-sided toilet which has no roof.

The roofs of corrugated metal or tarpaper leak, the sides are patched with roadside advertising signs, screens are missing from windows which often are missing panes, and flies and mosquitoes find easy entry, as do the rats from the fields which come through holes in walls and floors.

Lack of food often goes with lack of shelter. Clementine Murray, a black woman now employed at the Mound Bayou health center, told a recent visitor that one winter a few years ago she and her husband and eight children lived on boiled crawfish from a pond near their house because they had no money for food—or fat to fry the crawfish in.

Life is no easier for the poor of any group, and it often is a lot tougher.

Crowded living conditions in city slums mean not only families jammed into little space, but jammed families stacked in buildings that extend unbroken for many blocks. And winter is crueler.

The Mound Bayou center serves a 500-square-mile area in northern Bolivar County with a population of 14,000—mostly black. The Chicago center serves a mile-square community of more than 25,000—also mostly black, but with a few Latins as well. "Se habla Espanol," reads a sign at the reception desk.

Dr. H. Jack Geiger, chairman and professor of the department of community health at Tufts, and often called the father of the community health center movement, describes the Mound Bayou area as having "some of the richest land and some of the poorest people in the United States."

Median family income in the area is $900 a year per family—about $2.45 a day or 75 cents per person for food, clothing, shelter, medicine and everything else required for sustenance.

Dr. Joyce C. Lashof, director of community medicine at Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital and project director for the Mile Square center, describes that area:

Median family income, $3,400; male unemployment, more than 13 per cent; 40 per cent of the families in public housing, and 25 per cent of the residents in other housing on public assistance; broken families make up 55 per cent of those in public housing.

The area includes some of the city's worst slums, with more than half of the dwellings classed as substandard, and has been the scene in recent years of massive racial violence.

Before the Mile Square health center was established, most people in need of medical care went to Cook County Hospital nearby, the largest public general hospital in the world.

But going to that understaffed and overcrowded hospital means long waits on hard benches to get attention. Mrs. Lindsey said babies have died in their mothers' arms while waiting.

In Mississippi, there are only about 45 black physicians, and they are getting along in years.

Even if there were adequate physicians and facilities to care for the needs of the poor, there would be the problem of getting to the doctor.

In rural America, poor or affluent, there is virtually no public transportation. And in Chicago, where it is abundant, the cost of a roundtrip to see the doctor on the bus can cost $1.10—the allowance for three adult meals for persons receiving public aid.

Both centers have developed their own transportation systems with carryalls, station wagons and automobiles. In Mississippi, telephones to call for transportation are available 24 hours a day at neighborhood centers in rural towns served by the center. And Mile Square residents likewise can get help around the clock.

The center's cars and decrepit private autos start arriving early in the morning at the new $800,000 comprehensive health care center in the middle of what once was a cotton field at the edge of Mound Bayou, an all-black town on U. S. 61 south of Memphis.

The center opened in 1965 in a church parsonage, and moved into its modern facility in 1968, where in the average month there are 2,500 patient visits. The nursing staff makes 1,200 visits monthly to homes to care for the sick.

Like Mound Bayou, Mile Square has recruited most of its workers—three-fourths of 271 on the staff—from the area it serves, providing a financial boost to an area of high unemployment.

The health centers are also the focus of activities not usually associated with medical care, the results of which are sometimes intangible.

Dr. David Weeks, clinical director of the Mound Bayou center, said: "If we were to leave tomorrow, we might have made it possible for a few more kids to live and for a few old people to kick up their heels a little longer, but what was lacking was the community organization.

"People have found out that they can organize and have power, and they have the ability," said Dr. Weeks, a native of North Dakota.

Community involvement in the operation of the centers is a requirement of the OEO. In Chicago, the basis of this existed in the Mile Square Federation, a group of community organizations, which oversees the operation of the center.

In Mississippi, where families are spread out over a much larger area, organizations had to be developed, with organizers going around knocking on doors.

From this, 10 community centers have been developed, which serve as gathering places in their areas. Youth programs are conducted at these centers, and hot meals are provided to the elderly.

The concept of health at these centers has been expanded to the environment.

More Than Just Medicine

At a health center in Winstonville, Miss., Pearlia Robinson, right, carries in a tray of rolls as hot lunches are served to elderly clients. She also runs the center, which is one of a growing number with similar programs, initiated by health centers and councils, whereby the elderly are provided with transport and brought in for hot meals at least once a week. The center is an extension of the Tufts-Delta Health Center, Mound Bayou, Miss. (AP)

Taking Medicine to The Sick

House Call in Chicago

Against a wintry background of urban Chicago, Nurses Sandra Y. Billiean, left, and Mary Lou Lynch make their round of house calls. They are members of staff of the Mile Square Health Center which provides comprehensive health care to those who need it in an area where it was inaccessible: an area which includes some of the city's worst slums, and had few doctors even though Chicago is one of the world's leading medical centers.

Machinery on the Move

A huge strip mining shovel, right, and wheel excavator of the United Electric Coal Co. cross a highway near Du Quoin, Ill., on a journey three miles to a new working site. The shovel weighs 5,000,000 pounds while the wheel excavator weighs 3,000,000. A thick layer of dirt was used to cover the highway to prevent some of the damage done by the extreme weight. A highway crew stood by to repair any road damage. (UPI)

Impeachment Idea

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey, R-Calif., says President Nixon might change his mind about the Laos incursion "if we started a national dialogue to discuss his impeachment."

"The American people fail to realize the Constitution is being breached through arrogant use of power by both Presidents Johnson and Nixon," McCloskey told 150 Stanford University students at an informal dormitory seminar.

As an alternative to campus violence, he urged students to pressure Washington officials by reaching their constituencies.

Computer Problem

LEEDS, England (AP) — A British technician says computers can lose their cool when a girl in nylon underwear walks by.

Harry Eastwood, manager of Leeds University's computer laboratory, said the static electricity that builds up in nylon undies, sweaters and overalls is apt to destroy the machines concentration.

Television's Color Girls

Perfect Pictures

Karen Morrow, left, of "The Jim Nabors Show," hugs the arm of a valued colleague, Zelda. Zelda is an ideal member of CBS' staff. Tireless, demanding no pay, she's one of four plastic mannequins used by cameramen to adjust color equipment. She's ash blonde, blue eyed, wears a navy sweater with red and white emblem — and below the waist consists of a wheeled metal stand. She has replaced live color girls, and may soon be replaced herself by improved technology. (AP)

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The cast of "The Jim Nabors Show" was rehearsing in a distant room in CBS' Television City complex. On the big sound stage where the program would be taped later in the day, a cameraman was focusing his lens on a solitary figure in the center of the stage. That was Zelda, ash blonde, blue-eyed and with a sultry, full lower lip.

That same night, in NBC's studio theater in New York, the regulars and guests of Johnny Carson's show were scattered around in their offices or the makeup room. Except Harriet, a fair-skinned redhead who was alternately sitting and standing in front of Doc Severensen's band as the cameramen focused on her face and figure.

Zelda and Harriet are the survivors of a television specialty which is fast disappearing, victim of technological advances. They are "color girls," who rarely appear on the nation's screens. They are used by the cameramen to adjust their delicate equipment so that reds look red instead of purple or pink, so that skin is flesh-colored, not bilious green or jaundice yellow.

Harriet, Carson's redhead, has been on the job five nights a week, for the past couple of years. From 9 to 5, however, she is Miss Wagner, assistant to the director of talent development for the chain of Playboy nightclubs, helping to book the entertainment.

The New York girl used to work for a talent agency with offices across the street from NBC and she "got to know some of the Carson people."

"They wanted a redhead as color girl because red hair is supposed to be the most difficult to photograph," she said. "I moonlight on the job and it pays carfare, lunch and cigarette money. But it doesn't take much time—I go into makeup at 6 and at 6:30 I go before the cameras. No, I don't want to be an actress."

The biggest attraction of the job, she admits, is that she meets many of the famous guests in the makeup room.

"Gosh, just about everybody," she said. "Philip Roth, Raquel Welch. And one night I was able to tell Mayor John Lindsay myself about the heat problem in my apartment. I think that was the greatest—complaining to the mayor myself."

Zelda, CBS' West Coast color girl, is already a part of the new order: she is a plastic mannequin. Actually, there are four identical Zeldas—named by some anonymous admirer of F. Scott Fitzgerald. They are permanently assigned to each of CBS' four West Coast studio theaters.

The quartet spent the summer in retirement getting beauty treatments. They returned with peaches-and-cream skin, fresh makeup and new navy blue turtleneck sweaters with a color emblem in the center—white and red triangles.

Zelda's almost-white hair was chosen deliberately. In this day when women change hair color almost as often as their clothes, the bleaching process sometimes results in strange camera effects. A blonde can inexplicably turn up on camera with pink or even green hair.

Zelda exists only to the waist. Instead of neither limbs, there is a metal stand on wheels so she can be trundled off stage and out of sight by a light push of the hand.

The camera department says she is a very useful member of the staff: demands no salary or coffee breaks, never tires and is on duty 24 hours a day.

Some of the new color cameras have eliminated the need for color girls, live or fake. An NBC spokesman said that in some of their West Coast shows, the camera is adjusted electronically initially, and remains in balance. Other producers just borrow some member of the cast for a few minutes and adjust the cameras.

There is still room for progress, as every owner of a color set knows. There are, apparently, no rigid color standards among networks, independent producers or commercial makers. Too often when the individual TV set is fine-tuned for perfect color reception on Channel A, the job must be done all over again when the dial is moved to Channel B. And it is a rare commercial that is color-coordinated to the program on which it appears.

Masters, Johnson Married

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dr. William H. Masters and Virginia Johnson, coauthors of two sex research books, have launched a new joint effort—marriage.

Dr. Masters confirmed Thursday night that he and his partner in the Reproductive Biology Research Foundation were married Jan. 7 in Fayetteville, Ark.

Their controversial research into sex acts has produced the material for the books "Human Sexual Response," published in 1966, and a 1970 followup, "Human Sexual Inadequacy."

Dr. Masters said no attempt was made to conceal the marriage.

"It was just a private ceremony," he said.

Masters, 55, and his 45-year-old wife each has two children by previous marriages. Masters was divorced Aug. 27, 1970, she on Nov. 30, 1965. Masters is an obstetrician and gynecologist and his wife a psychologist.

Masters said he and his wife will continue to be known professionally as Dr. Masters and Mrs. Johnson.

The first systematic weather reports in the United States are attributed to the Rev. John Campanius Holm, chaplain of a settlement near present-day Wilmington, Del., who began making regular observations only 24 years after the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620.

Bottle Cleanup

The people of Burlington, Wis., have begun a unique, but perhaps essential, campaign of recycling glass bottles for future use, rather than littering the Wisconsin countryside with them after they've served their initial purpose. Citizens have been urged to bring their bottles to a local glass company for recycling. (AP)

Glass Campaign In Style

BURLINGTON, Wis. (AP) — Church groups, housewives who have cleaned basements, and kids who want a few cents for bubble gum line up at the Foster Forbes Glass Co. twice a week to sell used bottles and jars in a company effort to slow pollution and keep open a major market for its products.

The firm crushes the glass into pea-sized bits called cullet which is used to make new bottles and jars.

It is losing money on the deal -paying out more than $100 a day-but hopes that by recycling the empties it will cut the number of them littering the environment and slow the forces trying to ban disposable bottles.

"We have always used cullet in making our glass," said Dick Smith, plant engineer at Foster Forbes' Burlington plant. "The new thing we're doing is buying it from the public."

"We ask that they be sorted by color: green, amber, clear," Smith said, "and that metal, such as foil labels and caps, be removed."

The program to buy empties from the public was started by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, Smith said, as one way to help dispose of solid waste without adding to the burden already burying sanitary landfills.

"Industry research indicates that crushed glass can supply 30 per cent or more of the raw material needed to make new bottles," the institute said in announcing the program. It set a goal of 11 billion containers to be recycled.

The institute stated that firms with 92 plants in 27 states were taking part in the program. By last November, the institute said, nearly 50 million bottles had been recycled.

At the Burlington plant, two workers weigh the glass on a small platform scale, dump the tinkling raw material into a hopper and pay off the person who offered it.

Crushed into cullet, the scrap glass is blown into a blast furnace with the assorted other ingredients, which include silica sand, burned lime, soda ash, nephline syenite, blast furnace slag and other essentials.

"About 20 per cent of a batch of glass will be cullet," Smith said. "We're producing about 300 tons of glass a day here, so the 11,000 pounds of glass we buy is just a drop in the bucket. We're set up to buy a lot more."

Theatrical Bonus Is Yiddish Treat

"It's not particularly for a living," he declares, "but because the people need it. I'm doing my best to keep a valuable tradition alive."

Bonus is a stocky, grizzled producer-singer director-actor of Yiddish dramatics, one of the few remaining quality craftsmen in that once-flourishing entertainment zone. At 49, he sternly pooh-poohs the suggestion that such folk art must join the dodo in extinction.

Lest anyone think he's just off on some fantasy trip, Bonus the businessman offers statistical support. In New York City $40,000 per week was grossed recently on a spate of Yiddish shows, and capacity audiences attend his perennial visitations to 70 American cities. Latin-American trips testify further to widespread interest in colloquial wares.

Bonus admits that during the past few years there has been a disastrous apparently contradictory, shrinkage of sustained professional activity on New York's Lower East Side, the former shrine of idiomatic stagecraft.

"It's not a question of deterioration of ethnic interest among the young that everyone claims," Bonus says. "Many of the young are still interested in their heritage.

"We were driven off Second Avenue because landlords got greedy and wanted higher rent than we could pay." One playhouse became that citadel of rock culture, Fillmore East. Others were booked for off-Broadway shows that scaled box offices at higher rates.

"Another thing, the Yiddish theater didn't look ahead. Young people should have been coming into it to perform, but the elders in the profession wouldn't let them in. Years ago they threw Danny Kaye out, they didn't want competition. And the plays they did—soap opera is art in comparison, in my opinion."

Bonus feels, too, that the non-Semitic public has a distorted notion, based on comic night club exaggeration, of what his kind of theater really is—"that kind of thing is all right for the Catskill honeymoon trade, but it's not Yiddish art."

The material worth keeping is "that marvelously rich literature of folk humor and ideals, some of it hundreds of years old, so adaptable to the stage."

As part of his campaign to keep group theater tradition alive "with decency, so we shouldn't be ashamed," Bonus brought his company to Broadway this season with "Light, Lively and Yiddish," a variety showcase of songs and narrative which already has been invited to play next spring in Israel, a performing area Bonus has somehow previously missed. For his actress-wife, Mina Bern, the tour would be a homecoming, for she has sung to frontline troops there.

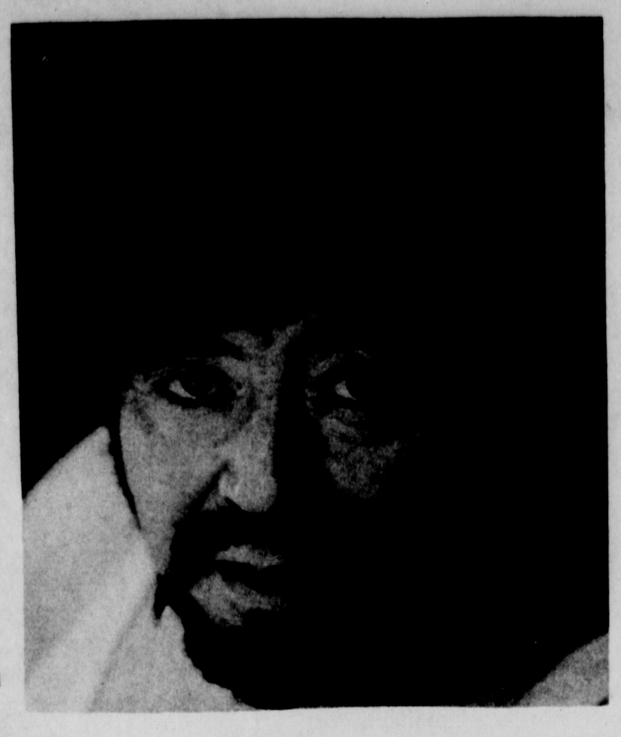
Bonus has been engrossed in folkart since shortly after arriving here from Poland in 1939, a refugee from the Nazi holocaust in which his parents, four brothers and two sisters died.

"I come by my theatrical interest naturally," because a cousin, Alexander Granach, was a confrere of Max Reinhardt and the main stage rival in Germany of Emil Jannings.

"The trouble was I had a voice," Bonus goes on "and for several years concentrated on folk singing on the radio." In 1943 he made his acting debut with Jacob Ben-Ami, two years later went on for another downtown luminary, Maurice Schwartz.

"Eventually some might be done in translation. I've got nothing against English, but the language is such an important part of such work that doing it in a different tongue poses difficulties. Subtleties, poetic beauty get lost, a certain flavor that's untranslatable.

"Like opera. People sit for hours listening to opera in Italian or Russian without understanding a single word. Why? Because the sheer beauty comes through anyhow. It is the same with Yiddish theater."



Yiddish Craftsman

Ben Bonus is a producer-singer director-actor of Yiddish dramatics, one of the few remaining quality craftsmen in that once fluorishing entertainment zone. Here, in his backstage dressing room at a New York theater, he wears beard and mustache make-up and a favorite old hat, which he says has been through nearly 900 performances with him since he got it in Argentina 10 years ago. Possible Big Gamble in Laos

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

When the American decision to back an incursion of eastern Laos is thrown against the backdrop of the sharp changes of the last decade in Southeast Asia, the suggestion of a big gamble seems to emerge.

Suppose—just suppose—the operation opened up an avenue to peace that had not seemed to exist previously.

There appears to be less chance these days of an enormous international crisis over Laos than there was a decade ago. Things have changed. Values have changed. What might have looked extremely important 10 years ago may look less important now.

Ten years ago chancelleries around the world regarded the danger in Laos as acute. President John F. Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev met and managed to agree on the imminence of the danger. They arranged the 14-nation meeting in Geneva which was intended to dampen the fuse.

The Geneva meeting which brought about the accord of July 1962 held off the world crisis. But the accord, which was supposed to guarantee the independence and neutrality of Laos, was honored only in the breach, and crisis was to follow upon crisis.

In the '50s the United States got into Southeast Asia by trying to help the French retain Indochina. Ten years ago, the area's resources may have seemed vital to American interests. Ten years ago, free access to certain air lanes and waterways may have seemed essential to Western security.

The resources of Southeast Asia no longer seem so important, and this is the age of the superplane and the supertanker. The Suez Canal has been closed almost four years with only minor repercussions.

Ten years ago the Russians and Chinese may have considered Southeast Asia of extreme importance to their national interests. They have less reason today to become entangled to the point of extreme danger.

The Chinese, with their vast population, the current hostility toward the U.S.S.R. and their continuing isolation, have plenty of problems without borrowing more. In any case, Southeast Asia can hardly, these days, be regarded as anything approaching a ricebowl for China's millions.

The Peking regime now is making much noise about a threat of American use of nuclear weapons in Asia. But it is unlikely to believe that propaganda itself. The Red Chinese regime in all probability is well aware of an American dread of further entanglement on the Asian mainland.

Southeast Asia no longer is the ripe plum it once seemed. It is much stronger and more viable than in 1961, much more able to cooperate on a regional basis for the common welfare.

Grant to Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — The United Nations and Sweden have jointly granted Cuba $2 million to create an institute for the manufacture and conservation of frozen foods, Radio Havana has announced.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said Cuba would add $4.5 million to the five-year development program.

The United Nations Economic and Social Council has agreed to send 16 technicians and will provide 19 scholarships for Cuban students studying abroad, the broadcast stated.

- 2-ply polyester cord body for strength and a smoother ride
- 2 fiber glass belts stabilize the wide tread, reducing squirm and scrub for improved mileage and better driver control
- Built to last, with a 36-month tread-wear expectancy

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance
40,000 miles	Prorated on Miles Driven
40 month	$10.00
39 month	8.00
36 month	6.00
33 month	5.00
30 month	4.00
24 month	3.00
18 month	2.00

Ask Them Yourself

FOR SEN. JOHN TOWER, Texas

When do the three-day national holiday weekends become effective? How many will there be each year, and when will they occur?—Herman D. Jones, San Antonio, Texas

● In Public Law 90-363, Congress enacted a new scheme of holiday designations so that there would be more three-day weekends. As such, the holiday designations apply only to Federal employes and residents of the District of Columbia. Each state has to choose whether it intends to observe the new Federal designations. The statute designations are in effect as of Jan. 1, 1971. The new holiday arrangement will be: New Year's Day, Jan. 1; Washington's Birthday, third Monday in February; Memorial Day, last Monday in May; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, first Monday in September; Veterans Day, fourth Monday in October; Thanksgiving Day, fourth Thursday in November; Christmas Day, Dec. 25; Inauguration Day, Jan. 20 of each fourth year after 1965; Columbus Day, second Monday in October.

● Farmers are in a weak economic position because they do not plan together for the good of the industry, their fellow producers, and the consumer. To plan well, farmers must get together, unite, organize tightly, with a high degree of unselfishness. Their organizations, e.g., the co-operatives, could provide the planning machinery needed, but too many farmers regard them only as service outlets. Worse, farm-organization meetings are poorly attended; elected leaders have unlimited tenure; women and young farmers have scarcely any voice; idea-people are nipped in the bud. Result? Zero horsepower.

FOR BOB HOPE

Of all your Christmas trips entertaining American troops in Vietnam, which one do you hold as your most memorable experience?—Mrs. Margaret Lewis, Dubuque, Iowa

● Asking me which of my overseas trips has been most memorable is like asking a father which of his children he likes best. Each of them had something memorable—the faces of the wounded, the joy of the combat troops when they forgot the war long enough to whistle and applaud the pretty girls, so many things. One experience which stands out was the kid who insisted on giving me a plain Zippo lighter he had—no engraving, nothing fancy. He just wanted to give me something, while all the time I wanted to say "thank you" to him.

FOR PAUL HARVEY, radio and television commentator

When you give your comments on television, you are usually in a room with the décor of a study. Is this in your home? Also, are your suits tailored just for you? They seem to fit you so well with no wrinkles or pulls? —H. Adams, Ft. Walton, Fla.

● It is a reconstruction of my home library in a Chicago studio. Yes, they are tailored just for me. My proportions require it.

FOR D. W. RABENHORST, aeronautical engineer, Applied Physics Laboratory the Johns Hopkins University

Do you see engineless cars in the near future?—Mrs. Laura Hill, Humboldt, Saskatchewan, Can.

● Definitely yes. There are quite a few engineless electric cars on the road even now, although most of them are in Europe and Japan. However, these cars are limited to a few miles range and have very poor acceleration compared with conventional cars. Fortunately the electric cars of the future will be powered by a superflywheel instead of batteries and will have several times the range and acceleration performance of the present electric cars. The feasibility of the superflywheel concept was recently demonstrated in tests here at the Applied Physics Laboratory, the Johns Hopkins University. The concept will soon be made available to industry for development and production of electric cars. Hopefully, you will be seeing them on the road in a very few years.

FOR PETE MARAVICH, Atlanta Hawks

What was the biggest adjustment you had to make going from college to professional basketball?—James H. Fetter, Lancaster, Pa.

● The biggest adjustment is actually three-fold. First, you're playing with the best players in the world, and you have to realize this. Secondly, the long schedule and travel can leave you limp. I played a maximum of 30 games in college, and we'd played more than that before the college season started; and last, but not least, learning to take the constant pounding you get in the pros.

FOR MR. KENNETH, hair stylist

Since so many teen-age girls have adopted long, straight do-it-yourself hairdos, what influence do you think this has on the gross dollar intake of beauty shops?—Joel Allard, San Antonio, Texas

● Women today believe in the ecology of hair—healthy, shiny, luxurious-looking hair. The hairdresser who insists his clients wear a feathered cut with a lot of teasing and spray and a long comb-out time each week is not tomorrow's hairdresser. There are other services in salons besides "shampoos and sets." They include scalp and hair treatments, hair coloring, straightening, body permanents, make-up and facial or body services. And long hair is at its most beautiful when it is well-trimmed by a professional hairdresser at least once a month.

FOR MARLO THOMAS, tv's "That Girl"

How did you get the name Marlo?—Ann Streb, Dalton, Ohio

● As a small child, I was unable to pronounce the name Margo, short for my given name of Margaret. "Marlo," as I pronounced it, then became a family nick-name.

FOR JOHNNY CARSON

On the Don Rickles Friars Club Roasts, who wrote the roasters' material?—S. J. Grochmal, Willingboro, N.J.

● The material for the roasters (Milton Berle, Dick Cavett, Chet Huntley, Alan King, George C. Scott, and Henny Youngman) was credited to the regular team of Kraft writers—Danny Simon (head writer), Marty Farrell, Norman Barasch, Carroll Moore, Tony Webster, Coleman Jacoby, and Bob Ellison. My remarks were more or less ad lib.

FOR ELIZABETH POST, etiquette authority

Is it proper for a military wife to use her husband's title? I recently read a society article mentioning Mrs. Capt. John Smith, and I wondered. —Alvin Baldwin, Petaluma, Calif.

● The wife of a military officer is addressed just as any other married woman. She does not use her husband's military title ever.

FOR JOE NAMATH, quarterback, New York Jets

I have heard one report that you are quitting pro football to make a career in the movies. Another report says that you will come back despite your knee trouble. Which is right? —N. L., Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● The way I feel right now I want to play next season. I've discovered that I really miss not being able to play. That and the fact that I can play better than anybody at my position, and I want to prove that next year.

FOR RUDD WEATHERWAX, owner-trainer of Lassie

● Lassie is the fifth generation of purebred collies, and when offspring come along, I give them to friends—along with papers to prove their heritage.

Want to ask a famous person a question? You can through this column, and we'll get the answer from the prominent person you designate. Send question, preferably on a post card, to Ask Them Yourself, Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We cannot acknowledge questions, but $5 will be paid for each one used.

QUIZ

Can You Handle A Medical Crisis?

By TODD CARRINGTON

I was having dinner with some friends recently when one of the women in our party suddenly got a piece of crusty bread stuck in her throat. She managed to swallow the bread, fortunately, because the rest of us at the table were momentarily frozen in uncertainty as to what to do!

1. Your dinner companion suddenly chokes on a piece of bread. Instantly slap him hard on the back.

2. Someone faints at a party or meeting in a crowded, smoke-filled room. Get some ice and apply it immediately to the person's forehead, and to the back of his neck.

3. A dog you've never seen before in your neighborhood takes a nip out of you and breaks the skin. Wash the wound at once with soap under running water; then bandage.

4. A swimmer underestimates a strong tide and is pulled under water, almost drowning. When he is on shore, roll him onto his stomach and begin artificial respiration.

5. Your nose suddenly and unaccountably starts spurting blood. For a severe nosebleed, you should squeeze or press the nostrils.

6. The kids are playing "house" in the kitchen, and one of them accidentally swallows cleanser or bleach. Induce vomiting immediately.

7. You're helping your do-it-himself neighbor install a new electric line, when he accidentally grabs a "hot wire" and collapses. You should immediately pull him away from the hot wire.

8. An amateur chef drops a skillet of hot fat, and some of it spatters on you. Your friends should immediately apply a dry sterile compress.

ANSWERS

1. Wrong.
Slap a person on the back only as a last resort if choking continues. Otherwise you may force the bread (or other food) into the windpipe. A coughing spasm will usually expel the food. Use mouth-to-mouth resuscitation if breathing stops; and rush the person to the hospital.

2. Wrong.
Loosen the person's clothing, and lay him down with the head turned to one side. Open windows for air and use aromatic spirits of ammonia under his nose. Have the person rest quietly for a half hour. If unconsciousness lasts for more than a few minutes, call a doctor.

3. Right.
After you've thoroughly washed the bite and bandaged it, try to have the dog apprehended and tested for rabies. Check your doctor about the necessity for tetanus or anti-rabies injections.

4. Wrong.

5. Right.
And apply an ice pack or cloth wrung out in cold water, to the forehead, back of neck, or upper lip. Don't blow your nose!

6. Wrong.
When anyone swallows a corrosive substance such as lye or bleach, look first for the antidote instructions printed on the container. If there are none, give water or milk of magnesia, and call your doctor or local Poison Control Center. Do not induce vomiting.

7. Wrong.
Do not touch the person until the electricity is shut off, or you may be shocked as well. If it's not possible to turn off the power, use a length of rope or a wooden pole to pull the victim away from the "hot wire." Then, if breathing has stopped, begin mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and call the doctor.

8. Right.
But don't try to clean the burn or break blisters. Simply stay warm and quiet until the doctor comes. ◆

A Valentine's Guide To the 'New' Woman

St. Valentine has seen many changes in how his day is celebrated. Two generations ago it was all the rage to send "ugly" cards pointing out the recipient's defects. One generation ago romance made a comeback, and all was hearts and flowers.

Today, however, what with so many young women wanting to be "liberated" from their customary sex roles, the average young man isn't quite sure how to treat this new breed of female. Here, then, is a handy guide to the kind of approach called for when one is courting the Liberated Woman who is "turned off" by old-fashioned male gallantry:

Watch Your Language. There's a whole new feminist vocabulary. Don't ask a liberated woman for a date. There are friendships, and they evolve. Guard yourself against such remarks as "you're a good-looking broad." This isn't man talk. It's just insulting to a woman. Don't call this woman lady, girl, doll, honey, or baby : belittling terms which define her as an object, a thing. Use her name.

To the liberated woman, "feminine" connotes a pretense, something unnatural—like batting one's eyelashes. If you dig her, say she's female, not feminine.

If she's an ardent feminist, be careful. Never insinuate she's a man hater —anti-men—just because she's pro-women. She'll never forgive you. Anyway, ridicule is a ploy used by a man to keep a woman in her place.

Who Calls Whom. After you've made each other's acquaintance and you decide you'd like to see one another again, who calls whom? It should be left casual, informal. She can call you, or you can call her. It will give you a chance to see what it's like on the other side—to accept or refuse a date as well as being accepted or not.

Calling for Her. This is largely circumstantial. If she has a car, let her pick you up. If you do, then vice-versa. If you both drive, flip a coin. If neither of you does, arrange to meet at a central place. Don't act as if you're responsible for her. A liberated woman detests paternalism.

Where to Go. The liberated gal may be as interested in a Women's Lib meeting as she is in spending the evening with you. Why not go along, take an interest in her activities.

The liberated woman is a great talker. Why not suggest dinner. Don't choose the place. Two decisions and you're a chauvinist. Better yet, be unconventional. Why not cook supper and let her bring the wine.

This gal's involved in politics, the community, so know what rallies and lectures are around.

Choosing the Wine. If you've agreed to have dinner out, play it by ear. Decisions can be shared which formerly were assumed by the man. If she frequents the restaurant in which you are dining, let her ask the headwaiter for a good table. What about the wine? She might be able to suggest a good Chablis if you're eating fish. You may let her deal with the wine steward.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY JOHN HUEHNERGARTH

Paying the Bill. Split the check, no if's, and's, or but's. The liberated woman doesn't want a man paying for her "services." You're spending the evening together because you like her, not because you're buying her time.

The Conversation. What to talk about with a liberated woman: the more heated the discussion the better. The liberated woman loves to argue, use her wits. Her being cute, sweet, pretty may be enough for you, but it's not for her. She will resent discussing trivia, also intellectual condescension. "Man is intellect, woman intuition" became obsolete the day the first woman entered a classroom. Encourage her to take pride in her accomplishments.

Know, too, that with this woman you're not in competition. You don't have to prove you're an authority. But believe in what you say. She can spot a phony.

Status Symbol. (An extra hint) Don't invite this woman out to impress friends, coworkers. She'll sense it and dislike you. She's not a possession, a decoration. This kind of invitation is out: "Would you enjoy meeting me for dinner? I've just finished a business conference, and some of the fellows have asked me to join them."

Compliments. Save them. They're usually patronizing: "Honey, I like that dress (better than the other one)"; or, "Your hair looks great that way (rather than hanging limp)." Seldom a man can flatter without sounding like he's instructing a woman. Sometimes compliments are exploitative: "Your skin is so soft"; "Your hair is so lovely." This kind of adoration makes the liberated woman feel as if she is being turned into an object.

Boning Up on the Lib. Know something about woman's history: who were Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Emma Goldman, Elizabeth Blackwell? Read Kate Millet's "Sexual Politics" and Betty Friedan's "The Feminine Mystique." Become familiar with the ideas of Simone de Beauvoir, Ti-Grace Atkinson, and Robin Morgan.

Care about the Equal-Rights Amendment (on and off) in Congress and Women's Lib activities in your town: job discrimination, child-care centers, disparaging images of women on television as well as in films.

Criticism. Don't correct her manners. Keep quiet if she uses the wrong fork during dinner or mispronounces the name of a house specialty.

Oneupmanship is usually distasteful. Ask yourself, "Would I ever want her to correct me"?

Saying Good Night. The liberated woman has discarded the taboos and inhibitions handed down by Mother. So don't be surprised if she's affectionate. And don't be astonished if she's not. Women's Liberation means an option to choose.

Forget the Myths. "Machismo" might work for John Wayne, but the present-day woman doesn't like the drill sergeant, the conquering hero. She knows a tender, thoughtful man is much more satisfying. And forget what Dad told you about a woman wanting to be subdued. It frustrates her—all the time having to pretend she's weak and spineless. And what a bore!

So turn to that woman sitting next to you and strike up a conversation. Relax. Enjoy it. You might find out your initial fears were unwarranted and that you really enjoy being with her.

A young bachelor who had been going with a pretty girl abruptly changed his mind one evening about asking her to marry him. Later he explained why to a friend.

"I called on this girl the other night, and I was hardly inside the door before her mother started asking me questions about how much money I had and what my intentions were towards her daughter."

"That must have been embarassing," said the friend.

"Yes," said the young man, "but that wasn't the worst of it. Just about then the girl called down from upstairs and shouted: "'No, Mother, that isn't the one!'"

A family who moved from town to the suburbs decided they needed a watchdog to guard the house at night. So they bought the largest dog they could find at a local kennel.

Not long afterwards, burglars broke into the house.

The dog slept through the robbery, so the furious head of the house went to the kennel owner and complained.

"Well," explained the owner, "what you need now is a little dog to wake up the big dog."

He's in the third and final stage:

The father was reading a bedtime story to his young, precocious son. It was a story he had read many times before.

Occasionally, when the boy's eyes closed sleepily, the father would skip a paragraph. Instantly the boy would be wide awake, and he'd insist that his father go back and pick up the missing paragraph.

"What difference does it make?" the father protested. "You know the story word for word any way."

"I know," the little boy replied, "but a father should tell it like it is."

Coming—th

Here are the little-known facts ab t

Night Observation Device, which can detect enemy activity at up to nearly a mile, . . .

. . . "sees" soldier and tank in complete darkness as if they were in bright daylight.

Quietly, but with efficiency and speed, the U. S. Army is forging a startling revolution in warfare. Experts believe it will completely reshape combat techniques.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army Chief of Staff, says flatly: "We are on the threshold of an entirely new battlefield concept."

The concept is "IBCS"—*I*ntegrated *B*attlefield *C*ontrol *S*ystem—a futuristic complex of vision-expanding devices, advanced automation, exotic sensors, electronic technology, and complex computerization.

In action, here is what the sophisticated IBCS is all about. First, the battlefield of the near future will be sown in a planned pattern (by airdrop or by ground patrol) with thousands of miniaturized sensors—devices that detect the presence of an advancing enemy by the sounds of his movement, by the subtle but distinctive odors of his explosives, by the minute earth vibrations caused by his footsteps, by the infrared rays emitted by his unseen fires, and even by the chemicals released in his body wastes.

Immediately upon detecting an enemy, the unmanned sensors automatically radio their information to "portatales"—electronic read-out display panels—in a bunker miles away. The portatale operators interpret their read-outs to rule out such false alarms as animal activation of the sensors. The combined inputs from the various sensors can then reveal the location, size, speed, and direction of the enemy's movements. Finally, data from all the portatales go to a central command post where they are fed into a computer.

Meantime, on this electronic battlefield of the future, ground observers are scanning the forward areas with a series of remarkable optical instruments: "scopes" that permit clear observation even on pitch-dark nights by a many-folded amplification of starlight; devices that see through foliage; heat-image instruments that use temperature differences to create a cathode-ray-tube picture of a marching column of soldiers; sighting devices that utilize laser technology; "pink searchlights" whose invisible beams enable an observer—equipped with special glasses—to see an unsuspecting enemy in total darkness. All these sightings from the forward observation posts are radioed to the command post where they, too, are punched into the computer.

Along with portatale-and-ground observer data, information flows into the main command post from helicopters equipped with advanced radar and infrared detectors, or with such exotic devices as LLTV—a low-light intensification camera that transmits tv images of the battlefield directly to a display panel in the command post. Data from the heli-borne devices are fed into the computer to join that sent by the sensors and the ground-sighting instruments.

Already in the computer, of course, are thousands of "bits" of information previously assembled from more usual sources: intelligence estimates, agents' reports, interrogations of prisoners, data from captured documents, and intercepted messages.

But even this tremendous array of information is only half of the military equation. The commander's staff has also fed into the computer an enormous mass of facts on our own or allied forces: the location and strength of all units; weaponry and ammunition stocks; types and numbers of vehicles and aircraft; meteorological data; the condition of the roads; the status of reserves and back-up support available from rear commands.

Now, perhaps the most amazing thing in the whole IBCS setup takes place. From this welter of information, the computer produces in seconds a precise and up-to-the-second picture of both the enemy's and our own situation. The value of IBCS does not end even here. The computer is also programmed to integrate its thousands of "bits" of information into a print-out of the military action options open to the commander. The hard decisions are still his. No machine can exercise human judgment, resolve, or wisdom. But IBCS gives the commander unprecedented scope for making lightning-fast yet surpassingly sound battlefield decisions.

And while IBCS cannot fight the individual soldier's battle for him, it does give the GI a vastly enhanced opportunity of defeating the enemy with the least possible risk to himself.

There is no doubt that, in the words of General Westmoreland, IBCS will exert as profound a change on land combat as did the tank and the helicopter. Indeed, many Pentagon insiders believe that Westmoreland understates the case. They say that IBCS will remake the face of warfare more thoroughly than anything since the invention of gunpowder.

When can we expect the Integrated Battlefield Control System to become fact? Is IBCS still far down a distant road, or is it drawing into sight? "With cooperative effort," says General Westmoreland, "no more than 10 years should separate us from the automated battlefield."

Electronic Battlefield

America's fantastic new system of computerized warfare

By VERNON PIZER

But the truth is that the first stages of IBCS are already a reality. For example, here is a sampling of some of the more than 250 automated battlefield items that are already developed:

MINISID (Miniature Seismic Intrusion Detector)—Implanted by hand along likely routes of enemy approach this compact sensor detects the vibrations of moving soldiers at a distance of more than 100 feet, and those of vehicles at more than 1,000 feet. It instantly converts these seismic vibrations into electrical impulses and transmits them by self-contained radio to a distant "portatale" monitor. (ADSID and PSID, similar to MINISID, have greater range.)

XM-3—Popularly dubbed "the people sniffer," this is a chemical sensor that detects the presence of humans by identifying tell-tale substances in their body wastes. It also sends its data to a read-out monitor.

SLAR—This highly sophisticated airborne radar is able to look sideways as well as straight ahead, thus vastly increasing the area of battlefield surveillance. On the ground, there is AN PPS-9 and AN PPS-10—radars so miniaturized that one can be carried by a single patrolling soldier.

ACOUBUOY—A compact acoustical sensor has emerged from pioneering Navy development of sub-killer sonar devices. Delivered on target by air-drop, the device picks up and broadcasts to its home base all the sounds made by an enemy who does not even suspect he is "on the air."

STARLIGHT SCOPE—An individual weapon sight that abolishes darkness for the night-fighting soldier by multiplying a thousand-fold the faint starlight or moonlight that is reflected by his target. This is only one in a whole family of night-vision devices. Another is helmet-mounted, infrared binoculars that enable a driver to see in the dark.

These and scores of other devices have already been battle-tested in Vietnam and have emerged with flying colors. The first major test came in early 1968, when a massive Vietcong and North Vietnamese force was closing in on the U.S. base at Khe Sanh. The U.S. command seeded the approaches to Khe Sanh with its sensors, not without a certain degree of skepticism. But skeptics were rapidly converted to believers when the sensors began to "talk" to them around the clock, drawing a detailed picture of the advancing enemy.

So timely and accurate was this sensor-developed data that the U.S. defenders were quickly able to fashion a counter-strategy and smash two enemy divisions. An official U.S. report of the action, referring specifically to the role played by sensors, declared that "The results at Khe Sanh fired the imagination of the field commanders."

Probably the most experienced of all U.S. commanders in the new techniques of the electronic battlefield is Major General Ellis W. Williamson, commander of the 25th Infantry Division in Vietnam from mid-1968 until the end of 1969.

The 52-year-old North Carolinian, who began his military career as a National Guard private, was a highly decorated combat commander in World War II and Korea as well as Vietnam. When he talks about combat, people listen. Not long ago, members of the U.S. Senate Armed Services Committee listened attentively as General Williamson testified on his experiences on the electronic battlefield.

"The best real war story I have is Fire Base Crook," he said. "This is where 412 enemy soldiers were eliminated with the loss of only one U.S. soldier."

Fire Base Crook was established in April, 1969, northwest of Tay Ninh city. A sharp thorn in the enemy's side, the base blocked one of his divisions and also served as a springboard for American operations near the Cambodian border. Aware that attack against Crook was only a matter of time, Williamson ordered sensors seeded along its approaches.

On June 5, the North Vietnamese attacked. In General Williamson's own words, "The first indication of enemy activity near Crook was given by sensor activations 950 meters east and 550 meters northwest of the base at 2000

Dubbed "People Sniffer," this backpack being used in Vietnam is sensitive to human body chemicals; it indicates the presence of enemy ahead to monitoring soldier.

Electronic Battlefield

hours. Artillery took the movements under fire. Simultaneously our radar atop the tower began to detect movement in the woodline . . . all of these were engaged with artillery fire. Cloud cover cleared shortly after midnight, and the soldier manning the night-observation device on the tower began confirming radar sightings."

Fighting broke off at dawn when the North Vietnamese withdrew. They left 76 dead behind. On the American side one soldier had been killed by an incoming mortar round.

The next night the sensors came to life again, heralding a renewed attack in greater strength. This time the American forces—alerted by their sensors and aided by their night-vision devices—accounted for 323 enemy dead and 10 captured without a single American loss. On the third night, the North Vietnamese launched a final but half-hearted attack that cost them three more casualties. The one-sided statistics lend emphasis to the contention of General Williamson and other experts that the developing electronic battlefield has already cost the enemy dearly, while conserving American lives.

But the Fire Base Crook story wasn't over yet. The enemy attempted to neutralize Williamsons 25th Division by sowing the entire sector with thousands of difficult-to-detect plastic mines and booby traps. Mining was not new; it had been going on for months; but the scale of these nightly plantings was a serious and unprecedented threat.

At division headquarters, General Williamson and his staff had a hunch that electronics might hold the key. They had a UNIVAC 1005 computer that was used to process personnel records. Pressing the computer into far different usage, the staff fed into the location of every mine and booby trap that had been discovered over the past several months. Their hope was that the computer's ability to analyze the enormous amount of data would reveal the enemy's master plan for his mining operations.

The hunch paid off. The computer revealed a clear pattern of seven specific areas of high-density mining. Williamson immediately diverted 56 sensors to the seven areas. His aim was to overcome the mines by eliminating the soldiers who moved in each night to plant them.

The payoff was immediate and dramatic. Each night, the sensors came to life, announcing that enemy mine layers were at work. Artillery then zeroed in on the unseen miners, wreaking havoc. In an understatement, Williamson says matter-of-factly: "We complicated the life of the mine planter no end."

Obviously the first phases of the Integrated Battlefield Control System is still in its infancy. But it holds the awesome promise of an electronic battlefield of the future that might well make war itself obsolete. ◆

Helicopter crewman is about to seed battlefield with ADSID—a compact sensor that imbeds itself in the ground and picks up slightest earth vibrations created by enemy soldiers.

PLAY POLE

"Effortless exercise"? Nonsense. It's an impossible dream. Exercise is exercise. You know it, we know it.

But suppose someone were to come up with a way to get all the physical benefits of "old-fashioned" exercise—that was every bit as much fun as swinging a golf club or a ping-pong paddle? Wouldn't it be worth trying? Well, some genius has done just that . . . and knowing a good thing when we see it, we've brought it here for American women. Since it originated in Scandinavia (where women are known for their beautiful shapes), we've named it after them and call it . . .

THE SCANDINAVIAN PLAY POLE

Silly-looking little "contraption" isn't it? But who cares, when "playing" with it for 3-minutes a day can help you spot-reduce inches off your waistline or hips. Enhance your bustline. Give you the kind of curves men admire and women envy.

Originated in Scandinavia, known for their lithe, lovely women, the Play Pole can be used anywhere you wish. There's no dieting involved. No pills. No elaborate equipment. No need to disrobe. You can even do the Play Pole's "motionless exercise" game while you're watching TV.

It'll Give You Energy, Not Drain It

This happy combination of beauty and fun is particularly nice when you consider that, unlike conventional methods of slenderizing, the Play Pole won't "drain" your energy. It won't leave you limp and exhausted like "old-fashioned" exercises. On the contrary. Not only does the Play Pole help give you all the benefits of graceful figure slimming . . . a more alluring bustline . . . and firm, supple body contours—but it makes you feel better because you look better.

Module #4. DEVELOPING THE MUSCULAR SYSTEM OF THE BUST

Module #9. SLIMMING THE WAISTLINE

Module #12. SPOT-REDUCING THE THIGHS

Isometrics — It's Scientific Stuff

The Play Pole is based on the scientific principle of Isometrics. You must have heard of it. Everybody has (even though scientists seem to be the only ones who really understand it). It has been reported in Reader's Digest, Life and countless medical journals throughout the world. The Isometric concept has been acclaimed by doctors, athletes—even the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

Basically, Isometrics is a system geared to your own natural force. Over and over again, Isometric slenderizing has been shown to help slim unwanted bulges and firm unsightly trouble spots. Yet there are no rigorous movements.

But that's all technical stuff. What it all comes down to, simply, is that Play Pole is an easy 3 minutes a day, "fun" exercise (game actually), that can help give you a figure you'll be proud to own.

And the Play Pole adapts to every woman's figure, which means that it can solve your individual figure problems. So, if your hips are too prominent . . . if you have a "bulging" tummy . . . or too much of a "rear view"—you can use Play Pole to spot-reduce or firm up specific problem areas.

In less time than you spend combing your hair in the morning this amazing little Play Pole (as silly as it looks) can help bring visible improvement in your waistline . . . hips . . . thighs . . . upper arms . . . stomach . . . and bustline. But look, we could go on bragging about Play Pole forever and you'd probably still have your doubts (It does sound too good to be true) . . . so what could be fairer than this . . .

YOUR SATISFACTION GUARANTEED — Or Your Money Back in Full

We know the Play Pole works. We also know that your own personal experience with the Play Pole is the best way to prove it. That's why we want you to try it without risk.

Here's our offer: Devote only 3 minutes a day to the Play Pole FOR JUST TEN DAYS. If in that amount of time you don't begin to achieve results you can feel . . . results you can measure with a tape measure . . . results you can see in the mirror and "read" in the admiring glances of people around you—return the Play Pole to us and your money will be refunded in full. We'd be foolish to make an offer like this if we weren't sure Play Pole really works.

How much is the Play Pole? It'll cost you less than $10. But that's not very much to pay for a more beautiful figure . . . is it? And remember, it's sold to you on a money-back guarantee—so we've got absolutely nothing to gain, unless you lose . . . inches of course.

An Important Message

To Every Man And Woman

In America

Losing His Or Her Hair

If you are troubled by thinning hair, dandruff, itchy scalp, if you fear approaching baldness, read the rest of this statement carefully. It may mean the difference to you between saving your hair and losing the rest of it to eventual baldness.

Baldness is simply a matter of subtraction. When the number of new hairs fail to equal the number of falling hair, you end up minus your head of hair (bald). Why not avoid baldness by preventing unnecessary loss of hair? Why not turn the tide of battle on your head by eliminating needless causes of hair loss and give Nature a chance to grow more hair for you? Many of the country's dermatologists and other foremost hair and scalp specialists believe that seborrhea, a common scalp disorder, causes hair loss. What is seborrhea? It is a bacterial infection of the scalp that can eventually cause permanent damage to the hair follicles. Its visible evidence is "thinning" hair. Its end result is baldness. Its symptoms are dry, itchy scalp, dandruff, oily hair, head scales, and progressive hair loss.

So, if you are beginning to notice that your forehead is getting larger, beginning to notice that there is too much hair on your comb, beginning to be worried about the dryness of your hair, the itchyness of your scalp, the ugly dandruff — these are Nature's Red Flags warning you of impending baldness. Even if you have been losing your hair for some time, don't let seborrhea rob you of the rest of your hair.

HOW COMATE WORKS ON YOUR SCALP

The development of an amazing new hair and scalp medicine called Comate is specifically designed to control seborrhea and stop the hair loss it causes. It offers the opportunity to thousands of men and women losing their hair to bacterial infection to reverse the battle they are now losing on their scalps. By stopping this impediment to normal hair growth, new hairs can grow as Nature intended.

This is how Comate works: (1) It combines in a single scalp treatment the essential corrective factors for normal hair growth. By its rubifacient action it stimulates blood circulation to the scalp, thereby supplying more nutrition to still-alive hair follicles. (2) As a highly effective antiseptic, Comate kills on contact the seborrhea-causing scalp bacteria believed to be a cause of baldness. (3) By its keratolitic action it dissolves ugly dandruff. By tending to normalize the lubrication of the hair shaft it corrects excessively dry and oily hair. It eliminates head scales and scalp itch.

In short, Comate offers you in a single treatment the best that modern medicine has developed for the preservation of your hair. There is no excuse today except ignorance for any man or woman to neglect seborrhea and pay the penalty of hair loss.

COMATE IS UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED

To you we offer this UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE. Treat your scalp to Comate in your own home, following the simple directions. See for yourself in your own mirror how after a few treatments, Comate makes your hair look thicker and alive. How Comate ends your dandruff, stops your scalp itch. How Comate gives your hair a chance to grow. Most men and women report results after the first treatment, some take longer. But we say this to you. If, for any reason, you are not completely satisfied with the improvement in your own case — AT ANY TIME — return the unused portion for a prompt refund. No questions asked.

But don't delay. For the sake of your hair, order Comate today. Nothing — not even Comate — can grow hair from dead follicles. Fill out the coupon now, and take the first step toward a good head of hair again.

• COMATE CORPORATION
21 West 44th Street, New York, N.Y. 10036

Male pattern baldness is the cause of the great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss. In such cases neither the Comate treatment nor any other treatment is effective.

SAUNA SHORTS

GUARANTEED TO TAKE 3 TO 6 INCHES OFF YOUR HIPS, THIGHS & WAISTLINE IN JUST ONE WEEK OR YOUR MONEY REFUNDED.

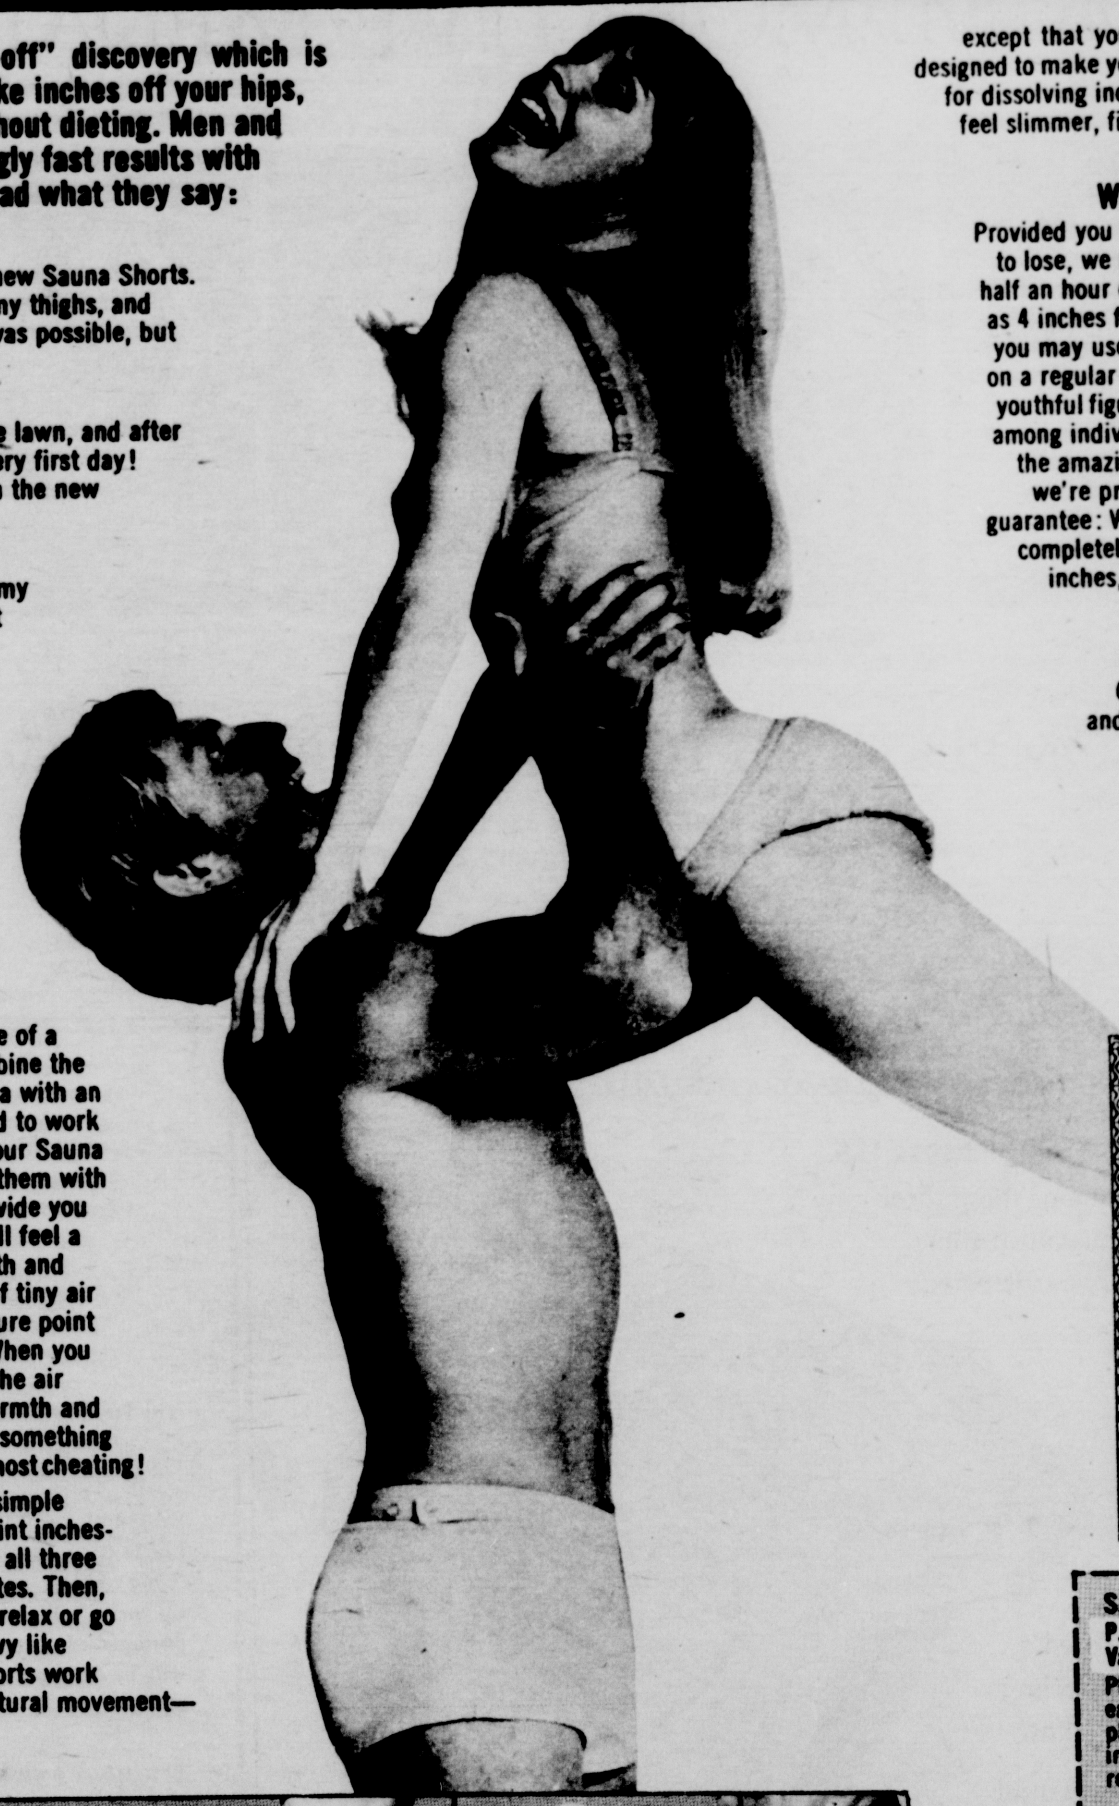
Here it is: The Brand New "Inches-off" discovery which is proving beyond doubt that you can take inches off your hips, thighs and waistline in just days—without dieting. Men and women alike are experiencing amazingly fast results with this new inches-removing method. Read what they say:

B. W.: Montreal, Canada
"I lost 6½" in just 7 days with my fabulous new Sauna Shorts. Two inches from my waist, two inches from my thighs, and 2½ inches from my hips! I didn't believe it was possible, but the tape measure doesn't lie!"

Mr. R. G.: Burbank, California
"I wore my Sauna Shorts one day to mow the lawn, and after I was done, I found I had lost 2 inches the very first day! No more pleated pants for me. I look great in the new styles, if I do say so myself."

Mrs. L. J. S.: Miami, Florida
"You should see me doing the housework in my floral print Sauna Shorts. I've had such great results, it almost makes cleaning house worthwhile. Three inches gone in a week —three more to go!"

J. L.: Paris, Texas
"I'm down to a size 9 pants from a size 11 and I owe it all to Sauna Shorts. All my clothes look much better on me now, and I feel great. I just wear my Sauna Shorts every two weeks or so now to keep in good shape (Literally!). Thanks for developing such an easy way to slim down."



HOW DO SAUNA SHORTS WORK?

These incredible new Sauna Shorts are made of a veritable "bee hive" of air pockets that combine the benefits of your own personal Swedish Sauna with an amazingly simple exercise plan—all designed to work away your unwanted inches. Just slip into your Sauna Shorts as you would any shorts, and inflate them with the convenient, detachable air pump we provide you with (at no extra charge). Immediately, you'll feel a gentle massaging action, a comforting warmth and unique support. You'll feel these hundreds of tiny air pockets—each with its own individual pressure point —snuggling up to you, tighter and tighter. When you feel the resistance is appropriate put aside the air pump and feel the comforting sauna-like warmth and support these tiny air pockets bring. How can something that's working off inches feel so good? It's almost cheating!

We'll also send along instructions for three simple exercises you will perform in order to pinpoint inches-removal from your hips, thighs or waist—or all three at once. The exercises take just a few minutes. Then, you'll keep your Sauna Shorts on while you relax or go about your regular routine. They're not heavy like many so-called reducing devices. Sauna Shorts work on the principle of creating resistance to natural movement—somewhat like isometric exercises—except that you don't have to do the work! Sauna Shorts are designed to make your every movement (even breathing) an exercise for dissolving inches. After you remove your Sauna Shorts, you'll feel slimmer, firmer—even after just one wearing. Many people report a loss of inches the very first day!

WEAR YOUR SAUNA SHORTS FOR 1 WEEK!

Provided you actually have excess inches which you can afford to lose, we recommend your wearing Sauna Shorts for about half an hour or so every day. Many persons have lost as much as 4 inches from just one session with the Sauna Shorts. And you may use your Sauna Shorts with the single exercise plan on a regular basis. You'll be able to maintain a firm, trim and youthful figure. The results obtained, this first week, will differ among individuals depending upon physical factors. But from the amazingly effective results users are now experiencing, we're prepared to make you this outstanding money-back guarantee: Wear your Sauna Shorts for 1 week. If you are not completely satisfied and/or if you have not lost from 3 to 6 inches, you may return them for a 100% prompt refund.

TWO DIFFERENT TYPES TO CHOOSE FROM...BOTH INCREDIBLE BARGAINS!

Choose the regular Sauna Shorts for reducing hips and thighs—just $9.95. For hips, thighs and waistline reduction, select the long-line Sauna Shorts... only $14.95. And remember, these Sauna Shorts are not sold in any store. They are not available elsewhere—at any price! They are available exclusively from SAUNA SHORTS, INC. in an attractive floral print pattern for ladies and in handsome navy blue for men.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

So thoroughly convinced are we that you will consider Sauna Shorts the most convenient, rapid and amazingly effective reducer for the hips, thighs (and waistline), we are offering you this unconditional money back guarantee:

Man or woman, if your total inches-loss does not equal or exceed 3 to 6 inches in just one week, you may return your Sauna Shorts for a prompt, total refund—no questions asked. So, if you want a slimmer, trimmer, more youthfully sleek look now, order your amazing new Sauna Shorts today! You have nothing to lose but inches! There is nothing like Sauna Shorts anywhere!

CAJUN COUNTRY—

The Land Where Legends Live

Winter vacationists traditionally fall into two main categories: snow birds and sun worshippers. But for woods lovers and lake fanciers, the Cajun Country of Louisiana can be a surprising change of pace.

Step behind that Spanish moss curtain, only about an hour's drive south of jazzy New Orleans, and voilà!, you are in the colorful back-country, where serpentine bayous wind their watery way around moss-veiled oaks, antebellum plantations, and quaint villages.

"Cajun" is a time—and dialect-distorted version of "Acadian." Two centuries ago the French-speaking settlers of Acadia—which we now call Nova Scotia—were exiled by the English. They made the long trek south and found refuge in Louisiana and other Southern states. Thus, still today, the region is a jambalaya of French patois, country music with Gallic 17th-century undertones. Old World folklore starring the werewolf, Loup Garou, Acadian-Creole cuisine (Oh, that crayfish étouffée!), romantic legends (Spanish moss originated from the tresses of a lovelorn Indian maiden), Saturday all-night fais-do-do dances, festivals for shrimp and suckling pig.

For us, Cajun Country begins at Cut Off in Bayou Lafourche, my husband's home town. From here, we drive hundreds of miles deeper into the soul of Cajun Country. Hospitality Cajun style decrees that my husband must stay at the homes of childhood friends, no matter when he returns to Cut Off.

Cajun Country is a land of legends, and I have followed one to St. Martinville, about 15 miles south of Lafayette. The oldest Acadian community on big Bayou Teche, St. Martinville, still retains the old tradition of tacking printed funeral notices on street posts. Here in the churchyard lies Evangeline, the heroine, immortalized in Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's epic poem.

Evangeline—one of the banished Acadians

Also Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief In Many Cases from Pain and Burning Itch in Such Tissues.

There's an exclusive formulation which actually helps shrink the painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by infection. In many cases the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from itching and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues.

The sufferer first notices relief from such painful discomfort. Then this medication helps to gently reduce swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues. Tests conducted by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C., and at a Midwest Medical Center showed this to be true in many cases.

The medication used by doctors in these tests was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Preparation H also lubricates the affected area to protect the inflamed, irritated surface and so helps make bowel movements more comfortable.

There is no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

How Denim Left the And Found a Home In the City

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

Designers this season are taking the country out of denim. Once the gear of farmhands and cowboys, today a status symbol of the youth cult, denim is really putting on the dog. According to Ken O'Keefe, Fashion Director of the Men's Fashion Association, "denim is no longer synonymous with overalls and jeans."

Simple sophistication, but in all kinds of combinations and permutations, characterizes the new "city" denim as it débuts in red, white, or in shades of traditional blue. It can be brushed into a soft texture or pinstriped.

But the big news is in the silhouettes. Styled for leisurewear in a shirt or tunic suit or tailored for the office in a shaped model, denim is widening horizons for the fashion-conscious male.

It's getting so, a gal to keep up with her guy no longer asks where are we going, but what are you wearing!

COVER:

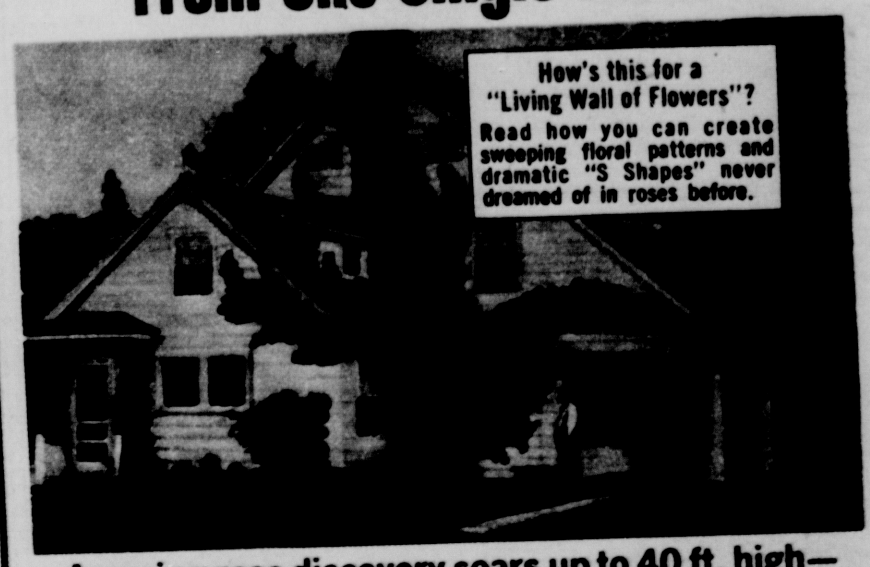
Imagine! A 40-Foot House Covered with GIANT RED ROSES From One Single Plant



Amazing rose discovery soars up to 40 ft. high—spreads up to 20 ft. wide—spreads across bare walls like wildfire with blazing color from spring to frost.

You're looking at the amazing new climbing rose developed by the Rev. W. W. Bunge of Minnesota that has been called "a phenomenal rose factory". Imagine the glory of a rosebush that streaks skyward 18 inches in a single week—and once established reaches fantastic heights of 20 feet in a single season—spreads 40 feet along walls, fences and trellises.

Imagine the glory of a rosebush that bursts into gigantic blossoms up to 5 inches across—roses so eager to bloom the entire plant is covered with hundreds of lavish flowers at one single time—roses that burst into fiery masses of bloom again and again in June, July, August, September, October—until snow starts to fly.

Turns your house into a showplace from June to frost

This incredible rose discovery has been acclaimed as a new floral sensation by leading garden authorities. And no wonder! With just one single plant you can "curtain" a whole house wall and breezeway with masses of roses—frames, windows and doorways with garlands of blossoms. Here are roses that sweep over the roofs of ranch houses and trail fountains of bloom from one side of the house to the other. Roses that screen your garage and backyard on arbors or trellises—roses to sweep along fences and surround your property with living walls of color 5 months of the year.

Yes, now you can create a floral paradise, the kind of lavish beauty you see in garden magazines, cause a neighborhood sensation of fiery splendor that can be seen for blocks—and do it all at an incredibly low cost!

Called the Ray Bunge "Scarlet Showers" Rose, it has laughed off even bitter-cold Minnesota winters with almost no protection whatever—and is so disease resistant that it actually withstands blackspot. More amazing—it even blooms in partly shady locations in Rev. Bunge's test gardens where practically no other rose can survive. (As little as 3 hours of sunlight produces ravishing masses of bloom.)

This is the wonder rose that Rev. Bunge has finally perfected and patented after 32 years of breeding. Now you can have it blooming in your garden for a lifetime of beauty if you order now—before our limited supplies are exhausted.

Time Lock

By LARRY HARRIS

At 4½ she's reading 3rd grade books

a child prodigy? not at all! your child, too can be reading one, two or three years beyond his present age level...even if he's a "poor" reader now

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child. At age four and a half, she's already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with "Listen and Learn with Phonics" — a reading kit that actually makes reading fun.

"Listen and Learn with Phonics" was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinates eager young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on the phonograph record, sees them in his book and repeats them himself. This makes an absorbing game of better reading—with amazing results!

FOR EXAMPLE:

- Slow or average readers show sudden, often spectacular improvement in reading, in spelling, in understanding.
- Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age levels.
- Young "pre-schoolers" actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective phonics method of words, pictures, and records.

6 TEACHING GAMES INCLUDED FREE

Set includes six separate "word building" games. All six are sent with your Listen and Learn Phonics Set FREE of charge!

TEACHERS & PARENTS ACCLAIM RESULTS

"I received your Combination Teaching Set and am positively delighted with it! . . . your marvelous approach to reading is just what we need."

Mrs. Rogavin, Central High School, Snyder, N.Y.

"We purchased 'Listen and Learn With Phonics' . . . for our nine year old son . . . within two weeks his reading had improved 100%."

Mrs. Gregory Knight, San Leandro, Cal.

These "Learning Tools" Simple to Use!

You don't need special teaching skills to use this program. Nor do you need any special knowledge of phonics.

In fact, your child needs no special supervision on your part. This set is so simple, so fascinating, he can learn "on his own" without help.

10-DAY FREE TRIAL—PLUS 4-MONTH MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE!

Results are so dramatic, the publishers will make the complete kit available to your child with an equally dramatic FREE trial and guarantee.

Under the terms of this unusual offer you can test the kit free of charge for ten days. Moreover you may use the kit for four months and then return it for full refund if you're not completely satisfied with your child's progress!

See for yourself how fast your child can learn to read. Just fill out and mail the coupon attached. There's no obligation, and six teaching games are included free—yours to keep whether you buy or not. Americana Interstate, a division of Grolier, Inc., publishers of Book of Knowledge, Mundelein, Ill.

CAJUN COUNTRY—

The Land Where Legends Live

—was separated from her lover Gabriel, on the trek south. When she finally reached St. Martinville, then an Attakapas Indian trading post, Evangeline caught up with Gabriel. Then came the moment of truth under an oak tree. Gabriel confessed he had married another girl. The ancient oak, heavily veiled with moss as though in mourning, has been christened the Evangeline Oak.

The haunting legend leads to Longfellow-Evangeline Memorial State Park, a scenic 175-acre tract of land for picnicking, camping, or swimming. Here lived the real Gabriel, Louis Arcenaux, in what is now the Acadian House Museum. And, of course, there is a Gabriel Oak in the park. Gabriel definitely carried someone else over that threshold as his bride. His daughter, Cidalise Arcenaux, is buried in Lafayette's St. John Cathedral cemetery.

After the sentimental journey to St. Martinville, we like a change of pace and stop in Breaux Bridge, a picturesque town on the banks of the Teche, where crawfish is king and served royally. The pace quickens in the nearby small town of Happy Landing, when the community has a public fais-do-do dance. Old dancers, young dancers all call out in French, "Laissez les bon temps roulez!" which means "Let the good times roll!"

For visitors who prefer big-city comforts but want their Cajun Country, too, it's a good idea to stay in Lafayette, an excellent base for drives to off-the-beaten path Cajun communities. A swinging city, complete with airport, Lafayette struck oil, and Cajun customs have become enriched with sophistication. But Cajun cooking in the restaurants is simply delicious! Some of the specialties or gumbos (thick seafood or chicken "stews" with the distinctive flavor of powdered sassafras root), the crawfish étouffée (crawfish, vegetables and seasonings blended into a rich gravy and served over Louisiana rice), jambalaya (a wonderful mixture of anything—seafood, ham, vegetables, rice).

From Lafayette, good roads lead to strongly Cajun Opelousas with its Jim Bowie Museum; Crowley and the famous rice fields; Loreauville and the Acadian Heritage Museum (a recreated village recapturing the Cajun past).

About 25 miles south of Lafayette, there's a whole new scene in New Iberia, "Queen City of the Teche." New Iberia can truly be called "hot stuff"—this is the hot pepper sauce center of America. At nearby Avery Island (which is not an island at all), the McIlhenny family of Tabasco fame welcome visitors to their plant and Jungle Gardens.

Unfortunately, local color is fading fast. The boucherie, a Cajun community social event when hogs are butchered is going out of style. But who will make the boudin, chaudin, and gratons? There are not so many authentic Cajun weddings, which lasted for days. There are fewer hunters, trappers, and fishermen. The patois also has lost some of its French purity. But the new French Heritage Committee has rushed to the rescue of the old traditions, and the natural beauty of the bayous will never change, nor the Beautiful People of Cajun Country, who greet guests with "bienvenue."

ESTELLE PARSONS:

Her Real Life Is Harder Than Acting

"I was hoping the baby would be a girl," said Estelle Parsons. "We even had a name picked out, Martha Abbie. I can still remember, after I'd given birth, hearing the doctor's surprised voice—'Another baby!' No one had expected twins."

No one expected Mother's success as a movie star 15 years later, either. Least of all, Estelle Parsons herself. Her life had been concentrated on being a mother and a good, solid stage actress, off-Broadway and on. But within the past three years, she has won an Oscar for her first film, "Bonnie and Clyde," and an Academy Award nomination for her second, "Rachel, Rachel." Her most recent film is "I Never Sang for My Father."

About her instant success, Estelle says: "I never wanted it!" Her open, un-made-up face becomes serious. "To me, success meant being drained. It meant hard work and little money, working in the theatre, but it never occurred to me I would do anything else."

The Parsons' life style hasn't changed. She still lives in the same apartment on New York's West Side that she took after her divorce from writer Richard Gehman. The twins were two years old then. She still rides a bus rather than a cab, plays tennis on the public courts in Central Park, swims at the Y, shops in the supermarket, and seldom bothers with make-up or hairstyling.

"Once I made movies, everybody started asking me questions, invading my privacy," Estelle says. "My daughters' friends suddenly wanted to come home with them and look at me. And all the time my work was the same. It's just that people thought of me differently."

The folks in Marblehead, Mass., Estelle's home town, must have known, however, that the granddaughter of successful attorney Starr Parsons would make an impact on life. She studied law for a year at Boston U. What she learned from that was "how those men were training for a man's world—ruthless, competitive, cut-and-dried, ambitious. That's not for me."

Estelle went to New York to work on the "Today" show, advancing from production assistant to a producer of short features. That, in turn, led to musical revues and her début in an off-Broadway play, "Mrs. Dally Has a Lover," which won a "Theatre World" Award.

Estelle Parsons is not a public person. The first time I met her, two years ago, she spoke of her need for privacy. She was tan, wholesome-looking but rather plump. She was not dating anyone special. She put most of her time into an open-air Shakespeare production in New York's Central Park. At that time she was explaining why she didn't hire a maid to ease her busy schedule. "I don't like help around. I like to be alone when I'm alone. If I'm not sleeping much, I want to be able to get up and prowl around, wear anything, with no one to bother me."

When I saw her recently, Estelle Parsons had begun to adjust to fame. "I was uptight then," she recalled. She was 20 pounds thinner. Her complexion was fresh, glowing—and still un-made-up. At 43 ("I couldn't face 30, but the 40's are all right"), she is prettier than her movie roles would indicate.

Romances? "Nobody," she answered and changed the subject. Later she added, as part of her outspoken case against fame, "I don't want to make an effort to have a boy friend . . . but it would be wonderful if it would just happen. It's hard for a person in my position to have a meaningful relationship. I want someone who is medium bright. But not many men I'd want would want me. They just want a good wife and mother, not a woman who likes to discuss the world."

Estelle's daughters obviously come first with her. "I never got serious with a date, at least not for long, because he would latch on to me. Martha and Abbie are great kids." (Their mother split the original name choice, one for each twin.) "They're both good cooks, better than I am these days. They can take care of themselves. I tell them if they're not on their own by the time they reach 16, I'm going to kick them out and move to Europe." Estelle says that with a straight face, but then she has to cover her sudden giggle with her fingers.

Martha and Abbie . . . there's something familiar about the names, but the reference is elusive. Were the girls named after someone special? "An actress once told me that those were the names of the old ladies in 'Arsenic and Old Lace,'" Estelle says. "But that was just coincidence. If I had known, I never would have done it."

And if Estelle Parsons had known how troublesome success would be to her, she might never have made "Bonnie and Clyde," either.

What in the World!

museum in the Baltimore, Md., area which sprang from a couple of cigar boxes. The Salvation Army Boys' Club there has an Indian lore program—as do most of the 880 Clubs across the country—which also boasts its own full-blooded Sioux Indian consultant when it meets at nearby Camp Puh'tok. Chief Sunrise taught the boys how to recognize Indian artifacts, and they began filling their cigar boxes with them. Eventually there were enough artifacts to form the nucleus of a museum.

Contract for Spouses No matter how great the love and trust between husband and wife, business is business. So says Harriet F. Pilpel, an attorney who has served on various Presidential Commissions concerned with the status of women. If a couple anticipates working together for financial gain, she says, their agreement should be put down on paper with the help of a lawyer while the couple are "alive, friendly, and competent." The document may never be needed, but "if one spouse should die, then it becomes a question of what their understanding was." If there should be a serious disagreement—or a divorce—it could be possible that a "grave injustice" might arise. A wife, for instance, could work some 30 years, helping to build a joint million-dollar estate; she could then find herself a widow with everything she had helped to earn in her husband's name only—which he'd then willed to someone else.

Headlong into the Past Antique shops from coast to coast are reporting a new run on old mirrors. Ornate mirrors that have been long stored away in the attics of old mansions, particularly in the South and Texas, are now finding a rebirth. As today's young people rediscover the joy of creating their own handiwork, such rococo objects—that can never again be made in an age geared to mass production—are becoming highly prized. The big mirror is notably back in style, as it complements the trend toward longer, floppier, and decorated clothing. Many old mirrors will be displayed at the National Antiques Show, representing some 300 collections from all over the U.S., which opens this week in New York. Example: a hand-carved wood mirror with gold leaf, 18th-century French.

...THEN, BY BREAKING THE WATER'S SURFACE AND SPREADING ITS FINS IT CAN SAIL HUNDREDS OF YARDS THROUGH THE AIR BEFORE DROPPING BACK INTO THE OCEAN.

EEK & MEEK

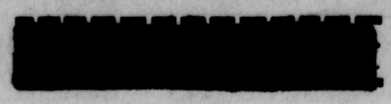
DEAR POLLY—Before putting rubber protectors (size I) on chrome chair legs, I cap each leg with a soft drink bottle cap so the tubular leg does not cut through the rubber.—MRS. H. P. D.

DEAR POLLY—Tack a string with a pen and pad attached to the inside of the door to the canned goods cupboard. When the last of anything is used, add to the list for shopping day.—CAROL

DEAR POLLY—When the grass catcher on a lawn mower wears out, use ticking to make a new cover. The material is heavy enough so the grass does not poke through.—DELORES



DEAR POLLY—When using my portable sewing machine on a table, it vibrated and made so much noise that it was almost unbearable. I put a rubber bath mat under the machine. This absorbs vibration and noise, and holds the machine steady.—JUDY

DEAR POLLY—My two sons always ripped the buttons off and tore the buttonholes in their pajama tops till I sewed the fronts so there is only room left to poke the head through. This makes a cute pull-over. I leave the buttons on for decoration.—DELORES

DEAR POLLY—I wanted something different as a table decoration for my son's seventh birthday. My inexpensive arrangement made such a hit that I want to share it with other mothers. I inflated seven balloons of different colors, tied one end of a string to each balloon and then pushed the other end through a paper drinking straw and attached securely with adhesive tape. I mounted my balloon-lollipops in colorful clay (contents of one can, flattened) and had a centerpiece the kids loved. When the party was over, each helped himself to a balloon.—TIM'S MOM

DEAR POLLY—By my sink I keep a three-pound coffee can lined with one, or sometimes two, plastic bread bags with the tops pulled tightly over the top of the can. Into this go coffee grounds and small scraps till the can is full. I pull the bag out, tie the top or close with a twistie, and throw into the garbage. I keep the top of the can on so there is no odor, and the can is easily washed.—BETTY

DEAR POLLY—At a recent bridal shower one guest brought her gift wrapped in a gray, metallic-looking ironing board cover with a bunch bow made of brightly colored round plastic scouring pads. This made two more useful gifts plus the lovely shower gift.—JUNE

DEAR POLLY—I keep the vegetable brush hanging by the sink. It is so good for washing the ridges in cake and tube pans, fork tines and hard-to-reach areas on the stove.—BOBBIE

DEAR POLLY—After using a pattern, it is almost impossible to fold and put back in the envelope as it was. I iron the pieces with a warm iron and they are as flat as when new.—MRS. D. S.
